SPRING.

Lucy Larcom.

Sunshine set to music!

Hear the sparrow sing!

In his note is freshness

Of the new-born Spring;

In his trill delicious

Summer overflows—

Whiteness of his bill,

Sweetness of the rose.

Splendor of the sunrise,

Fragrance of the breeze,

Crystal of the brooklet

Trickling under trees.

Over moss and pebbles,

Hark! you have them all

Propheesied and chanted

In the sparrow's call.

His own conscience.

Calvin Barton had been four months

in Hope college when he received a letter from his father. It was written in reply to one his son had written, apparently asking for advice in a matter of conduct.

Mr. Barton was plain, uneducated man, gifted with a large fund of common sense. He had moved out West

as a young man, and for thirty years had worked hard on a farm, facing pioneer life with silent courage and coining much wealth of experience

through a lifetime of close economy and hardihood. At the time when his oldest boy was ready for college the father was the owner of a good farm,

which was the source of a comfortable living to the family, but not a producer of much actual money.

Mr. and Mrs. Barton had lived for twenty years with one prevailing anxiety, to rear and educate their children and give them advantages that they themselves had never had. One of the proudest days of their lives had been when Calvin, now nineteen, had left home to go to college. Crops had been good, and Mr. Barton saw the way clear to hire an extra hand during Calvin's absence. And both he and his wife had blessed God that morning when the boy's ambition for a college course began to be met.

Now the boy's special letter home

The Quincy Patriot

SATURDAY, APRIL 6, 1912

GOOD WORK ACCOMPLISHED.

The old adage "nothing succeeds like success" is being borne out by the successful work shown in the report made by the visiting nurse movement in Quincy for the month of March. With the addition of another nurse much more has been accomplished, the records showing a total of 333 calls for the corresponding month of last year. These calls represent fifty-two patients of whom thirty-four were new cases, while eleven were carried from the previous month, and twenty patients remained under treatment at the end of the month.

Twelve physicians called for the nurses' services and the district covered, embraced every section of our city from Houghs Neck to Atlantic, West and South Quincy, Quincy Point and Wollaston. The cases treated show the following:

Rheumatism, 1; pneumonia, 2; cancer, 4; anæmia, 1; operations, bronchitis, 2; catarrhal, 1; cystitis, 2; nasal hemorrhage, 1; shock, 1; tuberculosis, 1; malnutrition, 2; otitis media, 1; neuritis, 3; felon, 1; cystitis, 1.

Although much is accomplished, the work is done so quietly that many of our people do not know of this charitable movement. Originating with the Women's club, they have been sponsored for the cause financially being helped by a few close to the work. The present year a larger number of people have been invited to become supporters of the work, to the extent of contributing one dollar a year, and the nurses are now directly generous to warrant procuring a second nurse, and taking up lines of work before impossible.

While dollar contributions to some might seem inadequate, yet the committee in charge believe this method of financing will amply take care of all requirements, and they will recognize the amount of good being done by the nurse.

The nurse goes into the poorest home and cares for the sick one without any questions. Her immediate duty is with the sick one, yet she holds the family as a whole. If possible, the nurse is found for the unemployed, the smaller children are looked after and in many other ways great good is done; so that the dollar given to help this work is well spent. While the services of the nurses are available to any resident of Quincy, it is but natural to believe that contributors will have an interest in the work, that will greatly aid its growth.

Mrs. N. S. Hunting, 1136 Hancock street, Quincy, is treasurer of the committee, and all contributions are promptly acknowledged.

FOLK FEST.

A Folk Post and sale is to be held at Morgan Memorial, corner of Shawmut and Atlantic streets, Boston, on Wednesday and Thursday, April 17 and 18 from 2 to 10 o'clock P. M. The directors of the Woman's Auxiliary of Morgan Memorial have sent out postals to lake holders intending to contribute aprons, towels or handkerchiefs. Many generous responses are coming in. Twenty thousand Morgan Memorial bags are in circulation. All interested in this splendid plant for the making of good citizens from the raw material are urged to attend this sale and witness the entertainment furnished by the donors. Many nationalities in appropriate costumes.

COMMUNION AND RECEPTION.

The communion and reception of members in Memorial church, Atlantic Thursday brought out the largest number of communicants since the church was dedicated. After the communion there were addresses by Deacon Edwin French, Fred Burditt, William F. Cummings and Deacon W. F. Blake. Deacon French spoke on making the prayer meeting a force in the life of the church; Mr. Burditt paid high tribute to his "dear mother" in instituting into his heart and mind the teachings of Christ and he suggested that the home is where our lack of influence is felt today; Mr. Cummings spoke on the many phases of church life and showed much thought and scriptural research. He said—we are soldiers and have enlisted in the cause of Christ, we are a family; Deacon Blake spoke on the church as a home, stating that we should make the home beautiful for the family—love it and make it enjoyable. So in our church, we should be loyal to it—support it and be true to its promises. Watch over, care for and pray for the members. Mr. Blake also spoke of the loyalty of the twenty-one teachers in the Sunday school and said that the success in that branch was due to them.

In closing the meeting the pastor, Rev. Mr. Davidson spoke of the loyalty of the people and his appreciation of some who had been on the sick list and could not be present.

FIREMEN'S R. A. BILL.

Representative William J. Leslie, of Quincy, Friday presented to the House Committee on Rules the petition requesting permission to amend the bill in the House of Representatives, changes in the by-laws of the Fireman's Relief Association of Quincy, although it is long past the stipulated time for receiving new petitions, the committee decided to recommend a suspension of the rules of the House to admit the petition. Harvard voted for Taft against their own T. R. They will never win the football game if they keep on this way.

Germany is going to form Government monopolies to fight the trusts. Perhaps we will try a little of that game over here soon.

As the women will no doubt get suffrage when the majority of them want it, they should mass women's mirrors instead of men's shop windows.

This vacation week just before Easter is much needed, especially by the children. It has been long term and most of the little brains are very tired and will prove they can do better work after the week's intermission. May the pupils all return with the strong determination to make the last term the best of the whole year, which fact will be in evidence by their grade promotions in June.

It would seem as though a young man with a call to preach would in these days of high living become a unicorn. The salary per year shows the Tariffian average to be $1655, the Episcopal $1242, Universalist $1228, New Jerusalem $1225, Jewish $1222, Presbyterian $1177, Reformed $1170, United Presbyterian $1096 and Congregationalist $1042. While most of the other churches average less than $600. The ministers of the country are certainly up against a problem when a family has to be raised and the professional man cannot begin to compete in wages with the laboring man notwithstanding the fact he has paid a good price to fit himself for his work.

WHO DRANK IT?

Nine and one-half gallons of liquor for each inhabitant brought into our city the past year is a record not much to the credit of a no-license city. It emphasizes the fact that have been called to our licensing board and City Council year after year, that there are too many express conductors bar rooms on wheels. Many of them do an express business only in liquor.

Think of it—about ten gallons for each man, woman and child brought in each year by the consent of the people to say nothing of the great quantities brought in individually. It is common knowledge that it is not hard to get liquor in Quincy notwithstanding the vote for no-license year after year.

Our people are lax; there is a deplorable indifference as a whole that is alarming to those who know the situation. A handful of citizens put up a good fight just before election, but they do not receive the help and support they should have had. At large, nearly all are backed up in their good work by those in authority at City Hall.

The Patriot has always stood for no-license; is opposed to the granting of almost unlimited express privileges. The ledger refuses, and always has, liquor advertising. It means the turning down of lots of money, but it firmly believes it is no loser for a clean paper and clean business can succeed without catering to wrong principles. But probably if some of the express companies look at it in the same light they would have to go out of business.

TO WED IN THE WEST.

Miss Mabel Lapham, of Quincy, left Wednesday for Portland, Ore. to become the bride of Frederick W. Russell, formerly of Quincy. Mr. Russell was a resident of Quincy for four years up to three years ago when he went to Seattle. Remaining there a short time he went to Portland, Ore. where he is now engaged in the confectionery business. He will meet his prospective bride at Grants Pass, about twelve hours' ride from Portland, and the wedding will take place shortly after their arrival in Portland.

Miss Lapham is a daughter of Charles Lapham, a well-known resident of Quincy Point and one of the most popular young ladies of that district. She has recently been employed at the Tubular Iron Co., as bookkeeper and takes with her the best wishes of a host of friends who are awaiting the announcement of the happy event.

OPIE DILDICK.

Dr. W. G. Kendall of Atlantic, the veteran Boston terrier breeder of the country, having been prominently and actively identified with that breed for over 20 years, believes 'he is in Opie Dildick, his latest championship prospect, one of the best terriers he has ever bred. First and last, Dr. Kendall has introduced into the show ring and to the members of fancy a number of seemingly invincible animals, and it is believed by the Doctor and his friends that Opie Dildick will eventually become one of the biggest of all his winners.

It will take a lot of beating," was Dr. Kendall's only comment when asked how he regarded Opie Dildick. He is a rich color with blaze, clean-cut head, cobby body, straight back and short screw tail, so typical of the breeder and of Dr. Kendall's strain.

DANCING PARTY.

There was a large attendance at the entertainment and dancing party given Tuesday evening in Protection hall by the Daughters of Viking. The affair attracted many visitors from other branches of the order and was a pronounced success.

The entertainment was provided by the members of the lodge and all the talent came in for their full share of well merited applause.

Mr. Stevens arrived in Quincy early in the afternoon and after being taken for a short automobile ride about the city during which a visit was made to the two Adams birthplaces he was entertained at dinner by President Hearn, the dinner party also including City Solicitor McAnarney and Vice President Shaw. It was expected that Mayor Stone would also be present but he did not arrive home in time.

Before the address there was a short business session of the Board. One of the first matters to come up was the proposed amendment to the By-laws which was to suspend rule relative to initiation fee until April 1. It was stated that a check for $12,340 had been received from the Citizens' Association without any conditions. That there were a number of members of the association not identified with the Board of Trade and that it would be a good thing to suspend the rule so that those not members might be admitted on payment of the $5 dues thus omitting the initiation fee of $5.

Notes and Comments.

—We don't imagine anyone has any idea but what the consumer will have to pay for the advance in wages the mill workers of New England get. The mill agents admit it, and already the price of cloth is advancing.—Brooklyn Enterprise.

—There are cities in the United States where the inhabitants would be greatly amused if they should be told that a children's park had been closed up because the children's laughter and the shouting disturbed the police officers in their duties near by. This is what has happened in the city of Sevastopol, Russia.

—The Episcopal Church in Chicago has taken a step in advance of the law in declaring it will perform no marriages until health certificates for both parties have been furnished. Some States already have such a law and as the marriage question more and more hinges upon physical conditions, the wisdom of such laws is apparent.—Old Colony Memorial.

—Sales tax line of its wealthiest residents, including two of its prominent public officials, on April 1, as an aftermath of the renewed discovery made by the assessors last fall that they could levy taxes on $60,000 additional personal property. The nine residents who were forced to pay the heaviest of the heretofore levied taxes on the $60,000 have sent out legal notices to the board that they are to take up residence elsewhere.—Brooklyn Enterprise.

—Street car manufacturers are making rapid progress in designing vehicles to overcome objections to the standard type. Philadelphia has the "near-side car," and now New York has a car which goes one better. The New York vehicle has no steps, the frame being "underslung" on the axles, so that the floor is only 10 inches above the rails. The doors are in the center, and the car cannot be opened while the car is in motion.

—Colorado voters are to pass upon a plan proposed by Judge Lindsay of Denver for compelling labor from men who fail to support their families. The bill in question provides that workhouses shall be established in counties of 20,000 or more population, in which the shirkers and idlers shall be put to work, and the money derived from their labor used for the support of their wives and children. Massachusetts has a law that, although it isn't exactly like the one proposed by Judge Lindsay, is similar. In this State 50 cents a day for the labor of a prisoner is paid by family by the counties.—Brooklyn Enterprise.

TROLLEY ACCIDENT.

What might have been a serious accident, had it not been for fortunate conditions, was narrowly averted on the Norfolk Downs road on Sunday afternoon when the Neponset bound car leaving Quincy square at 4 o'clock left the rails on Elm avenue. The car was coming down Elm avenue at its ordinary speed with the rocking motion customary on this line. On passing Kemper street a rail, evidently undetected by the forward track, gave a little, causing the forward track to rise and jump the track.

The car with its dozen or more passengers ploughed a furrow for 15 or 20 yards and before it could be stopped the forward portion was well upon and embedded in the roadway.

Eyewitnesses state that had it not been for the upcurve of the road at this point an overturn would have been imminent. As it was, the occupants of the car escaped with a severe shaking up.

The efficient wrecking crew were soon on the job and in less than an hour had the car on its way to the repair shop. Passengers suffered but little inconvenience transfers being made in both directions.

With the exception of having the tender torn off and a few minor damages the car was uninjured.

OPPOSE SUPP. PARLIN.

What is said to be a movement on the part of the majority of the members of the Cambridge school board to oppose Supt. Parlin took place, Monday when the board, after organizing, passed new rules after vigorous opposition, during which Supt. Parlin's name was frequently mentioned.

After organizing, when John W. Bradley, one of the "Board" Democrats, who had defeated Prof. Beale, for the chairmanship of the question of changes in rules came up. The discussion was a lively one.

Heretofore nominations and appointments of teachers has been made directly by the superintendent. There has been much discussion of this method which resulted in thousands of Cambridge women registering for the election and practically all of them voted.

Under the new rules as adopted it is said that Supt. Parlin is shorn of his power of appointment of teachers.

Supt. Parlin is well known in Quincy, where he was Superintendent of schools for several years, resigning to accept the position at Cambridge.

CITY COUNCIL.

Although total point blank, by the Mayor, that if the Council passed the budget for the amounts recommended by the Finance Committee, he should have to veto the order and that the departments would be crippled, the Council with little debate passed the order without a dissenting vote thus putting it up to the Mayor to approve, veto or allow it to become a law without his signature.

The situation is a unique one, for if the Mayor returns the order without his approval, the Council will have to amend the order. The only question that can be considered is the passing over the veto or sustaining the veto. In the latter event it will be necessary to go over the entire matter again which would mean some time in May before the budget would finally be passed.

The Mayor in a communication said that he had given the budget careful attention and he finds that the figures would compel a tax rate of $22.50 per thousand, "even if we allow for an increase in the city's valuation greater than was shown last year." To obviate the necessity of such a high rate he recommended that the budget be reduced by making the following changes, which were reductions from the original amounts from his original estimates.

Board of Health,	$3,000
Public Burial Places,	250
City Engineer,	200
Public Library,	1,000
Bridges and Drains,	2,500
Repairing of Public Buildings,	1,250

The Mayor forwarded a communication from the Chief of Police recommending that the license granted to Joseph Silver to drive a wagon for the collection of junk and that the common victuals and sundry fruit license granted E. M. Shy be revoked. In the former case the Chief stated he had his license to another man who had been convicted in court of larceny. In the case of Shy the Chief said that he had been fined $100 and sentenced to three months in jail for violation of the license.

The Special Committee on Financial Investigation in a partial report said that "It is the belief of your Committee that many errors, or abuses, in the conduct of the city's business in the past may have come about through lack of accurate information regarding the city's true condition. The City's business should be conducted in such a way that a glance at the monthly balance sheet will show more completely than it does at the present time just the financial condition."

"We feel confident that the system of accounting as recommended by the State Board of Statistics will prevent a repetition of past errors and will give the city officials, in a convenient form, information which should continually be before them."

"A proper system of accounting is essential to the conduct of any successful business, and we believe that the city's financial condition would be strengthened if the facts were more readily obtainable. We therefore commend the adoption of the accompanying order."

The order as recommended was as follows:
"In accordance with the provisions of Chapter 588 of the Acts of 1910 enacted 'An Act Relative to the Auditing by the Director of the Bureau of Statistics of Municipal Accounts' it is hereby ordered that this Council hereby petition the Director of the Bureau of Statistics to oversee the installation of a system of accounts approved by him as provided by said chapter."

The annual appropriation order for the year ending June 30, 1912, was adopted and the rules were suspended.

The items for the several departments were taken up separately and acted upon.
It was at this time that Councilman Studley tried to have the order amended in accordance with the recommendations contained in the communication of the Mayor.

The first item to come up was that for the Board of Health. He then moved to cut the amount for contagious diseases from $8,000 to $5,000.
Chairman Treadwell of the Board of Health was called before the Council and asked if he thought $5,000 would be sufficient. He replied no.

The motion of Councilman Studley was rejected.
Mayor Stone at this point addressed the Council. He said he believed that by economy that the departments could get along with the lesser amounts. Last year there was an unusual large expenditure by the Board of Health owing to scarlet fever. If no cuts are made the order will have to come back. He had been over the matter carefully and found that if passed the tax rate would be $22.50 per thousand and if passed as it was he should have to veto the order.

Continuing, the several amounts were taken up. The motion of Councilman Studley to make cuts were rejected by voice vote, and without practically any debate.
The order was then put on its final passage and on roll call was passed by a vote of 12 yeas and 11 nays in the affirmative and 20 yeas and 11 nays in the negative.

Moody Boynton was present during the Council meeting looking for an opportunity to talk on his bicycle road. The Council however took no steps to invite him to speak. After adjournment however he mounted the president's platform and talked at length to the audience on his railroad plan.
In the meantime, however, word had come that automobiles were in waiting at the door to take the Councilmen to the automobile show at the Wollaston Central Garage and practically all of the Councilmen and many of the City officials went down, leaving Mr. Boynton in possession of the hall.

THE HENLEY LAUNCHED.

Torpedo Boat Destroyer Henley was successfully launched at 11:33 A. M. Wednesday at the Fore River Ship yard in the presence of a small group of officials of the Arsenal and the officials of the Fore River Ship Building Co. and a party of friends of the sponsor, Miss Constance Henley Kane, from the Charlestown Navy yard.

The launch was a private one yet none the less interesting for there is always something about the launching of a naval vessel. Miss Kane, whose home is in New York arrived in Boston, Tuesday evening and came to Quincy this morning on the train leaving Boston at 10:45. With her as her official party, her father, Danbridge Henley Kane, her brother, Uncle L. C. Commander Porter Kane, U. S. M. C. commander of the marine barracks at the Charlestown Navy yard and his aid, Lt. Charles A. Ostrom.

The party were met at the Quincy dock at about 11 o'clock by a few minutes after 11 o'clock by the automobile of the Fore River Co. and taken direct to the ship yard where they were met by Admiral Bowles who presented Miss Kane and gave her a handsome bouquet of American beauty roses.

After greetings the party were escorted to the launching stand, that had been erected about the bow of the vessel. Work knocking away the shores and driving home the wedges which lifted the Henley onto her cradle was immediately commenced.

Promptly at 12:05 A. M. the Admiral Bowles, with a swift glance, to see that all was in readiness gave the signal to saw away the soul pieces and as the mass of steel began to move down the greased ways, he turned to Miss Kane and gave her the words "God bless the ship."

Suspended from the bow of the vessel by a tri-colored ribbon was a bottle of Mum's Extra dry champagne, which was encased in a steel mesh to prevent the flying glass from cutting the fair sponsor. This Miss Henley held firmly in her right hand and at the given word she smashed the cork with the wine over the bow. As the sparkling liquid ran down the sides she cried out, "I christen thee Henley."

A minute afterward the stern of the boat struck the water sending a high wave bounding toward the Weymouth shore. Her stern seemed to rise almost out of sight. Then the rose and the vessel was riding gracefully in her native element. Tugs quickly surrounded her and she was taken to the fitting dock.

The vessel entering the water was signified by the shrill shriek of the whistles in the yards and by tugs in the river which waved their flags to the cheers of the launching party.

The launch over Admiral Bowles congratulated Miss Kane on the efficient manner in which she had carried out her part of the launch. The party were then escorted to the annex where a lunch was served.

Miss Kane came from a distinguished naval family, which traces its history back to Capt. Robert Henley, who was second in Command of the famous "Fighting Macdonough" at the battle of Lake Champlain.

Her grandfather was Rear Admiral Theodore Porter Kane and her father is Danbridge Henley Kane of Park Lane, New York and her uncle, Lieut. Col. Theodore Porter Kane recently appointed to the Charlestown navy yard.

Capt. Robert Henley, for whom the vessel is named, was born in Williamsburg, Va., Jan. 5, 1789. He received his education at William and Mary college and entered the Navy as midshipman, April 8, 1799. He was midshipman on board the Constellation under Capt. Truxton, during her combat with LaVengeance, Feb. 1, 1800, and won the approval of his commander for bravery displayed in the encounter.

Returning to Williamsburg he attended a course of lectures on navigation and naval science and, upon re-entering active service, was made Lieutenant, Jan. 29, 1807, and was placed in command of a gunboat at Newport. He was promoted Commodore, Aug. 12, 1814, and was sent on command in the battle of Lake Champlain, Sept. 11, 1814, in which engagement he commanded the Eagle. For his gallant conduct on that occasion he received the thanks of Congress and a gold medal.

In 1821 he was sent to the West Indies to cruise for pirates and, as Master of the sloop-of-war Hornet, he captured the schooner Moscow on Oct. 29 of that year. He was appointed Captain, March 3, 1825, and, after his return to the United States, he served in the home squadron. He was stationed for some years in North Carolina and was then placed in command of the naval station on Sullivan's Island and South Carolina, where he died Oct. 7, 1828. His brother, John Danbridge Henley, (1781-1835) was also a distinguished naval officer in the United States service.

The first item to come up was that for the Board of Health. He then moved to cut the amount for contagious diseases from $8,000 to $5,000.
Chairman Treadwell of the Board of Health was called before the Council and asked if he thought $5,000 would be sufficient. He replied no.

A citizen of Hyde Park says that annexation has not brought the five cent fare and cheaper gas, and that the community has lost socially and financially. While the tax rate is lower the valuations are sure to go up without any material increase in the value of the property to the owner. Boston is finding out that Hyde Park is a costly proposition.—Chelsea Record.

ANNUAL MASQUERADE.

The annual masquerade party of the Manet encampment, I. O. O. F., was held March 29th at Alpha hall and was the most successful of any previous year. The number of guests attending was a large number of those actively participating were in masquerade. There were many grotesque costumes seen among the hundreds of more couples and there were of course the usual number of clowns, school girls, dominoes, etc. There were also a number of very original costumes. In fact it might be said that all the well-known characters were represented in the throng. As a general rule all costumes were of home manufacture, which while lacking the cut and fit of the usual hired costumes, made the party more homelike.

Several of the comical costumes created a great deal of amusement, before unmasking, and while some of the knowing ones thought they could readily pick out the familiar faces that were hidden behind the masques, when the masques came to be laid aside they found they were mistaken and the thought to be Miss So and So proved to be a person of an entirely different name.

For the first hour and a half there was general dancing, the grand march and unmasking number not coming until 9:30. Of course it was warm beneath the masques and quite a few were seen to remove their masques at times and catch a breath of fresh air.

The march was of course the feature of the evening and it came, as stated at 9:30 and was led by the Manet encampment band in full costume. The band formed in Union hall and as the inspiring strains of a familiar march reached the hall the band, with all the lights and whistles, played the march in the hall. It was led by the band's Drum Major, Edward L. Goodridge, whose usual classic features were hidden beneath a grotesque masquerade. As usual carried his masquerade with him and as the band marched about the hall he wielded it, as one who knew how and kept the musicians in time.

As they encircled the hall the masques fell in behind, and the grand march was in progress. There were 66 couples in the march which more than encircled the hall while the space outside and the balcony was crowded with spectators.

The marchers encircled the hall several times. Then the band ran round of wind and stopped, although Ed kept his baton in motion for several seconds hoping that they would catch up. Mr. White the janitor opened the ventilators but all to no purpose, they had blown themselves out.

While this was in progress the judges who had been selected to award the prizes for the most original, grotesque and best gowned couples were busy making up their minds to whom they should be awarded. This committee was composed of John Hall, P. C. Allen and Mrs. H. E. Walker. At the end of the evening the prizes were awarded and were not until after the decision had been announced. The prizes were called to the stage and presented as the prize winners. They then removed their masques and the orchestra announced cried out "all unmask."

This was the signal for the usual series of "I knew it was you, Sadie," and "I could tell you by your walk," etc. and the masques that addressed took it for granted that it was so.

There were six prizes in all. They were pieces of china and very pretty. The fortunate ones gave their names as follows:
Original—Indian maiden with paragon strapped to her back, impersonated by Maria Purdy.
A double man who was going and then coming so it was hard to tell on which side his face was, Frank W. Nightingale.

Best dressed—Miss Liberty, a lady whose gown was made of the American flag, Mrs. C. M. Nelson.
A sailor boy in white—C. M. Gardner.

Come-al—A lady who called herself an old maid but whose costume resembled that of a witch—Sadie Walker. She it was who led the march with Chief Patriarch Walker.

Asa Spades—William A. Richards. Asa was impersonated true to life and created no end of fun.
The prizes awarded, many laid aside their costumes for something more comfortable and general dancing was continued until midnight. During an intermission late in the evening ice cream and cake was on sale in Union hall.

A. S. Kennedy had charge of the floor arrangements and was assisted by Charles J. MacDonald and the following aids, William A. Richards, W. H. Walker, Frank L. Carlson, Frank E. Badger, N. C. Emanuel, Charles Barron, Charles H. Wood and Charles S. Jones.

Charles H. Wood was chairman of the committee of arrangements, Walter H. Walker secretary and Charles Barron treasurer while every member of the encampment considered himself as a committee of arrangements of one and saw to it that everybody had a good time. At midnight a special car left the hall for West Quincy.

The novelty of a Bohemian supper was enjoyed at the Park and Downs church Tuesday evening, being served in conjunction with an Easter sale of linens and other articles by the Women's Club.

Individual tables were attractively distributed around the vestry and what the diners purchased their food from prettily decorated booths in the supper room.

One of the attractions of the food booths was the jovial chef in the person of Lieut. Wilson who kept every one in good humor.

The supper committee was composed of Mrs. James D. Wilson, Mrs. L. I. Mosman, Mrs. Charles Richardson, Mrs. George Baxter, Mrs. H. B. Letson, Mrs. A. R. Muir, Miss Fannie Fraser and Mrs. C. A. Boynton.

The linen table was most attractive, vied with a background of green, forming the decoration. It was in charge of Mrs. Charles F. Bryant, assisted by Mrs. E. M. Brown, Mrs. Charles Chase and Mrs. William S. Kershaw.

Under a canopy of green, Mrs. Fred MacKinnon and Mrs. Fred Robinson, presided with candy on sale.

The gingham booth was in charge of Mrs. W. S. Wood, and old rose formed an effective decoration.

In a corner of the vestry an obliging goose was stationed which, upon payment of a small fee, distributed garlands of flowers and other articles. In charge of the bird were Mrs. Celia McKay and Mrs. Frank C. Knowlton.

Although weather conditions were not of the best, the supper and sale was attended by a goodly number and was a success in every way.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

TOO MUCH LIQUOR.

Just think of it, Quincy, the banner no-license city of the state consumed 289,525 gallons of intoxicating liquor during the year 1911. Assuming the population of the city to be 35,000, it means 8.25 gallons for each man, woman and child. These figures are astounding yet they are true according to the report of the police. This amount however only represents the amount transported by expressmen who held permits to transport liquor granted by the City Council. As there was doubtless many gallons of liquor brought into the city by individuals, of which no return was made the amount per capita was probably nearer ten or eleven gallons.

Under the conditions in which liquor permits are granted the expressmen are obliged to keep a new copy every day transcript of their shipping bills showing the amount of liquor brought into Quincy each day. For these reports it appears that for the year ending Dec. 31, 1911 the number of transactions was 5,713, the number of packages was 54,425, gallons of beer and ale 25,881; gallons of spirits, 2,225; gallons of wine 28,119. For the corresponding period in 1910 the total number of packages was 47,761, gallons of beer and ale, 236,265, gallons of spirits, 1,940 gallons of wine, 27,626.

Early in January 1911 the police found that a large amount of liquor was being shipped by liquor houses in Boston without being labeled as required by law. Some prosecutions were made in these cases with the result that a reduction was at once noticed in the amount being shipped. The following table gives the number of gallons of beer and ale, spirits and wine shipped each month of the year 1911. It might be added however that the larger part of the wine came in 25 and 50 gallon barrels.

In the evening came the hardly less interesting exercises of the Sunday school concert, given before another crowded house, and immediately following this there was an unusual third service in the corner of the church around the organ. Madame Morey called her choir around her, together with such other helpers as happened to be near, and in fitting and tender words made a short farewell address, thanking them for the loyal and enthusiastic support which they had given her during their nine years of acquaintance and association, and congratulating them on the splendid progress they had made during that time, as evidenced by the noble performance of the morning. One could notice serious faces and moistened eyes during the address. As she finished speaking she gave each member of the choir a beautiful picture, both as memento of herself and as appropriate to Easter Day.

In response the choir joined in giving her a substantial sum of money, and what she will value still more highly, a written address signed by every member of the choir, and congratulating her for her so long and faithful relations that have so long existed between organist and choir,
and regretting the present separation.

A no less pleasing gift was a beautiful Cambridge Bible from Madame Morey's large Sunday school class of girls, together with an appropriate address signed by all of them.

It need hardly be said that Madame Morey's hosts of friends in the congregation are not letting her go away without some substantial recognition of her services as organist and choir director, as well as of her womanly worth, and accordingly she was given max to a notable table she was given a purse of one hundred dollars, for the kindest of wishes for her future health and success.

BUDS AND BLOSSOMS.

Josephine Canning.

The heralds of the spring are here—
The blue-bird and the wren—
And from the woodlands, ringing
Their songs greet us again.

The frost that long has held the streams
In thrall to its will,
Unbends before the golden beams
That kiss the mountain rills.

Port leap the waters with a bound
From glens and wooded sides;
While gently, with its rippling sound,
The silver brooklet glides.

From dreamless sleep the willows
wake,
And yield their fragrance sweet;
And maiden hair and fringed brake
Spring up beneath the feet.

The vales are decked with misty sheen,
And in their changing lights,
New charms appear to grace the scene.

From cloud-topped mountain
heights,
The air with subtle incense woe,
The rosy blush of morn;
And softly, like the dove that coos,
Come murmurs of the daisies.

With buds and blossoms comes the
spring,
Fair harbingers are they,
Whose gently opening petals bring
The breath of balmy May.

NOT QUITE IN VAIN.

A black spot against the landscape was the solitary figure plodding doggedly along through the drifting snow, which whirled hither and thither, flaking the man's shabby coat and decorating his heavy beard with a hoary frost.
A man who had seen life in some of its worst phases, yet in whose eyes there lingered still something of the wistfulness and hope of childhood.
This look of expectation deepened as he pressed eagerly on, thinking,

"I wonder if the old place is changed much. Thirty years! If they should have forgotten me! I'll introduce myself as a stranger, but there's mother—she would recognize me, surely. Bless her! if she only knew how often, since I ran off from home,
I have longed to feel her loving arms about me. Dear old mother she must be pretty well on in years. And Dick and Lenie—I expect between them there'll be a whole kit of little ones calling me uncle."

A smile hovered about the man's lips as he added:

"Home! That sounds sort of nice and homelike. Great years! And yet I have not known for years, and yet the memory of one, the home of my boy-hood, has haunted me until here I am seeking it once more. If it should fall me? Bah, I will not think it; there was a welcome for the prodigal, there will be one for me."

Then he drifted back to scenes of the past. He saw again the old homestead, the cool attic running the length of the house. The old-fashioned hand trunks, and innumerable boxes, and bundles, stowed away there; he even remembers a basket of wax flowers
yellow with age, beneath the cracked glass shade, which had been consigned to that abode of housewife's delight, a roomy attic. He sees himself a young stripling, reading away the hours beneath the attic's old rafters, until the sudden gloom warned him that there might be some of mother's gingerbread or cookies waiting for him at the supper table below. There came a time when the gentle mother's head was bowed in grief as they bore the husband and father to his long home.
He thinks of how, after that sad day,
the idea occurred to him to go out in-
to the world and battle for himself.
He goes away off, and when he was rich he would return, but not until then.

A bitter laugh here escaped him;
then a look of pity stole into his eyes
at the thought of the high hopes of the boy, and the miserable failure of the man. He heard again the mother's pleading that he be content at home, but there will be enough for all, but no, he thought, in his pride, there are too many mouths already, and so, one day he slipped away full of hope in his success, which partially lulled the heart's cry for home.

As the years rolled on amid life's struggles, the homesickness became fainter and fainter; still there were moments when the longing to see the dear ones once more came with renewed bitterness.

Fortune shined him, and he ceased to write home when there was no good news to tell. He would wait; and so for thirty years he plodded on. Then the desire to return overcame him,
and, part working his way, and part tramping it, he drew nearer and nearer the goal he sought.

"Surely there was an old landmark There was something strangely familiar about the old wooden trough."

He sniffed the air most gayly, and stepped briskly forward. The storm had ceased, and the snow, now freezing, crunched sharply beneath his quick tread.

"There is the old post office," and he wonders if Silas Green is still there and if he has forgotten the time that he put snuff in the pasteboard box that held the mail. He laughed aloud almost as gleefully as in the years gone by when he and his fellow conspirators watched from safe quarters
the working of the snuff.

The village school was just out, and as the children trooped noisily past him, some pausing to eye the stranger,
he smiled to himself at the thought:

"Perhaps my little nephews and nieces are among them."

The church—he paused and doffed his hat, his lips moving slowly as if united to the words. "They will be done," he repeated. Then, as if realizing for the first time the deep importance of what he uttered, he cried out:
"Oh, Heaven, have mercy!"

Here and there a light began to twinkle through the village.

Suddenly his pulse almost ceased to beat, then throbbed so wildly that he felt as if he should choke. His step grew unsteady and he faltered for the first time since he turned his face eastward.

The little homestead was before him.
The twilight deepened, but no ray of light shone out from the closed windows, clear for he was gazing at the wooden shutters and was reassured.

Trembling with suppressed excitement and eagerness, he opened the gate and went up the narrow garden path, falling to notice that it was overgrown with weeds.

He tried to ring the front doorbell and announce himself as a friend of the absent one.

The bell vibrated shrilly on the still air. He waited for the coming footsteps, five, ten minutes, and then again he awoke the echoes with the bell's sound, for he was growing impatient now that it was so near.

"They are at the back of the house and have not heard the ring," he finally reasoned, smiling at himself for not having thought of this solution before, as he turned his steps in the direction of the back door.

He tried the latch, but it did not yield to his touch; then he knocked with his knuckles, but still no one came.

At last, with a sickening numbness tugging at his heart, he thumped lustily upon the unyielding wood, but he waited anxiously, but not a sound disturbed the stillness.

Once more he tried, braving his hand in the attempt, when suddenly,
like a flash, it came to him that the door was nailed up! Reeling, he staggered back a few steps.

This, after all those weary miles!
Not there was some mistake. They had gone away on a visit and would be back again, perhaps tomorrow. How would inquire in the village. How foolish of him not to have done so before, but he felt so sure.

Turning, he moved slowly off, ever and anon glancing back at the doorman, until, somehow, the earth and the heavens seemed meeting and he felt a senseless heap upon the snow-strewn ground.

"Was he dreaming, or did some one say 'My Uncle Charley'?"

Slowly he opened his eyes and saw a slight, gleaming figure, standing talking to a motherly-looking woman, who vanished precipitately on becoming aware that the sick gentleman was stirring. Two blue eyes, strangely like his own, were turned full upon him. He essayed to speak, but the words died upon his lips. "Surely it was his sister Lenie who stood before him. A little hand gently stroked his own, as his sister's voice said,

"You feel better, don't you, dear?
and you'll drink this nice broth—I made it myself."

It can't be Lenie, for of course she has grown old like him, yet how like the young sister he remembered.

Passively he slipped the broth, then,
as the young girl, with a nod of approval removed the empty bowl, he asked:

"Who are you?"

"Holding up a warning finger the girl answered:

"If you'll promise to be real good
and not ask any more questions today, I will tell you. You have been very ill, and the doctor says you must be kept quiet."

As he nodded acquiescence she continued:

"My name is Charlotte Darnley, but I am called Charley for short, and partly because, if I had been a boy,
I would have been christened Charley after an uncle of mine," then adding,
"There, now, mind you keep your word," with a nod and a smile, she slipped out of the room.

"Charley—my niece! the sick man murmured, lingering tenderly over the name niece.

Had the empty house and his shattered hopes been a dream? Then the bonds on the wall paper and his thoughts had seemed to nod at him and repeat the words:

"I'm your little niece, Uncle Charley."

A month had slipped by and the sick man was once again able to be up and about. He had again the history of the old homestead. Of how the loving mother had died years before, his name upon her lips. Then the mortgage on the homestead had been foreclosed and the old place sold to the then owner, who was away for the winter. His brother, Dick, who died before he had married, had lived in the man, and Lenie, the young sister he had loved so dearly, had married and gone to a distant city to live. For years hers had been a happy home, adorned only by the memory of that absent brother she could never forget.

Then came the day when she stood alone, save for the young girl who called her mother. For a few years she bravely fought the battle of life,
then her tired hands folded themselves to rest. And so the girl, Charley, and her mother were the last of their race.

And this man, who had lived so long in the past, how he had grown to love Charley's bonnie face—the one link to his past.

He had learned of how, when he was found lying on the ground in a dead swoon, and they had discovered what he was by some papers in his pocket, and he had learned of how he had grown to love Charley's bonnie face—the
one link to his past.

Refreshments, consisting of candy,
fruit and crackers were served through the kindness of Miss Mildred DeBar.

The meeting closed with a scripture reading and prayer by the pastor and a song by the entire class.

TRIBOLITE EXCURSION.

The Natural History committee of the Milton Educational society has arranged for a second excursion to the Tribolite quarry at Braintree, on account of the widespread interest shown in the trip made to that locality last fall. The party will meet in Quincy Square at half past two this afternoon, being joined there by another party from the Appalachian Mountain club. All persons interested, irrespective of membership in either of the organizations named, will be welcomed. W. L. W. Field will lead the excursion.

K. of C. BALL.

The annual Easter Monday concert and ball of Quincy Council, Knights of Columbus was held Monday evening at Music hall and was a pronounced social success in every way. The attendance was fully as large as in previous years. The music entrancing and the gowns worn by the ladies were in many cases exquisite.

The guests of the evening included
Mayor Eugene B. Stone, Rev. John J.
Cox and Rev. Patrick J. Scannell.
St. John's church, Rev. John P. Coffey of the Sacred Heart church of Atlantic, Charles J. McGilgarry, Grand Knight of Ave Maria council of West
Quincy, Grand Knight, Edward V.
Hoffmann of Braintree, Council and Grand Knight Thomas White of Weymouth council.

The reception committee were distinguished by blue colored sash across the shirt front. This committee was headed by Past Grand Knight John J. Cuniff, who with his efficient committee was very active in the performance of their duties, and to them is due much of the evening's pleasures enjoyed by the participants. Assisting Past Grand Knight Cuniff was,
Hon. William T. Shea, P. G. K., John
W. McAnarney, P. G. K., Lawrence W.
Lyons, P. G. K., Edward J. Murphy, P.
G. K., James F. Burke, P. G. K., Peter J. Cahill, P. G. K., Dr. George M. Shehan, William T. Moran, Edward J.

Sweeney, Eugene W. O'Connor, Bernard Cullen, John A. Mahoney, Ed-rick W. Driscoll, Arthur Murphy, M. J.
L. Kennedy, Robert E. Foy, John P.
Bruton.

The ball proper opened with a grand march which was participated in by seventy-five couples. It was led by Grand Knight Edward B. Barrett and Mrs. Barrett who looked particularly charming in a handsome tunic of pink lace embroidered with silver and silver fringe, over white satin. She also wore a handsome corsage bouquet of violets in the centre of which was a magnificent rose.

Then came Deputy Grand Knight
Michael T. Walsh and Miss Carroll, of South Wingham who wore a handsome pink messaline with lace trimmings.

Other couples immediately following were Assistant Floor Director, Richard A. Cole and Mrs. Cole, John
A. McGowan and Mrs. McGowan,
Grand Knight, Charles J. McGilgarry,
Edward V. Hoffmann and Mrs. Hoffmann, Grand Knight, Thomas White and Mrs. White, Past Grand Knight, John J. Cuniff and Mrs. Cuniff, Ex-
Mayor William T. Shea and Miss Lyons, Michael T. Sullivan, Treasurer of Quincy Council and Mrs. Sullivan, Charles C. Hearn, President of the Board of Trade and Mrs. Hearn and others of the several committees and participants.

The march was very prettily executed and when the sixteen front came down the hall, there was a spontaneous outburst of well merited applause. The march over, general dancing was in order until 2 o'clock at which time special cars were in waiting for all points.

FAREWELL TO ORGANIST.

Madame Morey, who has been organist at Bethany church for many years finished her term of service Easter Sunday. It is with feelings of regret her friends accept her resignation.

Madame Morey spoke a few words of farewell at the close of the Sunday school concert. She said "I have been with you so long, your faces are familiar to me and I have grown attached to Quincy and Quincy people.
There is always a welcome at meeting and a parting greeting, we have come to the end of our journey. I have always rejoiced in your joys and sympathized in your sorrows. The song and the word, I have always tried to interpret faithfully and to the glory of God. We would follow our Master, feeling we could choose no better way, and we realize this Easter day His life of service and sacrifice.
May our hearts continue to praise Him with increasing happy songs, and may we all learn the lesson of love to each other and to the world. There is always a welcome at meeting and a parting greeting, we have come to the end of our journey. I have always rejoiced in your joys and sympathized in your sorrows. The
song and the word, I have always
tried to interpret faithfully and to the glory of God. We would follow our
Master, feeling we could choose no bet-

It is a handsome oak dossal frame the top of which is encased in a hand carved with brass rods extending from the sides of the frame from which to hang the riddels.

The white plush dossal and riddels finished with white silk fringe are a gift from the Altar Guild. Much admiration has been expressed in regard to these beautiful gifts which have added much to the sanctuary and to the church as a whole.

Another gift of the Altar Guild used for the first time on Sunday was a white silk stole, the beautiful embroidery on the ends, being the handwork of Mrs. Thomas L. Bramhall nee Flood of Cambridge a former president of the Altar Guild.

BIRTHDAY OBSERVANCE.

Lucile, age 3 and Louis age 5, children of Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. O'Malley of Botolph street observed their birthdays Sunday afternoon in a very fitting manner. Their little friends were invited for 3 o'clock.

The dining room table looked very pretty with the birthday cake and the huge pile of renowned fame upon it. The four and twenty black birds were soon seen by the bright eyes and when the pie was cut each child was surprised to find a box of bonbons in his place.

In this instance the contents were edible but not the bonbons being made of flour and the usual ingredients necessary for a pie, ice cream and cake were served and delicious candles as well, after which the little folks retired to the parlor where an hour was pleasantly spent reciting pieces, singing songs, and telling stories after which they went home all wishing Lucile and Louis many more happy birthdays.

A TRIBUTE.

The April 6th Musical American under the heading of Boston's Musical Events of Week has a pleasant word of praise for our townsman John D. Buckingham as follows:

J. D. Buckingham, for many years of the faculty of the New England Conservatory of Music, now teaching privately, with his studio at Stearns street, and his duties as director of music at Woodward Institute, Quincy, leads a busy life. His class numbers about fifty members. The chorus of 150 girls at the institute is justly noted.

Where and under whom people of note were educated is always of interest. Among Mr. Buckingham's pupils have been Dr. A. B. Vogt, conductor of the famous Mendelssohn choir of Toronto; Alvah Gould Salmon, the noted lecturer on Russian music; Gertrude Renshaw of the Bayreuth performances; Margaret Rich, of the Metropolitan Opera. In aid of the Day Nursery, who studied with Mr. Buckingham, are F. The evening opened with vocal solos by Mrs. James Perkins, accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Mary Chandler West. In the absence of the president and vice president, the principal, David H. Goodspeed presided.

Following the secretary's report by Mrs. Barstow, Frank A. Page was appointed to fill the vacancy on the Art Committee caused by the resignation of Frank P. Waterhouse.

A nominating committee was elected consisting of Mrs. O. A. Blaisdell, Mrs. Charles B. Hall, Mrs. Alfred H. Richards, Mrs. Frank Perry and J. Arthur Favreau.

A communication was received from the Whatsoever Circle of King's Daughters requesting the association to change its night of meeting as it conflicted with that of the Circle. The matter was voted by the association.

It was voted by the association that the City Council be petitioned to grant the old Wollaston school lot as a public park and playground for Ward Five.

Following questions to the speakers the meeting adjourned for refreshments served by a committee consisting of Mrs. Charles L. Seavoy, Mrs. James Palmer, Mrs. George

RIGHTS OF WOMAN.

The Rights of Women, what are they? The Right to labor, love and pray; The Right to weep with those that weep; The Right to wake when others sleep.

The Right to dry the falling tear; The Right to quell the rising fear; The Right to smooth the brow of care. And whisper comfort in despair.

The Right to watch the parting breath; To soothe and cheer the bed of death; The Right, when earthly hopes all fail, To point to that within the Veil.

The Right the wanderer to reclaim; And win the lost from paths of shame; The Right to comfort and to bless; The widow and the fatherless!

The Right the little ones to guide; In simple faith, to Him who died; To bless and cheer their youthful days; To bless and cheer their youthful days.

The Right the intellect to train; And guide the soul to noble aim; To teach it to rise above earth's toys, And wing its flights to heavenly joys.

The Right to live for those we love; The Right to die, that love to prove; The Right to brighten earthly homes, With pleasant smiles and gentle tones.

Are these thy Rights? Then use them well. Their holy influence none can tell. If these are thine, why ask for more? Are these enough to answer for?

Those have thy Rights? Then murmur not. That woman's mission is thy lot. Improve the talents God has given, Life's duties done—thy rest in Heaven.

—Lawrence.

WINNING THE PRIZE.
When Charlton realized that he had slipped on the greasy road and that the taxi-cab could not possibly pull up in time, his mind flashed from his unfinished drawing to the fact that, if injured, he would be alone in the house and tended by comparatively strangers. For an instant, even he half hoped that the worst would happen. Life had not been so happy with him of late that he valued it overmuch.

But fate willed otherwise; and now, at the price of minor internal injuries and a broken right arm, he lay practically helpless, rejoicing almost with irritation the jovial features of his friend Sibley, who sat beside the bed.

"Doctor not here yet? He's always late!" "Oh, he'll be along soon, I expect. Don't worry, old chap. You mustn't worry about anything at all."

"How can I help it?" "You're thinking about those plans still? Or, perhaps—?" Herbert Sibley hesitated.

"Yes, about the plans," agreed Charlton hastily, after a moment's pause. "It's a piece of luck, isn't it?" He laughed resentfully. "Here am I on my back, can't draw a stroke, and those drawings finished, all but one day's work."

"Why not send them in as they are, with your rough notes?" "Not a bit of good," declared Charlton, testily. "He lay gazing at the unfinished drawing to the fact that, if injured, he would be alone in the house and tended by comparatively strangers. For an instant, even he half hoped that the worst would happen. Life had not been so happy with him of late that he valued it overmuch."

Having turned vast swampy watersheds into a naked street gutter by cutting off forests about the headwaters of streams, we are bound to have bad floods for many years.

While Dad and Ma in the flooded districts are having a time of anxious worry, the kids have the ecstatic joy of navigating the parlor in the wash tub.

The Framingham Tribune makes a suggestion which is valid in Quincy when it says: "Don't forget your duty to your community. Front yards, back yards, and side yards should be cleaned, raked, spaded, sodded, and planted." Now is the appointed time.

LIQUOR PERMITS.

The question was again before the City Council this week as to how many permits should be granted to bring into, and deliver liquor in our city. Each year the people vote, yet it is not difficult to get all the liquor one wants as the records last year show 10 gallons for every man, woman and child.

We are glad some of the applicants were turned down. While not advocating giving any one express company the monopoly we would restrict the permit as far as possible, and keep watch over the business done.

If our city is willing, as it is, to do without the money for liquor licenses, and thus prohibit the sale of liquor by those who would be willing to pay well for the privilege, it must be evident to the dullest comprehension that it should not allow the sale by the kitchen her roomed out, and evaders of the will of the city. The fact that the citizens of the city turn over to their executive officers the enforcement of these laws does not mean for a single moment that they have dismissed the subject from their minds or are indifferent to these matters. As a matter of fact many of our best citizens are constantly alert to the conditions as was shown at the Council meeting and are ready to commend or criticize as occasion calls for. We hope our officials will realize this for it is surely a fact, and they may go about their duties knowing that the people of the city, this strong force for righteousness and clean administration.

QUINCY ASSOCIATED CHARITIES.

The first regular meeting of the Associated Charities since the election of the general secretary was held at the Women's Club house Tuesday afternoon. The following letter was read: Mrs. Wilson Marsh, Clerk of the Associated Charities, City of Quincy: My Dear Mrs. Marsh: I have, as you know, passed on to other hands the place which I have held in the Quincy schools. One by one I have been giving up the activities that have been mine in city and in county, in order that I may be free to take up my duties in the new place not later than June 1, come now to the last office, and one from which I am very reluctant to part. My duty, however, is clear. So I tender here with my resignation as President of the Associated Charities, to take effect not later than May 21st, 1912.

My decision in this matter, I have suggested, has not been reached hastily and must be regarded as absolute. I make it not for my own sake, but for the sake of the society. The one who is to follow me will have to make plans for next season, and it is very necessary that these plans be made before the summer vacation. The month of June will give little enough time for this.

In laying down the office with which you have honored me, I do not hereby sever my connection with the society. Whether you do or do not retain my name on your membership roll, you shall retain my interest and my affection, for these were given to be perpetual.

To all my fellow-workers, as loyal and congenial a band of workers as man has ever known, I offer the full measure of my appreciation, an appreciation too deep for words. Most respectfully and sincerely yours, James D. Howlett.

Quincy, April 16, 1912. The Association upon motion of Euphrat F. Claflin accepted with great regret the resignation of Mr. Howlett, with deep appreciation of his interest in and service to the society. An executive committee was appointed, a part of its duties being to secure a new president.

Miss Purchase, the new secretary, reported a busy two weeks, having to make over 45 calls. Has written over 50 letters and has the names of 10 families referred to her, involving problems of interin and because of accident, tuberculosis, care of children, support of widows, etc., etc. These were referred to her by different agencies, societies and individuals. She told the Association that she stands ready to take up any and every hour of employment for working men. The trades union look after the best interest of the tolling masses, its principles respond to every meritorious cause, making men of cowards and even heroes of brave men. You have done wonders in this time of natural miracles, conflicting as this statement may be seen. We must do our share in the great common uplift in order to bring about the firm establishment of freedom, liberty, union and brotherhood. Mr. Gompers was loudly applauded at the conclusion of his remarks.

The next speaker was Carl Legien, the German Labor leader. Herr Legien delivered his address in German, owing to the fact that he is unable to speak English. His remarks took about fifteen minutes. The European was given thunderous applause at the beginning and end of his speech and was also presented with delegate's badge by Chairman Duncan.

Following the remarks in German, Herr Legien's secretary arose and gave the contents of the speech in English. In part it was as follows: "I have done wonders in this time of natural miracles, conflicting as this statement may be seen. We must do our share in the great common uplift in order to bring about the firm establishment of freedom, liberty, union and brotherhood. Mr. Gompers was loudly applauded at the conclusion of his remarks."

Other information. Signed. Address. Date. She is willing to investigate for other societies and give all advice and assistance possible to help them continue their care of families in which they may be interested.

The meeting adjourned to visit the Associated Charities office in the Women's clubhouse which is most attractive. It is hoped the telephone may soon be installed and the office may be of more and more service to the people of Quincy. Miss Purchase has the assistance of two volunteer workers, one a stenographer, two days in the week. Let us co-operate in making this a center of social service to our city.

GRANITE CUTTERS' MEETING.

Wednesday was red letter day of the convention being held in Quincy this week by the Granite Cutters' International union, having present, two of the world's great labor leaders, Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, and Hon. Carl Legien, President of the German Trades Union, and General Secretary of the International Secretariat, and who is also a member of the German Reichstag.

The gallery of Hibernian hall, on Franklin street, was thrown open to the public when the convention of the Granite Cutters' International Association of America was called to order at 10 o'clock by secretary-treasurer James Duncan, who is also vice-president of the American Federation of Labor. A large German flag, linked with the stars and stripes, played a conspicuous part in the decorations of the platform. Seated on the platform, in addition to chairman of the convention Duncan, were Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, Herr Carl Legien, a member of the German Reichstag, and General Secretary of the International Secretariat, the World's council of labor organizations, his secretary, Albert Baumeister, who is also president of the Cooks', Waiters', and Restaurant Employees' Union of Germany and of the international branch of Europe, and James Garvey, of Millford, Mass., secretary of the convention.

In introducing the first speaker Mr. Duncan pronounced an encomium on Samuel Gompers that was the cause for continued applause and after the ovation had subsided and a badge worn by members of the convention been pinned on him by chairman Duncan, the great labor leader proceeded to deliver his eloquent and powerful address, which consumed a period of forty minutes. In his exordium, Mr. Gompers stated that he esteemed it a pleasure to be present at the convention, but regretted that he felt at a loss to speak with effect upon organized labor, owing to the fact that the Granite Cutters were so well organized. Mr. Gompers easily commanded the attention of his hearers and among other things said:

"I firmly believe that in all our dealings we should have recourse to facts and because such facts may at times apply to certain individuals, we should not ignore facts. Your organization has always had in its secretary-treasurer, a man who is in itself an executive head, who is ready at all times to carry out any problem in the interest of his fellow associates. I cannot let this occasion go without paying my respects to Mr. March, that 'old a better man never lived. Always desirous of helping his fellow citizens, never relinquishing any worthy cause which he had espoused, he laid the foundation of this great structure which you have built, and I am sure that he will be remembered by all who have shared in the work of the Granite Cutters."

Referring his remarks to chairman Duncan, president Gompers added "I would not utter one word concerning the past, but I would like to mention of what he had not been opposed by men in his own organization whose views and sentiments were far different than his own. You cannot fail to recognize his sterling qualities and his worth alone has forced us to acknowledge that ability, personality, and loyalty are to be found in no man in greater measure than they are in your present General Secretary 'Jim' Duncan. When he was elected vice-president of the American Federation of Labor, he did not represent the Granite Cutters, except as he represented the world, but as a delegate to the Baltimore convention. That council elected him over a large field of delegates who represented international unions. He was elected by unanimous vote as a delegate to the convention at Budapest, Germany, last year, on the occasion of the international secretariat. These things do not count ordinarily for they are results of proper recognition exercised by fellow workers who see in such a man an ideal leader. For four months he performed all the duties and functions of the president while the latter was ill and during that time he put himself in a able and efficient hand. Now know him better than you, but I take second place to no man in declaring that a man never showed himself possessed of a thorough knowledge of his work or truer to his trust and the worth placed in him than has been shown by him. Continuing at length upon the conditions of the day, Mr. Gompers declared that "men of stout hearts and big minds must deal with the problems of the day." Confiding his remarks to the delegates, the speaker said, "You have shown wonderful self control. That you have done so without frequent convention is an evidence of this fact and the progress that you have made thus far will go a long way in making for the proper development of social conditions, regardless of their limitations."

Mr. Gompers said that he believed 32 years was too long a period to go for a labor leader and that he believed that one he held at least every ten years. He touched briefly upon dues in the organization of the effect an increase in them would have, saying, "Remember that any money you may have contributed from time to time has aided a hundred fold in the shaping of wages, employment and hour of employment for working men. The trades union look after the best interest of the tolling masses, its principles respond to every meritorious cause, making men of cowards and even heroes of brave men. You have done wonders in this time of natural miracles, conflicting as this statement may be seen. We must do our share in the great common uplift in order to bring about the firm establishment of freedom, liberty, union and brotherhood. Mr. Gompers was loudly applauded at the conclusion of his remarks."

The next speaker was Carl Legien, the German Labor leader. Herr Legien delivered his address in German, owing to the fact that he is unable to speak English. His remarks took about fifteen minutes. The European was given thunderous applause at the beginning and end of his speech and was also presented with delegate's badge by Chairman Duncan.

greatest efforts, in order to obtain a thorough knowledge of labor dealings in the United States and thus be able to make a comparison of them with those in my own country. The fight of labor organizations is going on in the whole world and the great obstacles are being daily encountered. The German leader then went on to pay a tribute to Mr. Gompers and Mr. Duncan, whom he thanked for coming to the boat which conveyed him from Europe, in order that he might safely land in the United States. Herr Legien then spoke of the ships of Europe and added that the greatest precautions are taken by those in charge of crafts for the preservation of human safety and life and described any lack on the part of those who would not be alert to the welfare of humanity. Continuing he said "Although the difficulties are met with by labor organizations are greater in this country than in any other, the aims and the whole are different, the aim and goal of labor organizations are the same throughout the world. Labor organizations ought to have great influence and their greatest good can often be accomplished through proper legislation. In Germany we have 110 members of the labor party out of 397 deputies. No law is too good for the working people."

He congratulated Americans in having the eight-hour law and said that Granite Cutters in Germany enjoy the same privilege. Concluding he said "All labor organizations in Germany pay tribute to you toward them and it affords me great pleasure to draw my remarks to a close by conveying to you the best wishes of success from the laboring men of my own country."

Chairman Duncan then called upon Albert Baumeister to make a few remarks and presented him with a badge. He too was given a great ovation. He said that he was able to conduct in seven languages. He talked of the conditions in Europe and felt that much more could not be added to what had already been said. He said he read American magazines and literature and had acquired practically all his knowledge of labor organizations from them. He said that greater difficulties were to be met with in this country than in Europe and congratulated the Granite Cutters on their splendid organization. He spoke of the different nationalities in the Granite Cutters and the terrible state of conditions that had come under his observation while in this city and added that the proper movement on the part of labor men would eventually bring a stop to employees' dissimulating conditions and bringing foreigners into this country to take the place of the skilled American workmen. He also said that the Granite Cutters would soon set up in this country the standard set up in this country and concluded by saying that his visit in company with Herr Legien was bound to be productive of great good.

William O'Brien, an ex-sheriff of New York city and a delegate to the convention, then spoke from the floor when the speaker concluded. He thanked the distinguished guests for coming to what he termed an "isolated spot" where there was no chance to return the favor by serving the usual refreshment that attended a convention.

He deplored the lack of dryness and other unfavorable obstacles noticeable in this city and then moved that a rising vote of thanks be given to the guests. The motion was adopted before chairman Duncan had a chance to put it to a vote. The gathering broke up shortly before noon and repaired to the First Church, where the photographer took a picture of all the delegates and guests. After luncheon the convention resumed to discuss the by-laws and the meeting adjourned shortly before 9 o'clock.

RAND CLASS LADIES' NIGHT.

Ladies' night was observed by the Rand class of the Wollaston Baptist church in the chapel, Monday evening, a large number of the young men and their fair companions being present.

The evening opened with selections an orchestra composed of Max O. Pinkham, Charles Sayward, Ernest Pietsch, Roger Bates, and Miss Dorothy Sayward.

Although disappointed by a Boston newspaper cartoonist who was to have given an illustrated talk, those present were amply repaid with a talk by Arthur Sparrow, teacher of the class.

Mr. Sparrow had a never ending fund of stories and anecdotes and kept the audience in smiles and laughter a good part of the time.

Two humorous readings 'Ann and the boys' and 'The boy and the dog' were contributed effectively by S. F. Kimball of Boston and were well received. Cornet solos by Roger Bates found favor and the evening closed with selections by the orchestra.

TO FORM MEN'S CLUB.

A dozen or more men of First church met Tuesday evening in the chapel to discuss the matter of organizing a men's club. There was an enthusiastic response. Rev. A. L. Hudson pastor of the church was prepared with data from many similar clubs and the facts presented appealed to those present.

The men of the church will probably be invited to meet at an early date for a first church men's club, to organize this spring so as to be ready for meetings next fall. The club will be similar to other clubs in the city, holding monthly meetings, with a supper, speakers, etc., and will doubtless prove popular in the social life of this old church.

CHILDREN'S PARTY.

The Quincy Women's club house was the scene of a delightful children's party Saturday afternoon and from 2.30 until 4.30 it was a merry time for the little folks.

Mrs. Edward B. Marsh chairman of the program committee under whose auspices the party was given proved a charming hostess to the children and with her able assistants made it a festivity long to be remembered by them. For many of the little tots it was their first real party.

The dolls' reception and games were in charge of Mrs. Walter Burke and Miss Emily Wainwright. Dolls of all descriptions from small infants dressed in long clothes to life size French dolls, exquisitely dressed, even Dinah and the Teddy bears were there.

A number of games including - put birds furnished no end of amusement. The program was as follows:

Mrs. Walter S. Pinkham had charge of the dancing which began with nearly a hundred children in a grand march. Mrs. Edward Everett Hayward of Newton was at the piano. The program was: march, two step, caprice, waltz, barn dance, Polka, Spanish waltz, dolls' march and the Duchess. After refreshments dancing was resumed with the following program: Spanish waltz, barn dance and the Boston.

Mrs. Eben W. Sheppard looked after a dolls' march which gave the little ones lots of enjoyment. At the close of the march, Mrs. Burke arranged a "Grand splash" of peanuts and "kisses" which was true to its name. Mrs. Sheppard and Mrs. Herbert J. Gurney were at the frappe table, those assisting Mrs. Marsh in the serving of frappe and delicious home made cake were Mrs. William B. Nichols, Mrs. Francis Abbe, Mrs. Oscar A. Blaisdell, Mrs. E. Wilson Blake, Mrs. Joseph K. Barber, Mrs. G. B. Bates, Mrs. Ernest V. Pitts and Mrs. George H. Ryder.

QUINCY WOMEN'S CLUB.

The club session is fast drawing to a close only two more meetings being scheduled for the Quincy Women's club, that of April 23, a loan exhibit social by the Art Committee and on May 14 the annual meeting.

There was a largely attended meeting of the class in parliamentary law at the clubhouse Tuesday evening. Another meeting will be held this month on April 30, at 10.30 A. M. Members are taking up the 1912-1913 membership tickets so rapidly that it looks as though few intended to drop out this year. The waiting list steadily grows longer but the prospect of becoming a club member remains doubtful as the membership is limited to 350. Many hope there will be an enlargement if the waiting list continues to grow.

Mrs. John W. Sanborn, chairman of the Education committee has prepared what is in hand for the annual children's festival at Quincy Music hall on April 27. May baskets are being made and the entertainment arranged for. There is great demand for tickets as usual and the hall will be taxed to accommodate.

DEMOCRATIC CITY COMMITTEE.

A meeting of the Democratic City committee was held at their headquarters, 17 Temple street, Monday evening. There was a large attendance and many plans were formulated in the interests of the organization. The principal business was confined to the election of officers. Ex-confederate John J. Smith could not be present owing to a cold. The committee was organized for a third term, and Alfred J. Le Croix was elected to the position. Thomas Griffin was chosen vice-president; William Kelly secretary; and Charles C. McCue was re-elected treasurer.

One of the new officers are prominent in the city. The committee has frequently taken active parts in the work of the Democratic party. Considerable routine business was also transacted and preparations made to form a large Democratic organization.

DEESTRICT SKULE.

Diverging from their time honored custom of holding an annual minstrel show, members of the Copeland club gave an entertainment and dance at St. Mary's hall, Tuesday evening which was as much more of a success than all their previous functions.

The entertainment was furnished by the St. John's Dramatic club and an audience which taxed the hall to its capacity "as treated to a splendid production of 'The Deestrick Skule,' given under direction of Andrew J. Dinegan.

From beginning to end, the play kept the audience in a continual state of laughter. Every one in the cast presented his or her part in a manner that savored of professional ability. Jokes of a wide variety were sprung and many West Quincy residents were made targets for such jests.

Mrs. Walter S. Pinkham had charge of the dancing which began with nearly a hundred children in a grand march. Mrs. Edward Everett Hayward of Newton was at the piano. The program was: march, two step, caprice, waltz, barn dance, Polka, Spanish waltz, dolls' march and the Duchess. WHEN TO GO FISHING.

When the worms creep in the water,
And the warm crops begin to grow,
And the birds come to sing
Around the brook and the pond,
When the frosts start to holler,
And the turtles come in sight,
Then the season opens,
And the fish begin to bite.
Do not stop in Boston, where it's too
In the shade,
But take the train and beat it
For dear old North Belgrade.

The above poem was written by a Quincy man at Belgrade Lakes in July last year when the temperature in Boston was 107. He was enjoying cool breezes under the pine trees.

Notes and Comments.

—At Cincinnati they are getting $30 a ton for hay, the highest price known since Civil war days. Here is another reason why the automobile is gaining increasing popularity in Cincinnati.

—Few people realize the importance of the motion picture business in our every day life. During the present fiscal year the American exports and imports of motion pictures will amount to about 75,000,000 feet in length, or sufficient to reach more than half way round the world.—Medford Mercury.

—A prominent citizen of Waltham advises that the people take pains not to scatter paper and rubbish in the streets and public places and that they also take an interest in keeping the city clean by picking up waste material when they find it convenient to do so. The main thing is to exercise care and cleanliness that will help to make the city attractive and healthy says the Waltham Free Press.

—A kindergarten school had been the scene of a burglary. When the pupils assembled in the morning the teacher asked them to pray that the burglar might be caught, whereupon one of the children rose and said: "I know who did it. It was my father. I saw him blacken his face, and I had to show him the way." An investigation proved that the child's words were true and the man was arrested.

—A newspaper has a right to join in a moral crusade without the risk of a libel suit. The Newcastle, (Ind.) Courier published an article denouncing Saturday night five-cent dance halls as immoral. A dance-hall owner brought an action for libel. Judge Jackson, of Newcastle, decided that a newspaper cannot be convicted of libel when it is engaged in a crusade for the betterment of the morals of a community.—Exchange.

—A wholesome lesson in respecting public property was given the other day by a judge in San Francisco to a man who had been caught tampering with the fire alarm. The man was facing the fine white wall in the corridor, rubbing his foot on the surface as he stood with his back to the wall. Instead of firing the man or sending him to jail, he sentenced him to clean off the grime he had rubbed in. It took two hours of hard work under the vigilant eye of an officer, and the time was well spent.—Milford Gazette.

—Over $50,000 in duty were collected recently at New York on 6,000 tons of potatoes, and for the past few weeks the movement of potatoes to this country from abroad has been very extensive. Boston alone has received nearly one million bushels of this staple, and on account of the crop shortage in this country they found a ready sale. It is not often that potatoes have to be imported, and the presence of a protective tariff does not seem necessary. The home producer certainly does not need protection at this time.—Old Colony Memorial.

—"You will never find a busy man meddling with other people's business, nor one who is well versed in general science. A well stored mind has the room for gossip, but has no room for a busy man's science for the time being. Education and business preoccupy and lift humanity above such low and degrading depravity. It is the idler who becomes the gossip peddler. His brain is the veritable workshop of the devil. Backbiting, slandering, gossiping, and the like are members of busy, intelligent minds."—Wellesley Townsman.

—Postmaster-General Hitchcock has certainly "put the post office department on a business basis" and enforced economies and reforms. The vulnerable point in his work is that some of the economy has been at the expense of service. The little ex-ecutive of omitting the back-stamp on letters, has saved time and money, but it has made it impossible to keep the time of receipt of letters which lack that once valuable identification. Omission of the return card for registered letters, except upon request, has been a vexation, and probably a loss to many.—Boston Record.

—When a motor car owner from another State comes into Massachusetts and his car is equipped with an ordinary horn he may get in trouble if the Bay State Solons cling to the idea of compelling owners of cars to use special sirens that make "an abrupt and warning sound." There should be national laws for autos. It is absurd, expensive and a nuisance for owners and chauffeurs to have one set of rules prevalent in one State and perhaps another set in effect a few miles away in the State next by. An autist who travels much will presently need to carry his own machine shop and law department in his hand wherever he goes.—Brookline Enterprise.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CATHOLIC

CITY COUNCIL.

Discussion on the granting of permits to transport liquor and on the annual appropriation order prolonged Monday night's meeting of the City Council to near the hour of midnight. The Committee on Licenses had reported orders granting 21 permits to transport liquor. These were acted upon separately and when they were all through fourteen had been granted. Some had been rejected and still others had been laid on the table. It took therefore as if the limit had been reached and that the applications now pending would have a slim chance of getting by.

The discussion on the budget was a long one. The report of the Finance Committee made some changes in the amounts as mentioned in the new budget introduced at the special meeting. The Committee had increased some of the items and decreased others. The total however as recommended was $1,786 in excess of the sum named in the order as offered by Councilman Studley. During the discussion the amount for pay of permanent men of the Police Department was increased from $30,710 as recommended by the committee to $32,246 as mentioned in the order as introduced. An effort was made to suspend the rules that the order might be passed but the motion to suspend the rules failed to receive the necessary two-thirds vote. Councilmen Bryant and Shea were present at the meeting and were invited to, and accepted seats on the platform with President Hobbs. Councilman Thompson was the only absent member.

A communication was received from the Quincy Parents' and Teachers' association asking that the hall in the Quincy school be completed. To Committee on Public Buildings. A communication from the Mayor appointing Charles R. Sherman as assistant assessor was confirmed. A communication was received from the Quincy Parents' and Teachers' association protesting against the granting of liquor permits to John Callahan, John Maloney and the Adams express. On the former the communication said that Callahan claimed but 23 per cent of his express business was liquor while upon good authority it was understood that he transported from 90 to 100 per cent liquor. John Maloney and the Adams express were objected to because they failed to make their daily reports. The communication was laid on the table. The Wollaston Parents' and Teachers' association petitioned for the use of the old Wollaston school lot as a playground. Referred to the Committee on Public Buildings.

A communication was received from the City Auditor giving notice of a deficit in the 1911 Board of Health appropriation of $607.42. Referred to Finance Committee. A communication was received from the School Committee recommending that the plans for the Wollaston building be used as the plans for the 27th Adams building. To Committee on Public Buildings.

A communication was received from the Mayor appointing David Frazer as a public weigher and Leo Moran as a constable. Confirmed. From the Mayor appointing the following election officers to fill vacancies. John A. Olsen as deputy inspector Ward One precinct one. James R. McCormick as clerk Ward One precinct one. Laurence H. Abbott as deputy clerk Ward Four, precinct one. A. Merton Turner as deputy inspector Ward Four, precinct one. Albert C. Farnham as Deputy Inspector Ward Four, precinct one. Frank Jenkins as inspector Ward Six, precinct one.

Councilman Mahoney presented a petition for laying out Nelson street. To Street Committee. Councilman Barker presented a petition to accept Norfolk street. To Street Committee. The Vigilant eye of an officer and the time was well spent.—Milford Gazette.

A number of petitions for minor licenses were received and referred. A petition of the Town River Yacht club to keep and sell gasoline was laid on the table. A petition to accept Fairmount way was referred to the Street Committee. Petitions of the Bay State St. Ry. Co. and Telephone Co. for attachments were granted.

A petition to establish a grade on Elm avenue and place the car tracks in a reserved space was referred to the Street Committee. An application for a junk license was admitted under suspension of the rules.

The Finance Committee reported several orders appointing sidewalk assessments. Adopted. The Committee on Public Buildings reported a slight amendment to the order for $666.02 for the new Wollaston school, making the order read to meet deficit bills. Referred to Finance Committee.

The Committee on Public Buildings reported no legislation necessary on the petition to enlarge City Hall by building a so-called wart on the rear of the present building. The Committee on Licenses reported orders granting the following permits to transport liquor:—W. F. Loud & Son, N. Diphonilo, Andrews Express, Peter Gaudin, C. Hazleton, Jose Mercurio, John Callahan, C. Salmatachica, T. M. Murphy, John Maloney, Charles W. Miller, E. Alley, Carl Lilla, Jerry Blizzzer, Bruce & Warner, Thomas H. Farrell, H. H. Lowe, Kenneth McKenzie, Fredrick Evans, M. J. Connelly.

Quite a lengthy discussion followed the report. Rev. A. M. Thompson of the Ministers' committee was invited before the council to state his objections to some of the applicants. Inspector Goodhue of the police department was also called before the council and questioned in regard to some of the applicants.

The City Solicitor was also asked for a ruling as to what constituted an expressman. He gave his opinion which was to the effect that it was not necessary for an expressman to go in to Boston to be an expressman. He also said that under the law it was necessary for a permit for an expressman to transport liquor in the city. This was in relation to the Electric Express company. While the company might bring the liquor to Quincy, Messrs Loud could not transport it within the city without a permit.

It was also brought out that the arrests for drunkenness during the year a very large per cent was of persons who came from Boston on the trains and brought hard liquor with them and that the per cent of drunkenness from soft liquors such as beer and ale was very small.

An hour or more was spent in discussion of these permits and when the atmosphere had cleared it was found that permits had been granted as follows:—Peter Gaudin, W. F. Loud & Son, Bruce & Warner, Abbott & Miller, Frederick Evans, Carl Lilla, G. Salmatachica, H. H. Lowe, Thomas H. Farrell, M. J. Connelly, Jose Mercurio, T. M. Murphy, N. Diphonilo, Andrews Express.

The Committee on Streets reported an amendment to the street watering order adding several streets to the order. The report was accepted, the rules suspended and the order passed.

The special Committee on Financial Investigation reported an order appropriating $756.69 to meet deficit bills that had been properly itemized and vouched for. Ordered to a second reading. A public hearing was held at 8 o'clock on the petition of the Electric Light Co. for location for poles.

The same committee reported orders granting many licenses as common victuallers, Sunday fry licenses, job wagons, etc. Adopted. The same committee reported ought to pass on the order amending the sewer ordinance which compels absewers to connect to connect their premises with the same within two years from the completion of said sewer. Order passed under suspension of the rules.

The Finance Committee reported on the annual appropriation order recommending the following amendment: That the following paragraph be added: That the several sums named herein be and are hereby appropriated for the payment of the expenses of the City of Quincy for the financial year beginning January 1st, and ending December 31st, 1912, to be expended by and under the direction of the several officers or boards as herein designated, in accordance with the provisions of the Charter and Ordinances relating thereto.

No contract shall be made, nor expenditure authorized in any case, unless the same shall have been provided for herein, or unless provision shall have been made by special transfer from some of the appropriations herein contained, or by creating a loan. Also that the order be further amended as follows:—Strike out the figures "$5,000" after the words, "Contagious diseases" and insert in place thereof the figures "$7,000."

Strike out the figures "$6,200" after the word, "Garbage" and insert in place thereof the figures "$6,000." Strike out the figures "$6,000" after the words "Scavenger maintenance" and insert in place thereof the figures "$5,500."

Strike out the figures "$2,200" after the word "Miscellaneous" and insert in place thereof the figures "$2,424." Strike out the figures "$8,000" after the words "Repairing public buildings, etc." and insert in place thereof the figures "$10,000."

Strike out the figures "$32,246" after the words "Pay of Men" and insert in place thereof the figures "$30,000." And as this amended the order ought to pass. The several amendments were taken up separately. The amendment relative to the appropriation for contagious diseases was adopted.

The amendments to the amounts for scavenger maintenance, garbage, and City Clerk were also adopted. Councilman Richards offered an amendment making the amount for Public Library $10,999 instead of $10,500 as stated in the order. This provoked a long discussion.

Councilman Barker presented a petition to accept Norfolk street. To Street Committee. The Vigilant eye of an officer and the time was well spent.—Milford Gazette.

A number of petitions for minor licenses were received and referred. A petition of the Town River Yacht club to keep and sell gasoline was laid on the table. A petition to accept Fairmount way was referred to the Street Committee. Petitions of the Bay State St. Ry. Co. and Telephone Co. for attachments were granted.

A petition to establish a grade on Elm avenue and place the car tracks in a reserved space was referred to the Street Committee. An application for a junk license was admitted under suspension of the rules.

The Finance Committee reported several orders appointing sidewalk assessments. Adopted. The Committee on Public Buildings reported a slight amendment to the order for $666.02 for the new Wollaston school, making the order read to meet deficit bills. Referred to Finance Committee.

The Committee on Public Buildings reported no legislation necessary on the petition to enlarge City Hall by building a so-called wart on the rear of the present building. The Committee on Licenses reported orders granting the following permits to transport liquor:—W. F. Loud & Son, N. Diphonilo, Andrews Express, Peter Gaudin, C. Hazleton, Jose Mercurio, John Callahan, C. Salmatachica, T. M. Murphy, John Maloney, Charles W. Miller, E. Alley, Carl Lilla, Jerry Blizzzer, Bruce & Warner, Thomas H. Farrell, H. H. Lowe, Kenneth McKenzie, Fredrick Evans, M. J. Connelly.

to say how many men there were in the department. The Finance Committee's understanding of the matter was that there was but 23 men in the department and the amount it had recommended was based on that number. Councilman Studley was not making much headway with his questions when Councilman Craig asked the City Solicitor for his ruling.

City Solicitor McAnaney said that he had given the Finance Committee his ruling in writing, that the department contained 25 permanent men. There was no question but this was a fact. When the City Council adopted the new fire department ordinance in 1909 there was a Superintendent of Fire Alarm, Captain, Lieutenant and eighteen men. The council in passing the new ordinance repealed the old ordinance so that it provided that the department should consist of a chief, three assistant engineers, Superintendent of Fire Alarm, Captain, Lieutenant and eighteen men. Since that time the council had added four men so that as the department stood today it consisted of a Supt. of Fire Alarm, Captain, Lieutenant, and 22 men making 25 in all.

This seemed to settle the question for the council by a rising vote of 14 yeas and 6 noes adopted the amendment of Councilman Studley. The order then took its second reading. Councilman Boyd moved to suspend the rules that the order might pass. This motion was lost 11 voting yeas and 7 noes. Adjourned at 11:44 until May 6.

Preservation of our forests has been considered a fad of theorists, but if the forests had not been cut, 30,000 homeless people in the flooded districts would be sleeping peacefully in their beds tonight, instead of having to ask shelter.

HEART PARTY.

Miss Annie Harding of Hotalot street entertained a party of friends at a heart party on Saturday evening. The house was very artistically decorated in red and white hearts and carnations. The color scheme was also carried out in the table decorations, red and white crepe paper being suspended from the ceiling to the corners of the table. A magnificent small red crepe paper box, decorated with hearts. These boxes contained candles, nuts and a souvenir. In the center piece was a large plate with a pretty bouquet of red and white carnations. The heads of carnations at the base of the plate, were tied with red ribbon which extended to each place and at a signal each girl pulled her ribbon. To her surprise, at the other end of the carnation was tied a white heart, on which were two small red hearts. On it was written "Annie," and the other "Annie." TENTH ANNUAL BALL.

The employees of the Bay State street railway, comprising Local 253 of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employees of America, are popular as shown by the very large attendance at the tenth annual concert and ball of the association, held April 12th at Music hall. It was an unusually large party and enjoyable in every way. Not only were guests present from Quincy, but Brockton sent down a special car load, and there were many from other centers such as Weymouth, Braintree, Hingham, Rockland, etc. as well as a few representatives from the divisions north of Boston.

Major Stone was one of the principal guests of the evening and participated in the festivities. Other guests were Assistant General Superintendent John Conway, with Mrs. Conway and Miss Conway, Division Superintendent Thomas Gammon and Mrs. Gammon, Supt. of Lines, Frank Yates, Supt. of Repairs, John Cutley, the Misses Macdonald from the Boston office of the company, President Charles C. Hearn of the Quincy Board of Trade, Chief of Police Thomas Fitzgerald of Weymouth, Representative William J. Leslie and others.

The decorations were confined to the platform and were as usual elaborate and under the direction of Derringer. Across the front of the platform was a large floral arrangement and further back almost mid the orchestra from sight while in the centre was a floral electric car over which on an arch were the floral letters "Local 253."

The music was furnished by Wilson's orchestra which gave an excellently fine concert from 8 to 9 o'clock. The program including the following:—March, "2d Conn." Reeves Overture, "Stradella" Floreus Concert Waltz, "Dream on the Ocean" J. Gos. Gungl Selection, "Red Widow" Gebest Xylophone Solo Selected Sparrow of Eastham Cape Cod, son of the old cavalry captain of the same name, who led his troop in the swam fight against King Philip, the Indian chief. The daughter, Lydia Sparrow, married Isaac King, and they went to Nova Scotia with the great band of young people that tried to build up the failing business for the Plymouth colony.

Then came the Revolutionary war, and the King family moved back to help the American colonists in the struggle for liberty. But one son of Isaac King, also named Isaac, stayed in Nova Scotia and took care of the property. This son had a son, Samuel, the King, who had a son, Samuel, the father of the beloved mother now mourned by her children. Mrs. Frye spent much time helping her son, Alexis E. Frye, trace the family history, with the result that having proved every record officially from the Mayflower Pilgrims down to today, the son was last year made a life member of the Massachusetts society of Mayflower descendants.

Members of the South Quincy baseball Association held their first grand dance April 12 in Alpha hall. Owing to the carmen's affair, it was thought that the baseball devotees would not make their customary bow for the occasion, but the dance was comfortably taxed and a genuine good time was in order throughout the evening.

Delegations from various baseball organizations were present in large numbers, also friends from Boston, Braintree, Weymouth, Abington, Hyde Park and Somerville. The music was by Carey's orchestra and dancing was enjoyed till midnight. The dance order comprised 20 numbers, the feature of which was the "National pastime waltz."

The floor was in charge of William Galvin. The assistant floor director was Frank Gillis, who was ably assisted by Joseph Ford, George Barry, Joseph Commell, Gustave Erickson, Fred Berlich, John S. Higgins, David Duckers and Charles Knight.

MRS. E. S. FRYE.

Some of the older residents of Quincy will recall the family of Capt. E. S. Frye, which resided at Quincy Point, in the early seventies, and will be pained to learn of the death, at Highland, Cal., April 2, of his wife Mrs. Jane B. Frye, her death coming with scarce a moment's warning. She had been slightly indisposed for two weeks, but her death was caused by an acute attack of heart trouble.

The family resided in Quincy for upwards of ten years and made many fast and firm friends. Leaving Quincy they first moved to Hyde Park, and in 1882 to California where they have since resided. The family comprised four children, Capt. T. W. Frye, a well-known mariner, Mrs. H. F. Bradstreet, Alex. E. Frye, who is well known in the educational world, being the author of Frye's geography. He it also was that was selected by President McKinley to go to Cuba and establish a school system on that island. Later he brought a number of his pupils to the summer school at Harvard, and while there quite a few of the young ladies came to Quincy and visited the quaries and other places of interest. The youngest is Albert Frye a well-known mechanical engineer in New York city.

Mrs. Frye was a woman of rare attainments, and one who endeared herself to all with whom she came in contact. She was a member of the Mayflower Pilgrims, Stephen Hopkins, one of the pilgrims who harbored on Clark's Island in Plymouth Harbor, on the cold snowy Sabbath day, December 19, 1620, landing the next day on the world-famed Plymouth Rock. Later the entire Pilgrim band sailed across from Provincetown and settled in Plymouth.

Stephen Hopkins was from London. With him on the Mayflower came his son, Giles Hopkins, whose daughter Mary married William Merrick. Their daughter Lydia married Jonathan Sparrow of Eastham Cape Cod, son of the old cavalry captain of the same name, who led his troop in the swam fight against King Philip, the Indian chief. The daughter, Lydia Sparrow, married Isaac King, and they went to Nova Scotia with the great band of young people that tried to build up the failing business for the Plymouth colony.

Then came the Revolutionary war, and the King family moved back to help the American colonists in the struggle for liberty. But one son of Isaac King, also named Isaac, stayed in Nova Scotia and took care of the property. This son had a son, Samuel, the King, who had a son, Samuel, the father of the beloved mother now mourned by her children. Mrs. Frye spent much time helping her son, Alexis E. JEST ASK DAD.

John D. Larkin.

Our family is the queerest one I'll bet you ever saw.

There ain't but one in all the batch With a good quality.

The rest of 'em are lots of traits, But all of 'em are bad.

An' if you don't believe me, why, You jest ask Dad.

There's sister Kate and sister Nell They ain't in much of a batch.

They ain't like pa a single bit, Because they makes mistakes.

They ought to have been better with 'The trainin' they have had.

But if you don't believe me, why, You jest ask Dad.

Next comes my sisters Bess and Sue, With fault of too much style.

They seem to think of nuthin' else, They talk it all the while.

They keep us in hot water with Some fool, expensive fad.

An' if you don't believe me, why, You jest ask Dad.

Now last, not least, comes B.I. and me 'Fergit'in' it's our trait.

It ain't in our nuthin' else, It seems to be our fate.

We all take after me, we do— No wonder we're so bad.

An' if you don't believe me, why, You jest ask Dad.

AFTER THE UPROAR.

Just what tricky demon had his hand on the steering-gear at that particular moment it would be hard to say.

Really, the choir was a good one, as choirs go, and did not often make so bad a break.

And it was the almost invariable—had it not been for this exception, one might have said the invariable—rule of Rev. Herbert Joliffe, M. A., in beginning the Scripture lesson in the service to announce carefully to the choir to be read.

And just why it should happen on this particular morning, when the choir had been in unpleasing and unmelodious difficulties from the very first bars of the anthem, that the instant they stopped, and the afflicted hearers were drawing a long sigh of relief,—why it should happen, I say, that the Rev. Herbert should begin in a cheerful voice to read, without prefatory announcement of chapter or book, that chapter in Acts which opens with "And after the uproar was ceased," is quite beyond possibility of explanation, at least by the present scribe.

Perhaps it should be charged up to the doctrine of the inherent depravity of all things, animate and inanimate.

And the funny thing about it was that the minister was the only person in church who didn't see what he had done.

The minister's wife gave a horrified gasp, and her face grew almost as white as the feather upon her exceedingly becoming but undeniably British bonnet.

Mrs. Deacon Griffith, whose daughter was the soprano of the choir, sat bolt upright and glared as if her name were Griffin and not Griffith; while the Deacon, bent almost as hard down upon the small of his back for his usual comfortable sleep through sermon-time, was arrested in the act, and hung, like Mahomet's coffin, in a very uncomfortable attitude between the heaven of sleepy recumbency and the earth of wakeful bodily perpendicularity.

Shocked back almost as if he had been struck by a lightning bolt, he looked at the shocked eyes that would, in spite of themselves, twinkle with a sense of humor. Young Jim Bolles, who "wrote for the papers," exploded a laugh that was distinctly audible, and reached for note-book and pencil.

"Go!" he muttered to himself, "what story for the Gazette? I'd give a dollar for Bingham's picture."

As for the choir—but what's the use? Language, at least the language that the editors would let us use in this paper, has limitations. Surprise, indignation, resentment, indignation, wrath; these were some of the emotions that sought expression in their faces. What did it mean? It was so uncalculated, so unlike Mr. Joliffe, so insulting! They could hardly believe they had heard aright. If they had, they would have suddenly have gone mad. If he hadn't they had—in quite another sense of the word.

Subtly conscious of a disturbance of the mental atmosphere, but without the slightest notion as to its cause or meaning, Mr. Joliffe, looking at the shocked eyes that would, in spite of themselves, twinkle with a sense of humor, looked at the shocked eyes that would, in spite of themselves, twinkle with a sense of humor.

Readings were given by Miss Phyllis Smith, who showed exceptional talent and had to respond to enclosures "Sings Bish of Omelette" was there, along with his "funny little knitty tie" and as impersonated by Robert C. Welch, was a decided hit.

Matthew Fay rendered two whistling solos in a very acceptable manner and the singing of ballads by John McClain was much enjoyed. Gilbert Booth and Mrs. R. C. Welch acted as accompanists for the singers.

Refreshments were served after the entertainment and dancing and sociability rounded out a very pleasant evening the weather not preventing a large attendance of brothers and sisters.

FINE PROGRAM GIVEN.

The Parents' and Teachers' Association of the Cranich school held a largely attended meeting in the school hall April eighteenth. President George E. Pfaffman in the chair reported for the committee in charge of school grading.

A committee, composed of Principal Arthur S. Townsend, Mrs. Charles Sampson and Albert Schenckberger was appointed to bring in a list of nominations of officers for the ensuing year.

The musical programme was in charge of Frank Crane. Mrs. Frank Moore rendered a number of solos with her usual pleasing manner. Mrs. Charles Sampson, pianist and Roscoe Ricker, violinist.

Superintendent Albert I. Barbour delivered an instructive address on "Some plans for next year." In his remarks he brought out the fact that Quincy girls were entitled to attend the Boston Trade School for girls, because it was a state institution.

The social committee was headed by Miss May Birnie.

stand quick enough when you put your mind on it. And I want to say again.

"Wait a minute, please. You surely can't believe that I read that passage with any reference to the choir or its performance! I assure you that any possible connection never entered my mind. It just happened to be—"

"It happened?"

"Well, I guess not! Such things don't happen. It was a deliberate insult, and—"

"Mr. Bingham," he said slowly and smoothly; but there was that in his voice that sounded like a danger signal, and the choir-leader recognized it.

"Mr. Bingham, I tell you again that there was no intention on my part to connect this chapter in Acts with anything that the choir did or did not do. The passage was chosen in my study before coming to church, and, as you know, was the chapter from which my text was taken. Evidently there is some misunderstanding, for which I do not feel myself to be responsible. No, as the other was about to speak, 'This is not the time nor the place to discuss this matter further. I'll see you to-morrow.'"

And, turning, he left the choir to himself.

By this time most of the people had come from the house. Those who remained greeted him with a certain constraint, which he was quick to note and to understand, now that his eyes were opened; but nobody ventured to refer to the incident until he came to Old Dick Marden, chronic kicker-in-general and objector-in-chief to things as they are.

"That's the stuff, Elder," he exclaimed enthusiastically. "You gave it to 'em good this mornin', Uproar! well, I'd say—"

"Mr. Marden," said the minister sternly, "You are mistaken. I gave it as you say, but no one. I hope you will not use that expression again."

And he passed on.

"Huh!" muttered the old man, looking after him. "Aint got no sand, after all. Thought he was a-goin' to spout up an' make it hot for them high-diddle-diddles in th' singin' seats, but he's backed square down. Scared, prob'ly. Huh!"

"O Herbert!" sighed the minister's wife, when they were alone on their homeward road. "Why did you do it? Of course it was true. It was an uproar, but—"

"Huh!" he stopped short, and looked her in the face. "Do you really think that I read that particular passage in order to rebuke the choir?"

"Why—why—didn't you? I couldn't understand it didn't seem one bit like you; but you must see how pat it was. The Deacon, bent almost as hard down upon the small of his back for his usual comfortable sleep through sermon-time, was arrested in the act, and hung, like Mahomet's coffin, in a very uncomfortable attitude between the heaven of sleepy recumbency and the earth of wakeful bodily perpendicularity.

METHODIST MEYS CLUB.

At the monthly meeting of the Wollaston Methodist Men's club Thursday April 10th, George Carter of Chelsea delivered a most forceful and interesting address on "Success."

Previous to his main topic, Mr. Carter, who is the leader of the large Carter class of several hundred men at the Methodist M. E. church and both at East Boston, had a word to say concerning the vast amount of good done by men's clubs and men's classes.

His story of the redemption of Charles Curtis, a tale of great human interest, was given as but one instance of the great saving power incorporated in a men's class.

"Every one desires success," said Mr. Carter, "and everyone can have success if he is ready to make the necessary sacrifices and work to accomplish it."

"A good many men drift instead of drive ahead and when the tide turns or the breeze blows they are driven off their course."

The speaker quoted Proverbs in the Bible which states "Success is the result of diligent in business," showing that this given and all things will be added unto him.

Learn to look ahead. Short sightedness prevents many a man from making a success in life. It all depends whether you aim for the pailty successes and pleasures of the moment, or for the greater reward of a successful life.

Concentration counts. Success to reach its mark must be the straight flying rifle bullet instead of the scattered fine shot.

A straight line is the shortest distance between two points and the straighter the course and the straighter your character the more quickly you will reach your destination.

The speaker told the story of Grever Cleveland's daughter, who in childhood, when she was only a girl, had been a policeman with brass buttons.

There is room for the success of all, although we cannot all be president, and all of us may not desire to be policemen.

Let us sing No. 140," he said, and took his seat.

Silence in the choir-loft! And more of it! The organist had slipped off the organ-bench, and sat in her place as if her work was done for the day. The tenor and the soprano had their heads together in a whispered conversation that was evidently absorbing. Mr. Bingham leaned back in his chair and ostentatiously yawned the yawn of the exceedingly yawner.

Mr. Joliffe waited a minute, and then, without a glance at the choir, and quite as a matter of course, arose and began the reading of the Scriptures.

He closed the book with a prayer, which there was no possible reference to any other than usual conditions and circumstances. Then came the offering, and after that the second hymn. The interest of the congregation was at its height. Would he pass it over? Would he dare—

"Let us sing No. 342," said the minister.

Still glacial silence in the choir-loft. Quietly the pastor stepped to the rear of the platform, opened the door, and stepped out into the hall, hidden from sight of the people, and with the usual preliminary wheezing and whistling, a powerful phonograph started the familiar strains of "Duke Street." The people "caught on."

With one accord they rose to their feet and sang the hymn. The pastor, who had been standing at the rear of the platform, stepped forward and sang the hymn.

To be sure, not all were singing all the time. There were many smiles and noddings of heads. More than one whispered word, "What d'ye think of that, now?" "Smart, ain't it?" "That's the way to do it, right?" and the like, went round the congregation. But the hymn boomed on in sonorous and triumphant fashion, led by that uncanny instrument back of the minister that was impervious to slights and insults such as the choir-leader felt by thin-skinned human musicians.

But the minister's face never changed. No one would have known by watching him, but that he had always conducted his Sunday morning service with phonographic aid, or was for the first time in his life, he was hint that all things were not as they should be.

But after the sermon,— "We will sing No. 531," he said. "Begin, if you please with the second stanza, and he turned toward the phonograph."

But there was no need. With the opening of the hymn—the organist was in her place, and almost before the last word was pronounced the organ boomed out the opening chord, while the choir, so eager to begin, actually struck in two beats ahead of the organ in the first strain.

The revolt was over. The rebels had made unconditional surrender. As he passed down from the pulpit, Mr. Joliffe extended his hand to each in his usual friendly way and with his usual pleasant greeting, in which not even the most suspicious could detect any possible suggestion of St. Paul, or upstarts, or the disciplining of recalcitrant church choirs.

"There's one thing about it, pastor," said Deacon Tarbell with a twinkle in his eye, a little later in the day. "I was thinking this morning that you've given us a hint of how to deal with you ministers if you go contrary, and try to kick over the traces."

"Yes," laughed the minister, "I suppose I have. But I had to take my chances, and I hoped none of you would think of that—Rev. J. K. Wilson in the Christian Endeavor World."

WARD FOUR ASSOCIATION.

A lively session was held by the Ward 4 Improvement society Thursday evening in St. Jean's hall. The president, Stephen B. Little, was in the chair and the development and welfare of the ward was the subject of discussion. An invitation was extended William H. Teasdale, chairman of the Board of Health, to give a talk May 9, on the "Duties of the Board of Health Department."

The matter of co-operating in a movement to have buildings, tenements and stores erected and vacant lots made use of, consumed much time occasioning animated debate. The needs of the district were discussed. The district was divided into four wards. James H. Elcock said there were not half enough stores in West Quincy. A vote was taken on the matter of a five cent fare from Quincy to Milton Lower Mills, where a number of West Quincy people are employed and indicated that those present thought the railroad officials should grant the request. This discussion concerned two cars, the one in the morning and the other carrying them in the evening.

It was voted that May first be set aside as general clean-up day. It was also voted to call the attention of the principals of the schools in the district, in order that the school children might help in fostering sanitary conditions. It was urged that plants and flowers be set out on that day, in order to beautify the tract.

It was announced that Seigel & Co. of Boston were giving trees away to those who asked for them and it was thought that as many West Quincy residents as possible should avail themselves of this opportunity. The gathering dispersed shortly after ten o'clock, after one of the most enjoyable and interesting meetings in the history of the society.

SUPPER AND ENTERTAINMENT.

Over 125 people enjoyed the supper and entertainment held Thursday evening in the vestry of the First Universalist church. The supper, which was given under the direction of a committee composed of Lester Sprague and Bartlett Spooner consisted of cold meats, beans, pickles, fancy pies, rolls, cake and coffee.

A number of young men connected with the church acted in the capacity of waiters, attired in regular servant's regalia. The music for the occasion was furnished by the Quincy High school orchestra, composed of Elton Chase, William Roache and Clarence Lundin.

After the supper an enjoyable entertainment was in order, arranged by the committee, consisting of E. C. Andrews, J. Irving Hyland, and E. Sprague.

A violin solo by Miss Maria White, accompanied on the piano by her mother, was received with great appreciation. George Gregg assisted by Edward Adams and Elmer Sprague presented "Uncle John's Visit to New York" and suffice it to say that their remarkable production kept the audience in a state of continual mirth and laughter.

A four-act sketch furnished by Les Sprague and Bartlett Spooner, was the occasion for great applause and proved a decided hit. Mr. Sprague impersonated an old maid in typical style while Mr. Spooner proved an able partner in the role of a manly wooer.

The various booths furnished attraction for the evening and the entire affair met with great success. The Murray club was in charge of the May basket booth. These young ladies included Harriet Lombard, Mildred Smith, Edith Hyland, Marion Wright, Anna Wright, Bessie Grant, Catherine Reed and Elizabeth Reed. The May basket was also in charge of the ice cream, candy and cake booths. The event was pronounced the best of its kind ever held under the auspices of the church.

ST. MARY'S C. T. A.

Even the unfavorable weather that prevailed April eighteenth failed to deter a large number from attending the dancing party given in St. Mary's hall, West Quincy, by the members of St. Mary's Catholic Total Abstinence and Mutual Relief societies. Visitors were present from Boston, Braintree, Weymouth and Milton and the affair was one of the best ever held by this well known temperance organization.

The guests of the evening included Rev. Henry T. Grady and Rev. William J. Duffy, pastor and assistant pastor respectively of St. Mary's church, Hon. William T. Shea, Councilman John J. Mahoney, Harry T. Boyd and Daniel F. Forde, and School committeeman Joseph P. McPherson.

The dance began at eight o'clock, and concluded early in the morning; a short intermission was held at eleven o'clock, during which time refreshments were served in the lower hall. The dance order included twenty regular numbers and four extras. Music was by Joyce's orchestra.

Daniel E. Duggan, president of the society, was floor director, with Joseph R. McGilvray and George E. Reinhalter as assistants. The aids included William Duggan, Thomas F. O'Brien, Joseph Rooney, Ralph Elcock, George H. Sullivan, Thomas J. O'Brien, Edward King, James Fay, James F. McLaughlin and Joseph T. Lamb.

Notes and Comments.

—Do not forget that it is the early flies we want to kill off before they lay eggs and hatch out countless new ones. Commence at once on the fly nuisance and keep up the fight. It will be easy if tackled early.—Framingham News.

—During February the United States imported 2,500,000 bushels of potatoes or about twice as much as our annual importation of the "spuds" in the last 10 years. Surely the potato is regarded as a necessity.—Modford Mercury.

—Instead of a tag day for charity San Francisco has a pencil sale and the first day yielded $5000. The streets swarmed with fashionably-dressed pencil vendors, and prices sometimes ran as high as $10. At that price one would have to drop a nicely sharpened pencil on the floor.—Milford Gazette.

—In these days of investigations, how will it do, by and by, for an investigation to be made into the why and wherefore of burdening coal consumers with an additional tax of 50 cents, say, on a ton of coal, when the advance to the miner may represent about two cents a ton.—Salem News.

—The Providence Journal wants to know whether "things have blown over enough so that Richman may be spared his life and Thaw may go free." But neither the former, but the latter contingency seems likely to obtain some day if the Thaw family are willing to be "held up" for plenty of money, spent where it will do the most good.—Brookline Enterprise.

—Common sense applauds the French for numbering the hours consecutively from 1 to 24. It would sound a little odd at first to speak of "19 o'clock," and so on, but we should soon get used to it and then the convenience would begin to emerge. Another beneficial change would be to make the months of equal length and have them begin and end invariably on the same day of the week. This is practicable and some time it will be done.—Portland Oregonian.

—Most boys have fathers, which is fortunate for the boys themselves and for society. But most fathers perhaps—any rate, too many of them—fail to recognize fully their obligations in the matter of guiding the thoughts and actions of their sons. They leave too much of that duty to the boys' mothers. Mothers, too, are important, of course, giving the boy a kind of care which they would otherwise lose. But the father, if he be the right sort, can exert an influence which may come from no other source. It is not worth while? Every boy who goes wrong represents a definite loss to society. To that extent civilization fails. It means a hitch in the plan of the universe which calls for a steady upward climb toward perfection.—Milford, N. H. Cabinet.

Y. M. C. A. TENNIS TEAM.
The new tennis team of the Y. M. C. A. has 14 entries for the trials. The men who have gone out for the teams are: W. B. Tourtellot, L. F. LaRose, W. Bartlett, H. C. Halliwell, H. C. Berrian, J. T. Smith, W. C. Howe, A. H. Blanchard, R. McFarland, M. C. Miller, R. E. Cortell, Ed Jenkins, W. C. Chad. All have played the game before and understand the game better and should carry the season through and defeat many if not all of the teams of the local tennis clubs.
W. B. Tourtellot, L. F. LaRose and H. C. Halliwell are three rivals and three such players should be able to local organization. A. H. Blanchard, Ed Jenkins and J. T. Smith are also three men who have played the game before. They know the inside points and are capable of carrying off the honors.

Amid decorations of a variegated nature with every arrangement provided that could possibly add to a most charming spectacle, the members of Ave Maria Council, 1535, Knights of Columbus, held forth in their second annual grand ball in St. Mary's hall, West Quincy, April 26. The affair was a pronounced success and attended by a number that taxed the dance hall to its capacity.

Members of other divisions of the Knights of Columbus were present in large numbers and the occasion was graced by the presence of many city officials and representative citizens, including Mayor Eugene R. Stone, Ex-mayor William T. Shea, Councilman Charles A. Ross, William H. Teasdale, chairman of the Board of Health, Michael B. Geary, chairman of the Board of Registrars, Councilman Harry T. The decorations were of a most unique nature. In the centre of the hall was suspended the banner of the council, while everywhere the stars and stripes were conspicuously displayed. The walls were decorated in a manner symbolic of the four seasons of the year and adorned with typical of the age of Columbus added great lustre to the artistic arrangement of the decorations.

The platform was strewn with pot-pourri, and floral designs, while the pictures of Grand Knight McGilvray and Chaplain Rev. Fr. Grady stood out in prominent positions. The music for the occasion was furnished by Scully's orchestra, which furnished a most pleasing repertoire from eight until one o'clock consisting of the following numbers:
March Ave Maria

The grand march was then in order led by Grand Knight Charles J. McGilvray and sister Miss Annie McGilvray, followed by Deputy Grand Knight John J. The grand march was carried out in a most effective manner and a most imposing scene was presented by the large number who participated.

Dancing then took place and was enjoyed till early morning. There were twenty regular numbers on the program, with four extras. Most of the dances called for repeated encore. At midnight an intermission took place, during which a most appetizing menu was partaken of, which was prepared by Burleigh and Martin.

The floor marshall wearing purple cloths was Grand Knight Charles J. McGilvray. Deputy Grand Knight John J. Mahoney, who wore blue cloths, was floor director while the assistants decorated by red cloths were Henry M. Hughes, Leo A. Garrity and George A. McDonald.

The aids all of whom wore hellebore included J. Edward Reinhalter, James E. Geary, Edward E. Monahan, Robert J. Teasdale, James B. Dugal, John J. Joyce and Frank J. Hertz. The pages, who attracted considerable attention during the evening, attired as they were in costumes such as were worn in the days of Ferdinand and Isabella were Miss Katherine Ash, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. John H. Ash and Master Edward St. Michael. The pages distributed the dance orders while the grand march was in progress. The reception committee was William H. Teasdale, chairman, Dr. John H. Ash, John P. Minahan, Charles C. McCue, Thomas J. Shortle, Arthur L. McGilvray, Thomas P. O'Brien, Dr. John T. Reynolds, Joseph A. Barry, George E. Reinhalter and Joseph McGilvray.

More than seventy-five friends assembled at the corner of Cross and Common streets, Tuesday evening, for the short and early o'clock April 26th and proceeded to the home of Miss Annie Kavanagh and gave her a surprise. After invading the Kavanagh home, the party lost no time in explaining why they came in a few well chosen words, Frank Lemaire in behalf of those in attendance presented Miss Kavanagh with a handsome gold bracelet.

The surprise was one of the most successful ever held in the west section of the city. Songs, jokes and various other forms of amusements held sway until about eleven o'clock, when the party adjourned to the home of Miss Kavanagh and gave her a surprise. After invading the Kavanagh home, the party lost no time in explaining why they came in a few well chosen words, Frank Lemaire in behalf of those in attendance presented Miss Kavanagh with a handsome gold bracelet.

GREET PRESIDENT TAFT.

Seidman has it been that the citizens have had an opportunity to hear the President, much less to hear him speak and the thousands of men, women and children gathered in City Square was in itself evidence of the loyalty of the citizens to the President and it is safe to say that no man ever received a more hearty reception than did President Taft when he stepped from his special train a few minutes past 2 o'clock Monday afternoon.

When it was made known Saturday night that the President had consented to speak to the citizens of Quincy, officials and representative citizens, including Mayor Eugene R. Stone, Ex-mayor William T. Shea, Councilman Charles A. Ross, William H. Teasdale, chairman of the Board of Health, Michael B. Geary, chairman of the Board of Registrars, Councilman Harry T. Boyd and Daniel F. Porde, School Committee member, Joseph M. Quinn, Rev. Henry T. Grady and Rev. William J. Duffy, pastor and assistant respectively of St. Mary's church.

The decorations were of a most unique nature. In the centre of the hall was suspended the banner of the council, while everywhere the stars and stripes were conspicuously displayed. The walls were decorated in a manner symbolic of the four seasons of the year and adorned with typical of the age of Columbus added great lustre to the artistic arrangement of the decorations.

The platform was strewn with pot-pourri, and floral designs, while the pictures of Grand Knight McGilvray and Chaplain Rev. Fr. Grady stood out in prominent positions. The music for the occasion was furnished by Scully's orchestra, which furnished a most pleasing repertoire from eight until one o'clock consisting of the following numbers:
March Ave Maria
Selection Red Rose
Popular Medley Remick Hits
March Captain Cupid
The grand march was then in order led by Grand Knight Charles J. McGilvray and sister Miss Annie McGilvray, followed by Deputy Grand Knight John J. Mahoney and Miss Mary Kenney, Mayor Stone and Miss Mary McCarthy, of Dorchester, Grand Knight of Quincy Council, Edward D. Barrett and Mrs. Barrett and about one hundred couples. The grand march was carried out in a most effective manner and a most imposing scene was presented by the large number who participated.

Dancing then took place and was enjoyed till early morning. There were twenty regular numbers on the program, with four extras. Most of the dances called for repeated encore. At midnight an intermission took place, during which a most appetizing menu was partaken of, which was prepared by Burleigh and Martin.

The floor marshall wearing purple cloths was Grand Knight Charles J. McGilvray. Deputy Grand Knight John J. Mahoney, who wore blue cloths, was floor director while the assistants decorated by red cloths were Henry M. Hughes, Leo A. Garrity and George A. McDonald.

The aids all of whom wore hellebore included J. Edward Reinhalter, James E. Geary, Edward E. Monahan, Robert J. Teasdale, James B. Dugal, John J. Joyce and Frank J. Hertz. The pages, who attracted considerable attention during the evening, attired as they were in costumes such as were worn in the days of Ferdinand and Isabella were Miss Katherine Ash, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. John H. Ash and Master Edward St. Michael. The pages distributed the dance orders while the grand march was in progress. The reception committee was William H. Teasdale, chairman, Dr. John H. Ash, John P. Minahan, Charles C. McCue, Thomas J. Shortle, Arthur L. McGilvray, Thomas P. O'Brien, Dr. John T. Reynolds, Joseph A. Barry, George E. Reinhalter and Joseph McGilvray.

More than seventy-five friends assembled at the corner of Cross and Common streets, Tuesday evening, for the short and early o'clock April 26th and proceeded to the home of Miss Annie Kavanagh and gave her a surprise. After invading the Kavanagh home, the party lost no time in explaining why they came in a few well chosen words, Frank Lemaire in behalf of those in attendance presented Miss Kavanagh with a handsome gold bracelet.

The surprise was one of the most successful ever held in the west section of the city. Songs, jokes and various other forms of amusements held sway until about eleven o'clock, when the party adjourned to the home of Miss Kavanagh and gave her a surprise. After invading the Kavanagh home, the party lost no time in explaining why they came in a few well chosen words, Frank Lemaire in behalf of those in attendance presented Miss Kavanagh with a handsome gold bracelet.

The first part of the evening was devoted to the consumption of an excellent Dutch supper prepared and served by a committee of members. At the conclusion of the supper, there was an entertainment. Addresses were made by Mayor Eugene R. Stone and Joseph J. Mullen, archon of the Conclave.

Songs were rendered by Adam Portis, Robert Greenhouse, Frederick Castore, Thomas Wafar, Frank Barney, William Lennon, Duncan McKinlin, William Kelley, James Lawlor, Donald McLaughlin and Nathaniel Burnham. William Westland was the accompanist on the piano and every contribution to the program was accorded great applause.

The success of the affair was due largely to the efforts of James H. Mullen, John T. Larkin, Harry Powell, John Bowdoin, George Woodman, Angus McArthur, John Tiekley, Henry Langlois, Augustus Treklein, Michael Boyle, Adam Slavin, William Allen, Charles Batson, Phillip Pitts, William Russell, and William Childs.

ENJOYABLE LECTURE.

It was a select audience, and a large one which greeted Emory L. Crane, April 26, in the chapel of First Church, to hear his lecture on "American Wit and Humor." Every seat in the chapel was taken and the audience consisted of what may fairly be called the leading people of Quincy.

Following the lecture was a musical program. The songs which were sung were some of Eugene Field's poems put to music. "Sleep, little Tulip," was rendered by Mrs. Frank A. Page, with great expression and sweetness. Then came a quartette composed of Mrs. James H. Slade, Mrs. P. A. Page, Mrs. N. S. Hunting, Mrs. Turner and Miss Litchfield. They sang the old favorite "Wyndken, Blynken and Nod" and received such applause that it was repeated, much to the delight of the audience.

Mrs. Chandler W. Smith and William E. Weston opened the evening's entertainment with a quartette which was a masterly performance and showed to advantage the technique which both of the musicians possess.

After the musical program the lecture was introduced by the Hon. Brooks Adams, who said that he personally felt under obligations to Mr. Crane for his interesting and well-natured, patient and helpfulness toward the interests of the Quincy Historical Society, under whose auspices the lecture was delivered.

Mr. Crane disclaimed any intention of dealing with all the American humorists, but rather a few of those whose shining wit sets all the world ablaze. After declaring that the authors of certain humorous works which appeared previous to 1850 were now as dead as the ladies of the Quincy Women's club claim Quincy to be, the lecturer took up Artemus Ward, whose success came from a manner of telling a story than from the story itself. He then discussed Mark Twain and gave an abridged account of the celebrated "Jumping Frog of Calaveras County," causing a great deal of merriment in the audience.

Mr. Crane proceeded in part as follows, giving brief selections from each author as he went along:
"About all that Josh Billings ever wrote was his almanacs. Here are some of his proverbs: 'The sassiest man I ever met is a hen-pecked husband when he is away from home.' 'You'd better not know so much than know so many things that are not so.' 'What we take up James Russell Lowell we feel that we are in the presence of a genius. The Bigelow Papers will continue to stand as the best examples of Yankee dialect ever written. His verses, largely political, took with wit.'

Newspaper humor pertains peculiarly to the United States. Every paper from Zion's Herald to the Boston American has a jokesmith on its staff.
"George W. Peck's Bad Boy was funny, but his pranks if played in Massachusetts would have brought him into the juvenile court."
"Eugene Field was a man whom every one liked but he is called a 'jollifier.'"

A TRYST.

Celia Thaxter.

From out the desolation of the North
An iceberg took its way,
From its detaining comrades breaking forth,
And travelling night and day.

At whose command? Who made it call the deep
With that restless force?
Who made the dread appointment it must keep?
Who traced its awful course?

To the warm airs that stir in the sweet South,
A good ship spread her sails;
Stately she passed beyond the harbor's mouth,
Chased by the favoring gales;

And on her ample deck a happy crowd
Blade the fair land good-by;
Clear shone the day with not a single cloud
In all the peaceful sky.

Brave men, sweet women, little children bright
For all these she made room,
And her freight of beauty and delight
She went to meet her doom.

Storms buffeted the iceberg, spray was sprung
Across its loftiest height;
Gulled alike by storm and calm, it kept
Its fatal way aright.

Then warmer waves gnawed at its crumbling base,
As if in piteous plea;
The ardent sun sent slow tears down
its face,
Soft flowing to the sea.

Dawn kissed it with her tender rose tints, Eve
Bathed it in violet;
The wistful cloud o'er it seemed to grieve
With a divine regret.

Whether day clad its clefts in rainbows dim
And shadowy as a dream,
Or night through lonely spaces saw it swim
White in the moonlight's gleam.

Ever Death rode upon its solemn heights,
Cold at its heart through changing
days and nights,
Its changeless purpose kept.

When after a smiling coast it passed,
Straightway the air grew chill;
Dwellers thereon perceived a litter
blast,
A vague report of ill.

Like some imperial creature, moving slow,
Meanwhile with matchless grace,
The stately ship, unconscious of her
foe,
Drew near the trysting-place.

For all the prosperous breezes followed her,
And half the voyage was o'er,
In many a broad glad thought began to stir
Of land that lay before.

And human hearts with longing love
were dumb,
That soon should cease to beat,
Thrilled with the hope of meetings
soon to come,
And lost in memories sweet.

Was not the weltering waste of water wide
Enough for both to sail?
What drew the two together o'er the tide,
Fair ship and iceberg pale?

There came a night with neither moon
nor star,
Clouds draped the sky in black;
With fluttering canvas reefed at every spar,
And weird fire in her track.

The ship swept on; a wild wind gathering fast,
Drove her at utmost speed,
Bravely she bent before the fitful
blast,
That shook her like a reed.

O helmman, turn thy wheel! Will no surmise
No warning of the horrible surprise
Reach thine unconscious ear?
She rushed upon her ruin. Not a flash
Broke up the waiting dark;
Dully through wind and sea one awful crash
Sounded, with none to mark.

Scarcely her crew had time to clutch despair,
So swift the work was done;
Ere their pale lips could frame a speechless prayer
They perished, every one!

THE MAIRODA RUBY.

Marshall Third stretched out a slim hand across the chessboard.
"You forgive me remaining seated, Lady Borradale, I am, as you see, an invalid."

Lady Borradale, a pretty, well-dressed woman of five-and-thirty, took the proffered hand and discreetly helped the astonished she could not help feeling that this man, of whom she had heard such wonderful things should be helpless and a cripple.

"You got my note asking for an appointment?" she asked. "I know your time is valuable, but the fact is, my jewels, about $30,000 worth, have been stolen and Sir Francis Ramon, whom I think you know, advised me to come straight to you and waste no time."

The surprise over the evening was pleasantly spent with games, songs,
and story telling. Rev. William B.
Ayers and Mrs. George H. Stebbins, excelling at the latter.

One of the hits of the evening was a solo by the pastor which was loudly applauded. Refreshments closed a delightful evening and those present departed after wishing Mr. Ayers the best of success in his pastorate.

Among those present were: Charles Richardson, Allen Painter, Charles Tanner, Artemus Dingwell, Miss Frederica Klingenhagen, Miss Mildred Podbury, Miss Myrtle Daniels, Miss Henrietta
Gram, Miss Ethel Asberg, Mrs. George
H. Stebbins, Miss Marie Brown, Miss
Lydia O'Neal, Miss Leona Kilpatrick,
Miss Christina Hall, Miss Lillian Hall,
Mrs. S. M. H. Tanner, Miss Ella R.
Musaus, Miss Natalie Scott and Dr.
and Mrs. J. A. Zwicker.

"Now I will read you one or two short extracts. Klot!"

This pointed to the bookshelves,
and gave an order in a low voice.
The small Jap, soft-footed, laid some
volumes on the table at his elbow.
The Vigilant picked up the first.

"This is an exhaustive work on fire-

—and have brought you a drawing of the house. I thought it might be of use. There, you see those two windows marked with a cross, those are in my room.

"In the country I wear little or no jewelry. The last occasion on which I used that in the case was at a ball in town over a month ago. I replaced them myself the next day and locked the case. Since then I never touched them. I thought I would take out a diamond ring, I tried the key, which would not turn, and becoming alarmed, I got my husband to force open the lid. Not only were the jewels not there, but the case, which was identical with mine outside, was not my case at all; yet on the outside it had my monogram, and was exactly the same even down to a deep scratch in the left-hand corner."

"Have you it with you?"
"Yes."

Third just glanced at it, and put it down on the table.

"Did you replace the jewels in town or was it in my room?"

"Not till I got home. I only used a portion of them—those I carried in separate cases in my dressing bag. I returned on the 28th, the day after the ball, and locked them up some time that evening."

"That leaves a period of thirty-two days in which the robbery might have been effected." He placed the case before him, and examined it carefully
with a glass. "This was made in Paris,
I see, and for such an expensive article it is easy to see that it has been made in a hurry, the lining is very roughly finished, and some of the leather work is bad. It has been made quite recently, too. The signs of wear on the outside and on edges are purely artificial, yet well enough done to deceive a casual observer.
The monogram die was, of course, cut on a tracing of your own—all of which means that the robbery had been planned as they always did when five days before it was carried out, probably longer. Where was the ball to which you went on that last occasion of wearing your jewels?"

"At Mrs. Endover's, in Carlton House Terrace."

Marshall Third's pupils contracted to a point, as they always did when he was thinking hard and quickly.

"Among your jewels, if my memory serves me aright, there was a ruby known as the Mairoda ruby—a stone with a strange history?"

"Yes, that is so, though you know that the stone is very few people know of its existence. It has a tragic story connected with it, and my husband has asked me not to speak of it to my friends—not to talk about it at all, in fact—and I hardly ever wear
it."

Marshall Third moved a chessman thoughtfully across the board in a long diagonal.

"I remember seeing it mentioned in the papers at the time of your marriage, twelve years ago. You wore it at Mrs. Endover's that night?"

The question was repeated sharply.

Lady Borradale looked a trifle confused.

"Yes, as a matter of fact, I did. It's —well, it went so well with my dress.
I thought it a pity not to. I've only worn it half a dozen times since it came into my possession."

"The Vigilant's eyes gleamed.

"You will not wear it again," he snapped. "Four other jewels, yes;
the Mairoda ruby, no. Ten days ago there was a small paragraph in the papers giving an account of a motor accident at the gates of your country house."

"Yes, that is so. My husband was driving. We had just passed the lodge when there was a sharp, a dangerous sharp turn, coming out of the drive on to the main road. Luckily we always make a rule of going slow here. Just as we got onto the road a cyclist came in the opposite direction dashed into us before we could stop. We took him straight to the house, of course, and had him taken up to bed. We were afraid of internal injuries, for barring a scratch or two and a cure, there was little to see, and my husband drove straight out to Hertford for a doctor."

"The poor fellow seemed in considerable pain, and the doctor could not discover the seat of the injury. He remained in bed for a couple of days, and then, at his own request, was moved into the hospital. He left,
as a matter of fact, four days ago."

"The papers spoke of the cyclist as a student at Markham's Hill College," said the Vigilant, "which is, as you may know, a civil-service college, where, among others, the sons of Indians, Siamese, and other potentates. This particular young man was a Siamese, according to their account."

"So he told my husband."

"That letter that he wrote to his friend contained an exact description of the outside of your jewel case, and then, at his own request, he has no doubt, that he succeeded in getting a tracing, which was also sent in the letter."

"Now, to go back to the Mairoda stone. As far back as its history can be traced, it has been the cause of countless murders. It first comes to light in the hands of a Chinese mar-
dar. He was strangled, and years after the stone appears in Russia in the dagger hilt of a certain Duke Ylodmir, who also died a violent death,
and so on through a period of 400 years—roughly, until your husband's grandfather won it at a gaming table at Crookford's. Shortly afterward an attempt was made to assassinate him; it was unsuccessful, and since that time its history has been uninterrupted."

"Now I will read you one or two
short extracts. Klot!"

This pointed to the bookshelves,
and gave an order in a low voice.
The small Jap, soft-footed, laid some
volumes on the table at his elbow.
The Vigilant picked up the first.

"This is an exhaustive work on fire-worship. Toward the end we find this:

"Notice must also be made of the Gaewaks, an almost extinct tribe of northern Siam, who in long past ages suffered from fire, but a gigantic red jewel, probably a ruby of great size and value, which was supposed to have been buried in its heart, liquid fire from the sun, so tradition runs; and, though it vanished, or was stolen, many centuries ago, there still exists a temple and a sect of priests of this peculiar worship, a little known place far up in the hills called Meyrod, or by others Mairo."

"Do you know who wrote those words? Mr. Endover, your host at the ball that night on which you wore the stone, and one of the greatest living authorities on Siam and its followers. He has spent his first and last, nearly ten years of his life there. When you mentioned his name just now I recalled the fact, and with it another that in an account in the Morning Post it mentioned that there were several princelings from northern Siam present."

"The case now becomes obvious:
one of those beloved princelings from the north saw your ruby and recognized it."

Lady Borradale started.

"You're right, quite right. One of them—I shouldn't know his name or be able to pronounce it. He was introduced to me, and through his interpreter asked me all sorts of questions about English country life,
and how we spend our time."

"Quite so. He found out that he wanted, and waited his chance as an Oriental can wait. Finally, desiring of getting a glimpse of your jewel case, he or one of his dependents arranged with the cyclist, who was also a Siamese, for that little scene of the accident, which enabled them to duplicate the case."

"But why—why not have broken it open?"

"If only that one stone has been taken they would inevitably narrow the field of inquiry; by taking all, not only did they make it seem a commonplace robbery, but having found that you rarely opened your jewel case, they gained days, and but for your wanting a jewel, they would have gained weeks in which to get their Mairoda stone safely away."

"The cyclist, entering the hospital empty-handed and helpless, would naturally be beyond suspicion. Meanwhile, the duplicate having been made the real thief, the prisoner, would have his chance and effected the substitution—it would take a moment or two at most, when his plans were complete."

"But what can I do? What can I do? What shall I do?" asked Lady Borradale.

"The one thing you must not do, if you value your life, and I speak in all seriousness, is to attempt to recover that stone. It is undoubtedly possible to do so, though difficult. It is probably now well on the way to Siam. Should you send any one in pursuit they would inevitably lose their life before they so much as get a glimpse of the stone, and you, as the instigator of the pursuit, would probably share his fate. Take my advice, go away somewhere, take your dogs
and your servants with you, and leave the house unguarded. If you do, you will get your other jewels back within a week. Mind you, these men have not stolen anything for its intrinsic value. They have merely, in their idea, rescued a precious and sacred relic from the hands of an infidel and an unbeliever."

Ten days later the Vigilant received a note from Lady Borradale.

"You were right. I returned to Duncroft yesterday. The case has been returned intact, with a duplicate key in gold. I found it in the lock.
The ruby has gone, but in its place were three magnificent uncut diamonds. I send you one as a token of my thanks and my admiration of your skill."—London Answers.

SATURDAY, MAY 11, 1912

REV. ELLERY C. BUTLER.

Rev. Ellery Channing Butler, for eighteen years, the beloved pastor of the historic First Congregational society, passed away at his home on Russell park at 2:30 A. M. Friday, after an illness of nearly a year's duration. Mr. Butler's health had been failing for some years, and at the annual meeting of the parish in March 1911, a letter was read from him, in which he tendered his resignation to take effect at the annual meeting this year. He continued to occupy the pulpit until June at the last Sunday in June, after which the Sunday services were to be discontinued for the summer months. Rev. Mr. Butler occupied the pulpit, which was practically the completion of his seventeenth year as pastor. The following day he sustained a shock, since which time he has been confined to his home.

His life was at a low ebb for some months. Then he seemed to rally, and while there were no hopes of his ultimate recovery it was thought that his life might be spared, and that he would again be able to go out. During all these months of illness he continued to take an interest in what was doing in the city and in the work of his parish.

There have been many touching incidents during his illness which touched his heart, notably the fact that after a social gathering at the church, a basket containing remembrances found its way to his home. But most of all however was his re-appointment by Mayor Stone as a member of the Board of Trustees of the Thomas Crane Public Library upon which he has served for many years. He greatly appreciated the honor that had been conferred upon him and the visit of the then City Clerk McMillan, to his home for the purpose of administering his oath of acceptance of the office was especially pleasing. Since that time several meetings of the Board of Trustees have been held at his home.

A few days ago it was noticed that his health was failing, and last Saturday he sustained a second shock, from which he did not rally. He continued to fail rapidly until 2:30 this morning when he passed away.

Rev. Ellery Channing Butler was born in the village of Coopers town, N. Y., the son of the late famous Cooper poets. The early part of his life was spent in wandering over the hills and valleys of those famous Indian hunting grounds, and he became intimately acquainted with them and the head waters of the Susquehanna river, and the scene of his fondness for field sports and walking through the woods a habit that he has always followed. It was his daily custom when weather permitted, and it had to be a bad day to prevent, to take a long walk through Merrymount park and along the shore front.

His early education was obtained from the schools of his native place, fitting for college in the academy there. He then entered Antioch college in the southern part of Ohio, and was a student there at the same time as the late city Clerk Keith. It was here that the friendship formed an early acquaintanceship that lasted through life.

On leaving college he taught school for some years afterward entering the theological school at Meadville, Pa., from which he graduated in 1881. Immediately after graduating he accepted a pastorate at Fairhaven, Mass., where he remained for three years.

On invitation of Prof. E. J. Young, then of Harvard college he went to Beverly to supply the pulpit of the First parish church. It was his first visit to that town. He was immediately given a call and he accepted beginning his pastorate in 1872. He remained there until 1894 when he received a call from the First church in Quincy which he accepted. The first church was then without a pastor. Rev. Daniel Munroe resigned having resigned in 1891.

Rev. Mr. Butler was installed as pastor of the church June 5, 1894 and the event was a notable one in the history of the church, such well-known Unitarian clergymen taking part in the exercises as Rev. Charles T. Billings, Rev. Paul Beville Frothingham, Rev. Edward A. Horton, Rev. James DeNormandie, Rev. John W. Day, Rev. Daniel M. Wilson and Rev. James E. Bagley. The welcome to the city was given by Rev. Edward Norton the then pastor of the Bethany church.

As pastor of the First church Mr. Butler became chairman of the board of managers of the Woodward Institute which position he has since held. He has also been for many years one of the trustees of the Thomas Crane Public Library.

During all his years in Quincy the utmost harmony of relations has prevailed between Mr. Butler and his parish, which has steadily progressed. Mr. Butler married soon after going to Fairhaven, his wife being a sister of Pres. Cary of the Meadville Theological school. She was a daughter of the late William H. Cary of Medway. They had one son who died some years ago. The death of his only son was a severe blow to Mr. Butler.

Mr. Butler was affiliated with the Masonic fraternity, Royal Arcanum and Quincy Home Washing Co. He was also at one time chaplain of the second corps of cadets.

Some idea of how busy the City Council was Monday night may be had when it is understood that 22 new orders were reported in addition to eight orders granting minor licenses, which were reported by the Committee on Licenses.

It is rumored that W. G. Shaw, after a few weeks' experience in the newspaper business has retired from the company in which he held the responsible positions of president and treasurer. We venture to say that Brother Shaw has not at least "retired" in journalism. If nothing more of his venture in journalism.

Three thirty three of five years' growth set out by the Quincy Women's club on Coddington street, have been sacrificed to the new Court House. Wonder if they will be replaced at some more convenient location or if the Court house will stand high and shadeless. One class of citizens try to make Quincy attractive while others chop down trees as though it were a real pleasure to do so.

On Monday the thirteenth of May (nearly 13 to fifth), the Board of Health will begin to remove from their premises all rubbish or waste material of any sort, that they may co-operate with you in thoroughly cleaning up the premises. This wagon will visit you on the day that your ashes are usually collected or as soon after as is practicable. This clean-up collection will last until June 1st. Fifth means files and files mean disease.

One of the most effective ways for local merchants to oppose encroachments of mail-order houses is to advertise liberally in the home paper. Too many merchants sleep on their oars while the catalogue houses come in and take a large portion of their trade. They demand that the advertising anything like a thorough system of advertising, contending that the drift to the mail-order houses is bound to come; and yet they make free complaint over the inroads of the mail-order houses into their particular trade. The fact of the matter is, the catalogue houses are coming in and would come to them if they were progressive enough in inviting it with good, live advertising.

Will you help? The Civic committee of the Quincy Women's club appeals to the residents of Quincy, to co-operate with the city in an outdoor housecleaning campaign. The city teams will collect all rubbish of any kind during the last two weeks in May, making their collections on their regular days in the various districts. The time has been chosen for the first of the month to the last two weeks to give every one ample time to make a grand cleanup of their premises and be ready for the city teams when they call.

Does your back yard need attention? The city teams will carry away all the debris you collect for them. Let all individuals take the responsibility of this general clean up.

MOTHERS' DAY. It will be a pretty act to celebrate Mother's day—second Sunday in May—by wearing a white flower for Mother's memory, or a bright flower if she is living. If mother is still with us on earth, it would be still more appropriate to go out and dig up the garden in which she is trying to beautify the home, instead of letting her toil with aching back.

The older mothers were brought up in a more toilsome generation. They have never thrown aside the traditions of thrifty industry of the former days. They seem to enjoy life much better when during stockings for the grand children than when going to the theatre.

Our older mothers follow these pursuits so untiringly that one needs to watch over them to see they do not sacrifice themselves needlessly. Every dancing party where the young fry gather in their fluffly gowns means that a band of mothers have sat up till well hours of the morning, in order to finish the last seams with their blurred eyes and trembling hands. It is often pathetic to see the older mothers trying to keep up with the slang and amusements and society of the children. Their minds were not trained in that kind of froth and sparkle. They think more naturally of making bread and saving household leaks.

Feeling themselves awkward and put of place in the society of the period, they often retire into the shell of home tasks for the benefit of the youngsters. It is then up to all of us blessed with a Mother in the house, to see that their declining years are of a lovely holiday, affording rest from toil and the enjoyment of life's good things. Take her along when you go off on a blow-out! Make the entire year a Mother's Day.

POINT CHURCH MEN'S CLUB.

The men's class of the Quincy Point church held their last meeting on Sunday and Mayor Stone and another speaker have been secured. The chairman extends a hearty welcome to all men to attend the meeting and asks them to notify Mr. Fliton of their acceptance so that the refreshment committee will be able to take care of the matter. The promised attendance has already passed the 100 mark and the outlook at the present time promises even more. This does not mean that there will not be room enough for you and your friends, the vestry holds many more than the church. Mr. Fliton has worked hard on this matter and anticipates it will be the largest and best meeting that the club has ever held.

AUTHORITY TO REFUND.

Representative Paper filed the petition of Mayor Stone, asking for authority to refund $150,000 of the temporary loan debt, in the legislature Wednesday accompanied by a certified order as passed by the City Council Monday evening. The petition and order was referred to the Committee on Rules. As the petition is asking for authority to refund $150,000 of the temporary loan debt, it is probable that the Committee on Rules will admit it.

ANNUAL MAY PARTY.

Alpha hall was the scene Thursday evening of a most unique and charming function, the occasion being the annual May party of the Quincy Catholic club. The affair was largely attended and pronounced the most successful yet held by the organization. Potted plants and ferns added to the beauty of the decorations which with the scenic effect of the stage, made the hall most attractive. Fully three hundred were in attendance. Many city officials and representative citizens were present, noticeable among whom were Rev. Fr. John J. Casey and Rev. Patrick J. Scannell of St. John's church, Hon. William T. Shea, Councilman John J. Mahoney and Councilman Harry T. Boyd.

"The New Man and Boy Maker" was the subject of a most instructive address delivered Thursday evening before the Parents and Teachers' Association of the Adams school, in the school building, by Thomas Curley, a well-known attorney, a resident of C. Waltham and a member of the Massachusetts Civic League. The retiring president, Alfred O. Diack was in the chair, and the meeting was attended by the largest number in the history of the association.

The music for the occasion was furnished by the graduating class, under the direction of supervisor of music, Miss M. S. Perkins. All the selections were rendered in a most able manner and caused the contributors to merit loud applause. The election of officers for the ensuing year took place and School Committee Nelson Spence was elected. The retiring president, Alfred O. Diack was in the chair, and the meeting was attended by the largest number in the history of the association.

BOARD OF HEALTH LECTURE.

A large number of members of the Ward Four Improvement Association listened to a very interesting discourse on "The Board of Health and the City of Quincy," delivered in St. John's hall, West Quincy, Thursday evening by William H. Teasdale, chairman of the Board of Health. Mr. Teasdale handled his subject in a most able manner and brought out many points that are of great interest to the success of the occasion.

The remainder of the evening was devoted to a discussion of various things affecting the interests of the West Quincy district and to the transaction of routine business. A communication was read from the Railway Commission, stating that they did not feel at the present time as if they were in a position to comply with the request of the Ward Four Society, relative to the establishment of the so-called "missing link." A committee was then appointed to confer with the Mayor and have the matter brought before the City Council and another committee was appointed to confer with the Railway Commission.

PATRIOTIC ASSOCIATION.

A meeting of the Ward Six Patriotic Association was held Thursday evening at the home of Frank E. Badger, Clive street, to incorporate the association. KAFFEE-KLATSCH LUNCHEON.

The Diatnuh club of Atlantic were entertained Tuesday, at the home of Mrs. W. F. Harden, Hunt street, by the ice cream committee which served the club gentlemen's night. This committee includes Mrs. E. E. Sodergren, Mrs. Paul Butler, and Mrs. W. F. Harden.

Upon their arrival the members were ushered upstairs into Mrs. Sodergren's apartments to dispose of their wraps. Here each lady was presented with a decorated card-board letter, and escorted down stairs to Mrs. Harden's apartments. The letters enabled each to find her proper place at the dining table where corresponding letters were found.

A Kaffee-Klatsch luncheon was served at 12:30. This was a new departure from the usual order of procedure, but it proved very enjoyable. When all were seated they were served with coffee and cake. The special feature was the singing number, the German Favor, executed in a manner similar to a grand march and led by Grand Knight Edward D. Barrett and Mrs. Barrett, in turn were followed by about one hundred couples. Six young ladies distributed the favors. The gentlemen received caps which were worn while the number was in progress and the ladies paper carnations. The number was a decided success and carried out to perfection.

The following young ladies distributed the favors, Misses Agnes Reardon, Lillian McDonald, Emily Dinegan, Anna Heenan, Stella Brown and Carmel Brogan. The floor was in charge of Edward D. Barrett, who was assisted by the following couples: Joseph A. Dashi, Charles C. Heary, Daniel J. Deasy, Thomas J. Dunphy, Robert E. Poy, John W. Walsh, John A. McGowan, Lawrence A. Rogers, C. J. PARENTS' NIGHT.

The second annual Parents' night was held in the banquet hall of the local Y. M. C. A. last evening with H. C. Leggat, Boys' Work Director of the Worcester Y. M. C. A. His subject of the evening was: "How the Parents may co-operate with the Y. M. C. A." In his talk he spoke on how the home should be the place for the boy at all times of his early life, and how it was the best place on earth for the boy. As he speaks most of his time there, it is the place for him to learn the religious part of his life. And again the parents should know the boy in all his habits, in fact in all the boy does when he is away from home. That sometimes it is impossible for the parents to find out where the boy has been for the day, is the reason that the parents have not taken hold of the boy in the right way that he should be taken hold of. That one of the ways for the parents to find out where the boy has been for the day, is the reason that the parents have not taken hold of the boy in the right way that he should be taken hold of. That one of the ways for the parents to find out where the boy has been for the day, is the reason that the parents have not taken hold of the boy in the right way that he should be taken hold of.

At the second May morning musicale of May 15, at the Women's Clubhouse, the soloist will be Miss Mary Louise Eckhoff, soprano. She has a sweet, lyric voice of very high range and sings with ease and with exquisite finish. Her technique is remarkable in rhythmic phrasing and purity of tone and she is sure to please her audience. The selection of Miss Eckhoff as soloist is of special interest as she is the new soprano of the Westland quartet, taking the place of Mrs. Mabel Darnum Everett. This will be her first appearance in an aria and group of songs. The program will also include a cello solo by Miss Marion Moorhouse and several delightful selections by the Mazah Trio. It is certain that the second musicale will be as pleasing as the first which is saying a great deal.

CIVIC CLEAN-UP.

Club women, other women and citizens generally should not forget the dates for the annual clean-up of our city. May 12 to 15, inclusive, are the dates when the city teams call in each ward on the same days as they now call for ashes. Rake up the cellars, rake up the yards and get the rubbish all together in neat piles or receptacles ready for the collectors. Do it now and you will have the city streets vacant, neat and the streets are as tidy as possible.

JUNIOR FRIDAY CLUB.

One of the pleasantest business meetings of the Junior Friday Club was held Monday afternoon with Miss Georgiana C. Lane of Goffe street as the hostess. Maybaskets were given each as souvenirs.

At the business meeting the following officers were elected for the coming year: President, Mrs. Perry Lawton; vice president, Miss Georgiana C. Lane; secretary and treasurer, Miss Ruth Packard; and Miss Edith M. Lovejoy.

QUINCY DAY NURSERY ASSO.

Wadsworth, Presidents hall, which was a most successful one. Mrs. Wadsworth presided in every way, the business meeting being followed by a reception to the new president Mrs. William H. Doble and Miss Jenny Purchase, secretary of the Associated Charities. Many subjects about the Nursery were discussed and the new matron was presented to the people and the Nursery to be in a flourishing condition with 28 to 30 children in daily attendance and three or four babies.

Miss Catherine M. Yule responded by reciting "European Guy" by Mark Twain. Mr. Griffiths sang for the closing number, "I hear you calling," Miss Brooks accompanying at the piano.

The audience was much pleased and a vote of thanks was extended to Mr. Griffiths, Miss Brooks and Miss Yule for their entertainment.

WOMEN'S RIVERSIDE CLUB.

A regular meeting of the Quincy Women's Riverside club was held Wednesday afternoon in the club house of the Tow River Yacht club and in spite of the weather a large number of ladies were present. Several new applications for membership were made and other business came up and was acted upon after which a very pleasant social hour was spent.

A most interesting paper written and read by Mrs. Eleanor D. Hill on the Royal Family of England was enjoyed by all. Mrs. Hill in her younger days was employed in the studio of the royal family and had the pleasure and honor of finishing many photographs of them. Her position in the studio gave her the opportunity of meeting many of the Royalty and many very pleasant reminiscences were told in her paper.

Another very bright paper was read by Mrs. Eva Williams, wife of Quincy's well-known optician. Her paper opened with a beautiful poem entitled "Little at first, but great at last," by Chas. Mackay. As she finished the reading of the poem she compared the new club just formed to the little acorn which falls to the ground and becomes such a large tree and she felt that our little club of 65 or more members had before it a bright future and the little acorn would grow and develop into one of the able Quincy societies to have the city teams call in each ward on the same days as they now call for ashes.

After the reading of the papers the committee in charge of the refreshments gave out word that they were all very much opposed to washing dishes so they would pass around a basket filled with bags of peanuts and candy, and the members of the club on the floor would be fed. The peanuts proved to be crackers which were enjoyed by all. Tangerines in paper napkins were also served.

ATLANTIC SHAKESPEARE CLUB.

The annual meeting of the Atlantic Shakespeare society was held at the residence of Mrs. Roger H. Wilde, Thursday, and officers for the coming year were elected as follows: President—Mrs. W. Ward White; vice president—Mrs. Edward J. Tenney; secretary—Mrs. M. Gordon D. Curney; secretary—Miss Mary L. Hinkley, executive committee—Mrs. White, Mrs. Tenney, Mrs. Gurney, Mrs. Coe, and Miss Hinkley. Music committee—Mrs. Cecil H. Marble, Mrs. F. J. Peirce and Mrs. L. D. Gurney.

The new members were admitted, they having served as substitutes. Mrs. W. A. Jackson, Mrs. F. J. Bartlett, and Mrs. Elijah G. Hall. The reading of the last two scenes of act third in Hamlet completed the readings for the year. Mrs. Tenney, in the absence of the president, welcomed the incoming president in her usual cordial manner. Mrs. White spoke a few words of greeting. Mrs. Tenney extended a hearty invitation to the members present and past and to those who had substituted the past year to visit her bungalow at Scituate for the annual outing in June. Every spring bonnet has its day.

JUNIOR K. D.

The concert and recitations given under the auspices of the Junior members of Unity Circle, King's Daughters, Wednesday night, was worthy of especial mention. The opening number, "Little Pa-pose," sung by Dorothy Edwards, first soprano; Marion Edwards, second soprano; Margaret Hunt, first alto; Florence Leaban, second alto, was very effectively rendered. Their voices blending very harmoniously, and sweetly. They received generous applause, and responded graciously.

The recitation, by Miss Evelyn "The Mission Box," was charmingly rendered, and she was greeted with a round of applause, responding with a sketch from "The adventures of Jimmie Brown."

Thomas N. Shufelt sang a group of songs, "Rejoice," "In a Little Garden," and "Fruit." Mr. Shufelt has an excellent fine baritone voice, does not lose his voice, and his selections gave marked pleasure. He gave "So Like a Flower," in response to repeated applause.

Miss Bewley gave a sketch from Mrs. Wiggs' Cabbage Patch, an inclusion of the "Lucky Mary," which was rapturously applauded.

Mr. Shufelt sang "Three for Jack," responding by repeated calls. Miss Bewley gave "The Lost Joy," which so delighted the audience, she responded with "Mud Pies," and in response to continued applause very effectively rendered. "The White Rose Bud, Just Out of My Reach," Miss Bewley is a perfect artist; her selections are full of pathos, humor, comedy and wit, and her portrayal of them gave great pleasure to the audience.

The evening's entertainment closed with "The Cradle Song," by the quartet of young ladies.

The Junior members of the King's Daughters are certainly to be congratulated upon the entertainment which was an immense success, socially and financially.

QUINCY WOMAN ASSOCIATION.

The Ledger of Wednesday briefly noted the fact that Governor Foss had that morning appointed Mrs. Robert E. Park of Wollaston as a member of the committee of women's minor children of widowed mothers. The bill which is known as Chapter No. 82 is entitled a Resolve to provide for the appointment of a commission to study the question of the support of dependent minor children of widowed mothers, and reads as follows:

Resolved, That the Governor with the advice and consent of the Council, shall, within thirty days after the passage of this resolve, appoint a commission of three persons, citizens of the Commonwealth, at least one of whom shall be a woman, to study and investigate the question of the condition of widowed mothers within the Commonwealth having minor children dependent upon them for support, and to report to the next general court, on or before the second Wednesday in January, as to the advisability of enacting legislation providing for the support of such widowed mothers for the purpose of maintaining such minor children in their homes, submitting with the report such drafts of bills, if any, as may be deemed advisable to carry the recommendations of the commission into effect. The commission shall serve without pay, but may receive for such reasonable travel and other expenses, not exceeding in the aggregate $1,000, as may be authorized by the Governor and Council.

The bill was approved April 7. Representative Leslie was one of the Representatives who spoke on the floor of the House in favor of the bill.

SHOULD NOT EXCLUDE.

President Bowles of the Fore River Shipbuilding Co., was before the Senate on Tuesday on inter-oceanic cables at Washington Wednesday, and said that railroad-owned ships should be allowed to use the Panama canal, and that the "coastwise trade would discourage the shipbuilding industry and result in a general monopoly of water traffic by large independent interests. He further said that while his company could not compete with foreign shipbuilders in constructing merchant vessels, it could compete in the construction of battleships.

PUBLIC LIBRARY NOTES.

There has been a demand recently for books containing plans, suggestions for interior decoration, and furnishings for small houses, cottages, and bungalows. The library has a number of very helpful books on this subject. Perhaps the most suggestive work is H. H. Sayler's Bungalows; work is design, construction, and furnishing, with suggestions also for camps, summer homes and cottages of similar character. Other books of the same kind but not so limited in scope are "Craftsmen homes," by G. Stickley; "The house," by plan, decoration and care," by Isabel Bevier, "Flats, urban houses and cottage homes," by W. S. Sparrow and others; and "Building a home," by H. W. Desmond and H. W. Prohne. For photographs and floor plans of America's best country and suburban homes, modern style, consult "Inexpensive homes of individuality," edited by H. H. Sayler. Also "The art of building a home" by Barry Parker and Raymond Unwin. The latter work gives descriptions of the smaller middle class homes and the art of designing small houses and cottages.

In periodical literature some of the most helpful ideas along this line may be obtained. The magazines to be especially recommended are, "American homes and gardens," "The craftsman," "The house beautiful," and "Country life in America."

ST. MARY'S CONFIRMATION.

"Life is nothing more than a continual warfare," declared Rev. Joseph G. Anderson, D.D., auxiliary Bishop of the archdiocese of Boston, in his address on "The Sacrament of Confirmation," delivered previously to his administering the sacrament to a class of 84 boys and 76 girls, in St. Mary's church, West Quincy, Wednesday. The services opened with a mass, celebrated at ten o'clock by Rev. Fr. Michael J. Cuddihy of St. Margaret's church, Dorchester. Bishop Anderson was assisted in confirming by Rev. Henry T. N. W. V. PREFERENCE BILL.

The bill introduced in the legislature by Representative Leslie, which was known as the Spanish War Veterans Preference bill, and which was sent to the Governor for approval, has been vetoed by Gov. Foss. The bill in brief provided that Spanish War Veterans in taking the civil service examination should be allowed a certain percentage for having served in the Spanish war. The Governor in his veto message says:

N. W. V. PREFERENCE BILL.

The bill introduced in the legislature by Representative Leslie, which was known as the Spanish War Veterans Preference bill, and which was sent to the Governor for approval, has been vetoed by Gov. Foss. The bill in brief provided that Spanish War Veterans in taking the civil service examination should be allowed a certain percentage for having served in the Spanish war. The Governor in his veto message says:

A GOOD TONIC.

Does life seem vain and empty,
 Are all things going wrong,
 Is there little music
 Left in the old song?
 Has the poppy lost its brilliancy,
 The rose, its fragrance too?
 Take something for your liver
 And see how that will do.
 Have the glad days departed?
 Are the old friends cold and far?
 Are the splendid plans all shattered,
 Behind along the way?
 Has the ship for which you've waited,
 Been wrecked on far off shores?
 Go out and walk like free,
 And open up your pores.

The year 1912, if the rest of the twelve months is at all in comparison with what has gone before, will be long remembered as a year of disasters. MOTOR BOAT LAWS.

Quincy residents with homes along the shore front will be pleased that the motor boat laws are to be strictly enforced this summer and that therefore it will be more quiet by day and night upon the water.

Acting under instructions from the Secretary of Commerce and Labor, Collector of Customs Curtis will enforce the laws regulating proper life-saving apparatus and fire extinguishers on motor boats more stringently than ever this season.

In the past, about 200 motor boat owners have had nominal fines of from $1 to $5 imposed upon them by Judge Doliver of the U. S. district court. See. Nagel suggests that the maximum fine of $100 be imposed for each violation hereafter. Daniel A. Shea, special assistant district attorney at this port, will have charge of the prosecution of the cases.

The collector will be assisted in enforcing the law by the customs revenue cutter Winiminnim, Capt. Bowen, and the revenue cutter Gresham, Capt. Warren. The collector is in hopes that the government will chase a fair-sized motor launch that will be used in shallow and narrow passages of water where the revenue cutters cannot go.

Particular attention will be paid to motor boats cruising in bodies of water off the following places: Newburyport, Amesbury, Salisbury, Newbury, Haverhill, Ipswich, Medford, Cambridge, Roxbury, Dorchester, Cohasset, Hingham, Weymouth, Hull, Quincy and Worcester.

The overcrowding of motorboats is another nuisance. Collector Curtis intends to put a stop to this by the following means: Newburyport, Amesbury, Salisbury, Newbury, Haverhill, Ipswich, Medford, Cambridge, Roxbury, Dorchester, Cohasset, Hingham, Weymouth, Hull, Quincy and Worcester.

CITY COUNCIL.

A very large amount of business was transacted at Monday night's meeting of the City Council. There was but little debate however and the business was put through with dispatch. The important matter of the evening was the report of the Special Committee on Financial Investigation. This committee made an exhaustive report, going into the financial situation in detail, particularly in regard to the large outstanding loan, which had now practically become a permanent debt. It wound up its report by offering a resolution requesting the Mayor to petition the legislature for authority to refund $150,000 of its ten-year debt, to be paid at the rate of $15,000 a year. This resolution was adopted with but little debate.

The Committee on Streets reported on a large number of petitions which had been referred to it. Several reports were received from the Committee on Public Buildings calling for the finishing of the hall in the Quincy school building, for an athletic field, etc., while the Committee on Finance sent in reports on several of the matters before it.

In addition to these the License Board in later reported orders granting nearly one hundred minor licenses.

All members were present. The Mayor forwarded a communication appointing Dr. John H. Ash as City Physician, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Dr. Halliwell.

The Mayor also appointed A. L. Leavitt as a constable. Confirmed. The Mayor forwarded a communication from the Commissioner of Public Works asking for an appropriation of $3,000 for house connections with the sewer.

A large number of applications for minor licenses were received and referred to the Committee on Licenses. Petitions for the removal of the school from the old school street were received and laid on the table until later when Councilman Erickson offered an order for their removal.

Councilman Sandberg presented a petition for the acceptance of a part of Morton street. To Street Committee.

A communication in relation to the incorporation of the Norfolk Downs Improvement association was referred to the Committee on Licenses.

Later in the evening a communication was received from C. E. Decker asking permission to examine the books of the tax collector. Referred to the Executive.

The Mayor also sent in a late communication recommending the acceptance of the first five sections of Chapter 101 of the Revised Laws relative to the removal of dilapidated buildings. This was laid on the table and a few minutes later the order adopted by Councilman Able accepting the act which was adopted.

The Finance Committee reported ought to pass on the order appropriating $66.69 to meet deficit bill on the new Wollaston school building. Read and passed in Calendar.

The Finance Committee reported a substitute order for orders appropriating $35 for fire alarm boxes and $25 for an automobile whistle attachment. The substitute order consolidated the two orders. Ordered to a second reading.

R. and the Railroad Commissioners if necessary relative to eliminating the present danger at the Water street, Stanton street, Norfolk street. Adopted.

The Committee, Councilman Richards, Gauthier and C. A. Ross. Leave to withdraw and ought not to pass on the following communications, petitions and orders.

Relative to paving City Square. To accept a new street from Furnace Brook Parkway.

To extend Winthrop street to Rock Island.

To accept Parker and Carlson streets.

later when Councilman Caruthers offered an order granting the license which was adopted.

The Finance Committee reported an order appropriating a sidewalk assessment. Adopted.

The Special Committee on Financial Investigation made a partial report as follows:—

The most serious financial problem confronting the City is the large and constantly growing deficiency in our revenue, the growth of which covers the entire period since Quincy became a city. It has resulted from two causes, the failure of the assessors to make adequate assessments, and the failure of the tax collectors to collect.

The revenue can only be determined approximately as during the early years of the City the books were not accurately kept and in one instance a discrepancy of something over $16,000 is found in the accounts, due doubtless to carelessness and lack of system. Each succeeding administration has been careless in the collection of taxes made in anticipation of taxes assessed for the particular year during which they are made, they should not legally at any time exceed in amount the uncollected taxes and the unappropriated cash balance on hand, and in fact should be considerably less. According to the figures furnished by the committee by the State authorities which are the latest figures available from that source, at the end of the year 1910 the temporary or tax loans outstanding amounted to $270,000. To offset this we had uncollected taxes assessed for that year amounting to $222,000, and a fresh balance of less than $10,000. In other words we were then borrowing at least $60,000 in excess of the face value of the security back of the loan. Until ten or twelve years ago the tax loans for any one year were generally reduced at least one-half. At the end of the year 1911 a tax loan of $475,000 had only been reduced $75,000 leaving a balance outstanding of $400,000. This all shows that something is radically wrong, and clearly bears out our contention that the temporary loans are carrying the burden of this deficiency in revenue. We have had an approximate estimation of this deficiency made by Mr. Wardell of the Bureau of Statistics a statement of which computation we herewith submit, showing that the amount is approximately $150,000.

It is better to understand the causes of this deficiency it should be borne in mind that the deficiency is due to the failure of the assessors to make provision for a tax levy which with the estimated receipts from various sources shall be sufficient to meet the city's current expenses, state, county and metropolitan assessments, interest and maturing debt. They should also include in the tax levy an amount for the deficiency of the City of Quincy, which has been made during the year. As a matter of fact the assessors have not failed to do their duty in these respects. Sufficient provision has not been made for abatement of taxes and we find that since 1883 the assessors have actually abated over $78,000 in taxes for which no provision was made in any of the tax levies. The tax rate has become a foothold of politics and successive administrations have shown more anxiety to secure a low tax rate than one calculated to produce sufficient revenue to meet the city's needs. To reduce the tax rate, revenue is determined the tax levy have too often been over-estimated. Incidentally, we find also that the method of computing the sewer assessments is no longer adequate, the computation being based upon the cost of labor and material seventeen years ago. We are now preparing and soon report a new computation, made by the Commissioner of Public Works which, if adopted, will prevent any further deficiency in revenue from that source.

Your committee is of the opinion that the installation of the uniform system of accounts by the state in accordance with the order of the Council at its last meeting will tend to prevent any further growth of the deficiency through failure on the part of the assessors to make a sufficient levy. The cardinal principles of the new system are simplicity and publicity—simplicity in the keeping of accounts and publicity of all the essential facts necessary to show the actual financial condition of the city, at any time. The failure of the assessors to provide for a sufficient tax levy will be readily apparent and the remedy simple.

The other cause contributing to the present deficiency in revenue has been the failure of the tax collectors to collect. We believe, after consulting with the tax collector that there are now unpaid taxes assessed prior to 1910 amounting to about $21,000 which are uncollectible, and should be abated. We found in the list, taxes assessed upon real estate on which the lien of the city has now been lost through lapse of time. This is absolutely inexcusable and we cannot condemn such conduct too strongly. That politics and favoritism have interfered with the proper collection of taxes is only too evident. We have urged the tax collector to take vigorous measures to collect the old taxes so far as possible. Your committee does not believe that any further recommendation is necessary, as the present legislature has recently enacted a law that undoubtedly will have a strong tendency to prevent such laxity in the future. We refer to Chapter 272 of the Acts of 1912 entitled "An Act Relative to Settlements by Collectors of Taxes."

The law in brief places the tax collectors of the various cities and towns under the direct supervision of the Tax Commissioner, and provides also that when it appears at the end of three years from the commencement of any warrant to a collector any taxes upon such warrant remain uncollected, or if collected have not been turned over to the city treasurer, the Tax Commissioner shall bring suit against the collector for the taxes uncollected and accounted for. As a matter of fact the Tax Commissioner has already taken action under this new law. This is a great step toward removing the collection of taxes from local politics and putting it on a sound business basis.

Feeling assured that any further considerable growth of the deficiency of revenue cannot arise from these causes your committee believes that the time has now come when the city should squarely face the problem of providing some means for taking care of this deficiency so that there may be nothing to prevent a healthy financial condition in the future. As we have already stated the temporary loans in anticipation of taxes are carrying the burden of this deficiency. We are now renewing from year to year temporary loan notes to an amount of over $150,000. The loan is temporary in form but permanent in fact. Your committee has given the matter much consideration and after conferring with Mr. Gettely, the Chief of the Bureau of Statistics, under whose direction the uniform system of accounts is to be installed, earnestly recommends that the present legislature be at once petitioned for authority to fund that portion of the temporary loans which was created by this deficiency of revenue. As the deficiency is a growth of many years we believe that the funding should be in the form of serial notes to cover a period of not less than ten years, $15,000 to be paid each year. This will insure the payment of a portion of the deficiency by each successive administration and the entire disappearance at the end of ten years. In making this recommendation we are acting upon the advice and with the consent of the State Bureau of Statistics.

We strongly recommend the adoption of the accompanying resolution. Respectfully submitted,

George W. Able, Charles W. Bailey, Albert N. Murray, Harry T. Boyd, Robert T. Craig.

Amount of temporary loans outstanding December 31, 1911, $400,000. Total amount of uncollected taxes of all years, about $360,000. Excess of temporary loans over all assets, $40,000.

The law (R. L. ch. 27, Sec. 6) however provides that temporary loans shall be paid from the taxes assessed for that year.

Total amount of uncollected taxes for all years, due Dec. 31, 1911, $361,766.

Amount of uncollected taxes assessed for previous years which cannot legally be applied to the payment of the temporary loan, $106,621.

Add to this the actual excess of temporary loan over all assets, $40,000. Total deficiency, $146,621.

The necessary statements for all years when made will be about $30,000, which is equal to the amount of free cash on hand, and therefore the free cash may be disregarded in this computation.

The resolve which accompanied the report was authorizing the Mayor to petition the legislature for authority for the city to refund $150,000 of its indebtedness caused by money borrowed on temporary loans.

Councilman Richards questioned as to the best method of getting at the question. There were taxes amounting to $222,000 of 1910. There was a question if it would not be preferable to force the collection of the taxes due, even if it was necessary to have a deputy collector. If we do this we could show the legislature that we were doing all we could to relieve the situation.

Councilman Able said that the report was at the suggestion of the State Board of Statistics. Sixteen other cities have already taken the same action and he had been informed that favorable action had been taken on eight of them. If we do not do this of our own accord it will be forced to do it. We have done all in our power to take care of the leakage and prevent it in the future.

Councilman Bailey said we have a temporary outstanding loan of $400,000, and the only funds to meet it are taxes of 1911, amounting to $222,000, making a deficit of $178,000. He was anxious to put the city on a legal and financial basis.

Councilman Cunningham said the only question was as to the amount. He did not want to borrow $150,000, to take care of $75,000. Since Jan. 1, 1912, the city has collected $53,000 of the 1911 tax, so that he has now only $75,000. He believed that if the city asked authority to refund $100,000 it would be sufficient. He also thought that it should only be for five years and not ten years.

He moved to amend the resolve by making the amount $100,000.

Councilman Able responded. We have taken the figures given us by the expert.

Councilman Bailey also opposed. We ought to do a first class job while we are at it.

The amendment was lost and the resolution adopted.

Councilman Craig offered an order discontinuing the soldiers' relief paid Colby Sampson, as he had no settlement in Quincy. Adopted.

Councilman Beaman offered an order for the widening of Faxon road. To Street Committee.

Councilman Sodergren offered the following order:

That Squantum street be widened to a uniform width between Newbury avenue and the boulevard. To Street Committee.

For a tar concrete sidewalk on Newbury avenue. To Street Committee.

Appropriating $5,000 to grade the Montclair school lot. To Committee on Public Buildings.

Appropriating $1,000 to complete the paving of Hancock street. To Street Committee.

Saville avenue, Fairmount way, Glendale road, widening Sea street, Curtis street, Taber street, Nelson street, Double street, Vernon street, Hamilton street, Davis street, Mulhead street, Stanton street, Norfolk street, changing grade Elm street, Cherrington road, Montclair avenue. Adopted.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE LECTURE.

A very large audience attended the Christian Science lecture at Long's hall, Brattle, Sunday afternoon by William R. Rathvon, C. S. B. of Denver, Col., a member of the Christian Science Board of Lecturers of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, of Boston. In his lecture Mr. Rathvon said:

The intelligent study of any science should proceed by the orderly use of its text-books. Its laws and its statements thus learned are to be proved in the laboratory, in the laboratory, or in the field, as the case may be.

Christian Science, universal in its usefulness and in its availability is likewise to be learned from its text-book and then proved and demonstrated in all the various avenues and activities of everyday life, wherever man mingles with man or his interests teach those of his fellows.

BESIDES THE BIBLE

Christian Science has but one text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy. It is not a book to be quickly read or hastily thumbed over as one would a shallow novel. Nor is it to be approached with bias or prejudice if one would share its riches; but its truths may be proved and in turn imparted by child or sage who turn its leaves with an open mind. Only the open flower it is that catches the dew and yields its honey to the bee.

Saint and sinner meet on common ground in the pages of this remarkable book, and though its starts all alike at the bottom of the ladder it always reaches the top.

Time and again its covers have been rudely torn open by untried hands in search of phrases to wrench from their context and with which to smite men of straw, yet neither force nor deceit, the blundering of the bear or the cunning of the fox can ever succeed in suppressing its tidings of comfort and joy.

It has been asserted that Christian Scientists place their text-book above the Bible as the guide to righteousness. No one can honestly make this allegation who has read the book carefully, for on page 197 of Science and Health are printed these words, the first of a series of tenets of our religion:

"As adherents of Truth we take the inspired Word of the Bible as our sufficient guide to eternal life."

What more emphatic and explicit negation of such a charge could be demanded?

The truths of Christian Science do not originate in the book of Science and Health. They find expression there but their origin is in God. They have always existed and will forever exist. What effect, then, it may be asked, does the study of this book have upon those who have previously been Bible students? Does it conflict with their reverence and admiration? Is the book or books less precious to them than before? The answer is, "No." On the other hand Science and Health harmonizes many seeming incongruities in the Bible which have long perplexed layman and theologian; it explains apparent contradictions; it discloses unexpected riches; it gives new significance to favorite passages, and brings neglected ones into favor.

No man can read it with an open heart, and not be a better man for the reading; no sorrowing one need miss its message of comfort; no tortured one need be comforted by its message of peace; no despairing one need close it in despair. The simple may gather from it wisdom; the wise may gain from it simplicity.

It was written in solitude by a woman whose spiritual hearing was acute enough to catch the words that God has been speaking aloud to dull-headed mankind ever since time began.

And so it is with all other bodily ailments, and ailments of the mind, they have one and all responded to the curative influence of Mind, administered in Christian Science.

HEREAFTER.

In considering the immortality of man one is confronted by the question, "What of the hereafter?" Has man to regard the change called death? What and where is heaven? Christian Science makes direct answer to these very natural questions. That which is called death, though always an enemy and finally to be overcome, as the Bible declares, is no more to be feared than is sleep. It is the state of rest, of development, of the body, which is incidental to the experience of mankind; but it interferes for the time with man's activities; and the awakening—like in all cases—will, we believe, show no substantial change in individuality or advancement. The gates of heaven do not swing open at the death of the body, but are to be entered by right thinking and right living, here and hereafter.

The work of regeneration and reformation left unfinished here will have to be done hereafter. The stirring command, "Work out your own salvation," follows us wherever we may go, and through all our changes we may pass. Death does not silence it nor modify its demands. Love of life, not fear of death, is in Christian Science the great incentive to action and achievement.

Most men have found they can get what they want of heaven's blessings, right here on earth, and there are many who believe they have already had more than their share of it, and perhaps they have. But they should know that it does not come from the hand of God. Sin brings its own punishment. It has been truly said that man is not to be trusted for his sins, but by his sins. By sin is meant what Paul defines as transgression of the law, whether due to man's ignorance of God's law or to his willful disobedience of it. The child who, through ignorance or disobedience, picks up a piece of hot iron suffers because of his father's fault; his father has had nothing to do with his suffering, and "Our Father which art in heaven," loving every one of His children, sends upon them neither pain nor penalty. From Him cometh only the "good and perfect gift" which is necessary, then, it is for our salvation, for our health, for our safety and our well-being to understand God's spiritual laws that we may obey them. Many of us for years sought this understanding in the churches and out of them, seeking peace of mind and health of body and finding neither until we turned to Christian Science, where we found them both and with them gained a measure of the understanding of God that has transformed our lives.

LOVE VS. FEAR.

There is a short and cheering message that Christian Science has to deliver to all who have ears to hear. It is not a new message. It has reassured the children of men ever since they first felt the chill of fear. The loving mother encouraging her trembling infant, the gallant captain cheering his men to greater valor, the gentle Saviour quieting his frightened disciples, all use it. That message is "Be not afraid."

Frequently it is said, "It is all well enough to say 'do not be afraid,' but how am I to get rid of fear and worry and anxiety? I use all the will-power and determination I can command, yet I do not get rid of worry. It comes in about as fast as I drive it out."

Attempting to get the mastery of fear and worry by will-power alone is like trying to beat back the ocean with a baseball bat, or trying to chase clouds away with a broom. You cannot get rid of them by fighting them, but you can readily get out of their reach by rising higher. The waves of fear and the mists of worry do not extend upwards and if you will but climb to the hilltop of selflessness where Love stands waiting to welcome you with outstretched hands, you will no longer be buffeted by fear or befogged by worry. For centuries St. John has been telling this to the world in these words, "Perfect love casteth out fear."

Love for God and man is the one indispensable element of the true and lasting success. The world of today is slow to rise to the appreciation of this great truth. The world of commerce, of industry, of the professions is still constructing its various undertakings out of the raw materials of energy, determination, skill and enterprise, each of which is necessarily used in its particular channel, but all are lacking in the one essential needed to make them enduring and truly beneficial. That one thing needful is love for God and man.

Did you ever consider how our great cities are made up of buildings, large and small, each constructed by laying one brick on top of another until their walls tower upward and the streets stretch, how all of this is possible only through the universal use of that commonplace and homely material known as mortar? And did you ever consider how these miles of walls would totter and crash to the ground if the countless millions of pieces which composed them were not cemented together by the mortar that binds every brick and stone?

So it is with our thoughts, our actions, our endeavors. They are brick and stone and mortar, and they are constructed. However well shaped, however carefully laid they may be, unless they are bound above and below with the cement of love for God and man, they may in time tumble into a tangled mass of mediocrity like mortared bricks. But when laid with the cement of love into the structure of our lives, they will protect and shelter and beautify the affairs of all who enter them.

DISCOURAGEMENT.

Christian Science brings the Truth to human comprehension, gives freedom from whatever enslaves and thus bestows mental peace and physical liberty. In the process of liberation it sifts out certain pernicious practices and propensities, generally regarded as harmless, but which are to be shunned as allies of evil. It shows us that we have indulged in moods and inclinations that we believed were gentlemanly and noble, but which were in reality neither wise nor harmless. We find we have been warming in the incubator of our favor the eggs of serpents that we believed belonged to doves. Perhaps the most common of disease-inviting habits of thought is discouragement. I dare say we have all seen in intimate terms with it one time or another and while we have never found it cheerful company, we have not looked upon it as a sinister visitor. Yet that is just what Christian Science shows it to be.

Discouragement wears the invisible lure of evil and it is constantly and consistently working for our undoing. It is always pulling down and never building up.

Did you ever know any one to accomplish anything while he was in the grip of discouragement? It paralyzes effort, stupefies thought and dissipates purpose.

An effective plan to drive out discouragement is to bring into thought some measure of gratitude or praise. There can always be found something to be grateful for if we will hunt for it honestly and earnestly. The good old-fashioned practice of counting our blessings, the things we have we would like to thank God for, and which bring gratitude to the surface for along every man's pathway in life there are blooming the sweet flowers of gratitude and if he will but stoop and pull one and wear it he will find its fragrance a real dispeller of discouragement.

THE COMMONPLACE.

I thank God for the commonplace—
The joys that garment every day—
The unremembered, unseen things—
The unremembered, unseen things—
That keep the common way.

The routine task that all the years
Has kept his one unchanging place—
Unremembered through cloud and mist
A smile upon his face.

Man's life is like a little road
That runs beside a cabin door,
Feeling its way among the flowers
That bloom forevermore.

And hushed about by common things
That change not as the years run by The ancient landmarks lead him on Toward the homing sky.

The heavenly glory does not hide
Far off in some sequestered place—
The morning's opening door reveals God in the daily face.

MODEST COAT OF PAINT.

"Yes," acknowledged Uncle Joseph, stroking his grizzled beard, "I reckon that's the end of the carpet."

For Uncle Joseph this was a great concession. Six years before Aunt Debby had called his attention to the fact that the sitting-room carpet was worn out, and had urged the desirability of replacing it immediately. But Uncle Joseph had been so busy with his work, and so busy with his work, and so busy with his work, that he had not had time to do so.

Just about the time when Uncle Joseph was conducting Aunt Debby upstairs to take off her wraps, a top-heavy carrying three girls stopped at Aunt Debby's gate. Kitty Dalany was the first out.

"The key is hanging on a nail back of the first window-shutter to the right," Elmer called after her. "Aunt Debby always leaves it there. Be careful, Helena."

This last warning was addressed to Helena Barry, the third member of the trio, who was a small girl who, planning mischief, long to take others into her confidence, but is deterred by fear of interference.

made the keen old eyes behind the spectacles blink uncertainly. "Trust me," said Elmer's eyes; "I understand."

But Uncle Joseph, seeing an opportunity to save a workman's hire, accepted the offer with flattering alacrity. "Good for you, Elmer," he exclaimed. "Some folks think that dedication spoils a girl for practical things, but since you're just as level-headed as ever. Come around and do the job any time you feel like it. I'll pay for the paint," said Uncle Joseph generously. "Pick out any color you like. We can trust her taste, Elmer."

Aunt Debby replied with a non-committal murmur. Again the peculiarly significant look from Elmer had reduced her to a state of bewilderment in which there was a strange mingling of comfort.

It was two days later that Elmer's mother invited Uncle Joseph and Aunt Debby to dinner. As the invitation had been given at Elmer's instigation, her mother was surprised to learn that she was not to be at home. "Aunt Debby will be disappointed," she said reproachfully. "She so fond of you."

"And I am of her. I won't forget her even if I'm not here," Elmer looked at her mother very much like a small girl who, planning mischief, long to take others into her confidence, but is deterred by fear of interference.

Two blocks down the street they met Uncle Joseph and Aunt Debby jogging peacefully home, their faces expressing a content that spoke well for the hospitality of Elmer's mother. Aunt Debby looked fondly at the three flushed faces that smiled in her direction. "If there's anything prettier than a bunch of young girls," she said, "I don't know what it is."

"They're good-looking girls," agreed Uncle Joseph, "and nice girls, too. That Elmer in particular, has got a level head."

As the old people entered the house both stood still and sniffed.

"It smells like fresh paint," declared Aunt Debby.

"It can't be," said Uncle Joseph, with masculine readiness to discredit the evidence of his senses in favor of his common sense.

"It is, though," insisted Aunt Debby. "Then feminine intuition came to her aid. 'It's the sitting-room floor, Elmer's painted it just as she said, and she came while we were away, so it must be a trouble, I suppose.' In her kindly old heart there was a conflict between gratitude and regret."

Uncle Joseph was delighted. "I'll warrant she's made a good job of it, too," he declared. "But I'm going to pay for the paint. I shall insist on that." He strode to the open door of the transformed room, and stood staring blankly.

"Jumping Jehoshaphat!"

At the extraordinary ejaculation, called forth as Aunt Debby knew, only by something startling and unusual, she ran forward in alarm. "What is it, Joseph? What's happened?"

Her incredulous eyes answered her. Long and silently she gazed while Elmer's sister idly winked at the Greek border in green and red, and lingered long over Elmer's effort at impressionism. She blinked as she gazed at the waving lines of blue and magenta on which Helena had once shied her artistic skill. All at once she sat down on the stairs, and laughed till she cried.

As Uncle Joseph still remained speechless, his wife found her tongue. "I guess it's sanitary, all right, Joseph. I don't believe there's a self-respecting germ on earth that could camp down on a rainbow like that."

"Suffering Moses!" cried Uncle Joseph.

"I don't guess we need to worry about being behind the styles," continued Aunt Debby. "We're so far ahead that it'll be a generation or two before anybody catches up with us. How well they enjoy it with a neighbor drops in!" she continued, using her advantage mercilessly.

There's no doubt we'll have considerable company as soon as folks get wind of this."

"Jimmy beawax!" groaned Uncle Joseph.

"Well, we've got a painted floor," said Aunt Debby, rising briskly to her feet. "I'd have preferred a carpet myself. But as long as you wanted paint, it's all right. Elmer must have spent considerable thought working up these designs. And you mustn't forget to ask her how much you owe her for the paint."

Aunt Debby had not finished her breakfast dishes the next morning when Uncle Joseph opened the outer door. "I've harnessed," he announced briefly.

"Harnessed? What for, Joseph?"

"We've got an errand to do in town, you and me. Get your bonnet."

Aunt Debby's intuition came to her aid. She emptied her dish-pan, and removed her gingham apron. "I'll be ready in a minute," she replied briefly, and hurried for her wraps. As she passed the sitting-room, she glanced at the resplendent floor, and the yellow goblin winked at her in triumph.

They reached town before either of them broached the subject of their errand. Then Aunt Debby spoke a little timidly. "As we were going to Epstein's or Cradock's?"

"Well, go where you want to get the prettiest carpets. I don't mind a few cents extra on a yard. But, Debby," the old man's grip tightened on the lines. "Debby, I'll pay for the carpet, but you've got to take your butter money, and pay for that paint!"

"We've got an errand to do in town, you and me. Get your bonnet."

Aunt Debby's intuition came to her aid. She emptied her dish-pan, and removed her gingham apron. "I'll be ready in a minute," she replied briefly, and hurried for her wraps. As she passed the sitting-room, she glanced at the resplendent floor, and the yellow goblin winked at her in triumph.

They reached town before either of them broached the subject of their errand. Then Aunt Debby spoke a little timidly. "As we were going to Epstein's or Cradock's?"

"Well, go where you want to get the prettiest carpets. I don't mind a few cents extra on a yard. But, Debby," the old man's grip tightened on the lines. "Debby, I'll pay for the carpet, but you've got to take your butter money, and pay for that paint!"

Two blocks down the street they met Uncle Joseph and Aunt Debby jogging peacefully home, their faces expressing a content that spoke well for the hospitality of Elmer's mother. Aunt Debby looked fondly at the three flushed faces that smiled in her direction. "If there's anything prettier than a bunch of young girls," she said, "I don't know what it is."

"They're good-looking girls," agreed Uncle Joseph, "and nice girls, too. That Elmer in particular, has got a level head."

As the old people entered the house both stood still and sniffed.

"It smells like fresh paint," declared Aunt Debby.

"It can't be," said Uncle Joseph, with masculine readiness to discredit the evidence of his senses in favor of his common sense.

"It is, though," insisted Aunt Debby. "Then feminine intuition came to her aid. 'It's the sitting-room floor, Elmer's painted it just as she said, and she came while we were away, so it must be a trouble, I suppose.' In her kindly old heart there was a conflict between gratitude and regret."

Uncle Joseph was delighted. "I'll warrant she's made a good job of it, too," he declared. "But I'm going to pay for the paint. I shall insist on that." He strode to the open door of the transformed room, and stood staring blankly.

"Jumping Jehoshaphat!"

At the extraordinary ejaculation, called forth as Aunt Debby knew, only by something startling and unusual, she ran forward in alarm. "What is it, Joseph? What's happened?"

Her incredulous eyes answered her. Long and silently she gazed while Elmer's sister idly winked at the Greek border in green and red, and lingered long over Elmer's effort at impressionism. She blinked as she gazed at the waving lines of blue and magenta on which Helena had once shied her artistic skill. All at once she sat down on the stairs, and laughed till she cried.

As Uncle Joseph still remained speechless, his wife found her tongue. "I guess it's sanitary, all right, Joseph. I don't believe there's a self-respecting germ on earth that could camp down on a rainbow like that."

"Suffering Moses!" cried Uncle Joseph.

"I don't guess we need to worry about being behind the styles," continued Aunt Debby. "We're so far ahead that it'll be a generation or two before anybody catches up with us. How well they enjoy it with a neighbor drops in!" she continued, using her advantage mercilessly.

There's no doubt we'll have considerable company as soon as folks get wind of this."

"Jimmy beawax!" groaned Uncle Joseph.

"Well, we've got a painted floor," said Aunt Debby, rising briskly to her feet. "I'd have preferred a carpet myself. But as long as you wanted paint, it's all right. Elmer must have spent considerable thought working up these designs. And you mustn't forget to ask her how much you owe her for the paint."

Aunt Debby had not finished her breakfast dishes the next morning when Uncle Joseph opened the outer door. "I've harnessed," he announced briefly.

"Harnessed? What for, Joseph?"

"We've got an errand to do in town, you and me. Get your bonnet."

The Board of Health is beginning a crusade against mosquitoes by covering all marshes and bodies of stagnant water with petroleum. All bodies of still water are being drained for these are the mosquitoes breeding grounds. Co-operation on your part will reduce the number of these pests in your vicinity, and encourage the Board of Health in their good work.

CITY CLEAN-UP.

This is clean up week and the Board of Health is co-operating with the citizens in making their yards clean. Any old rubbish placed with the ash barrels will be removed by the Board of Health teams. The office of the Board at City Hall will be open to take a hand in this cleanup and make sure that a large number of families were taking advantage of the offer and many cart loads of old rubbish had been carried away by its teams.

SPOTLESS TOWN.

This was the first week of cleanup days, inaugurated by the Quincy Women's club, ably assisted by the City and other organizations and we are looking for a "spotless town" when their labors are ended. It should be a matter of pride with every man, woman and child to take a hand in this cleanup and make sure that a large number of families were taking advantage of the offer and many cart loads of old rubbish had been carried away by its teams.

After the yard is in order, back as well as front, there is the gutter, the street, or even the vacant lot across the way, cannot something be done there also? Children can pick up papers and be taught tidiness and help in the clean up crusade.

Beautiful surroundings have a wonderful effect upon our lives besides giving pleasure. Travellers through Holland says the Framingham News, tells us how neat and attractive are the homes and surroundings of the common people; what it love they have for flowers as well as cleanliness. We may emulate them to our advantage and enjoyment. First let us rake up the rubbish—the old leaves, tin cans, ashes and other refuse—cart it all off to the dump and start clean, and do it early. Be very careful about kindling, rubbish, especially where they get beyond control and spread. Meantime study what you can do for a little flower garden this spring and summer; no matter how small, but something. The love of and care of flowers is one evidence of refinement and will make you friends, as it does everywhere. It will please and interest and profit you even more than anybody else.

GENTLEMEN'S NIGHT.

The annual gentlemen's night of the Unitarian Church Helpers was observed in the Wollaston Congregational church vestry Tuesday evening and fortunate were those who were permitted to attend.

A supper of unusual elegance was served by a committee consisting of Mrs. Paul E. Brodbeck, Mrs. James B. Goddes, Mrs. Emma H. Taylor, Mrs. C. H. Baker, Mrs. Edmund Taylor and Mrs. Axel Nelson. They were assisted by: Miss Margaret Taylor, Miss Gretchen Horst, Miss Helen Thompson, Miss Dorothy Atwood, Miss Kathleen Jones, Miss Dorothy Stevens and Gordon Rowe.

Place cards of flowers decorated with marguerites were in evidence, while vases of that flower added to the attractiveness of the tables.

The entertainment of the evening consisted of "A display of the world famous wax-works of the celebrated Mrs. Jarley" was witnessed by a large masculine contingent that vigorously applauded.

In the well-known cap and gown of Mrs. Jarley, Mrs. William E. Rowe introduced the various figures which were dusted, oiled and set in motion by her two assistants, Miss Dorothy Stevens and Miss Margaret Taylor.

Each figure was set in motion separately after a description by Mrs. Jarley and the entertainment concluded with an ensemble in which appeared all the characters simultaneously in motion.

The cast was as follows:

WOLLASTON PARK HEARING.

Over one hundred ladies and gentlemen from Wollaston attended the hearing given by the City Council committee on Public Buildings in the Council Chamber, City Hall, Wednesday evening on the petition of the Wollaston Parents' and Teachers' association, that the old Wollaston school lot be retained by the city as a public park and playground. The sentiment in favor of retaining the lot was a unanimous one. Although but comparatively few of those present spoke on the question when it was put to a vote all stood up and not one sentiment of opposition was expressed. Councilman Bailey, chairman of the committee presided and all members of the committee were present.

Hon. Eugene H. Sprague the new president of the Wollaston association opened the meeting. Mr. Sprague said that in 1893 the city of Quincy appropriated $50,000 for public park purposes for each ward of the city. In Wollaston a park was laid out on Third Hill. Sometime later the Metropolitan Water Commission laid the location for a stand pipe and the city sold the land to the commission receiving $7,000 for it. None of that money had been expended in Wollaston. Part of it had been used in the other wards of the city and there was now something like $1,000 left in the city treasury. He believed that it was an opportune time for the city to get a desirable lot for public purposes.

Mrs. Walter S. Pinkham desired to define what was meant by the request for a playground. It was not to be a place to play baseball or football for the older children, who are now well taken care of, but more of a place for the younger children. That is under 6 years of age. Where they can come and play. There was no such place for them now. She had always believed that there should be two playgrounds. One for the older and one for the younger children, if together they would both be better. For the younger children it was very desirable that they could have a place for their sand boxes and seats for their mothers. She did not think that the older children would go there. It should be laid out so that the front should be a beautiful spot while in the rear should be the sand boxes and they would not thus take away from the beauty of the spot. It could be laid out so that the rear would be a beautiful spot while in the rear should be the sand boxes and they would not thus take away from the beauty of the spot. It could be laid out so that the rear would be a beautiful spot while in the rear should be the sand boxes and they would not thus take away from the beauty of the spot.

David H. Goodspeed, master of the Wollaston school, said that it seemed to him that this was one of the districts that needed an open space where the boys and girls could play more the matter of land to read was not no such place in the centre of Wollaston as far as he knew. He said "While the school was located in the old building we had no place at all. Everytime a boy hit a ball it went on some one's lawn, and there was trouble all the time. When we moved into the new building we had the rear lot where the older boys can play. Coming down Beale street we have the first house, the Unitarian church and the new school, all fine structures. In the development of children we realize there are other things than teaching them how to read and write. We must look to the physical side, the mental and normal side and a course that gets us back to nature. In our nature work we teach home gardening and the names of the different trees. It might also be possible to take up the matter of home gardening. We could also have a place where we could carry on a school garden.

If this lot was laid out as it should be, it would be an ornament to the city. From 200 to 300 children go by there every day. We try to teach the children to keep off of the lawns of other people. In reply to a question by members of the committee Mr. Goodspeed said he would advise part of it as a playground for the kindergarten children. He would not make it as a thorough playground. It should be a place of beauty as well as a place where mothers and children could go. Rev. Carl G. Horst said his church stood for the welfare of the city. He knew outdoor life. We want to get back to nature. It is one of the best ways to keep our bodies well and strong. Nature is a most wonderful chemist in ways unknown to us. Wollaston is growing as never before. Houses are getting so near the people on one place as hear what people on the adjoining plaza are talking about. All appreciate that open air spaces are needed. There was more building going on in Wollaston than ever before. Continuing he said: "We in Wollaston pay a large tax. We did not ask for school until it was absolutely necessary. Now we want a park because we need it. Now is the opportunity to get a centrally located park and the citizens of Wollaston are ready to put their hands in their pockets and put it in proper shape. It will be an investment. It will pay a large dividend. In behalf of the citizens of Wollaston, and the nation unborn I appeal to you to report favorably on this petition."

L. C. Merrill said he represented the Methodist church whose people were heartily in favor of the plan. It was a place very much needed in it would increase real estate values. It would be the only vacant lot available. Ex-Councilman W. H. Hull said he represented the Wollaston Congregational club which voted unanimously to pledge anything and he would be in favor of the proposition. He had looked into some things in relation to the question. In the first place the city was not in the proper condition financially to be asked to beautify the spot. A few days ago a petition had been circulated and $500 had been pledged. Since then he had secured $175 more and he could say there would be $1,000 pledged to have the lot beautified by a landscape gardener without any expense to the city.

Mr. Hull then spoke of the deed of gift of a part of the land. He said that he had seen but one heir of Nathaniel F. Safford who gave the land for educational purposes. That was his son N. M. Safford. Mr. Hull then read a letter from him in which he stated that he would do all he could to co-operate with the city in making the spot a park. He was willing to waive anything and he would gladly give his consent. If possible, however he would like to have it called Safford Park.

Mr. Hull then read the heading on the subscription paper, which stated that the money was given with the understanding that the city retain the lot and remove the old building, the lot to be laid out by a landscape gardener.

At this point Mayor Eugene R. Stone who was present said he desired to say that he was heartily in favor of the city retaining the lot for park purposes and believed that it should be done. He had talked with the City Solicitor about it and believed that it could be properly arranged.

Ex-Mayor Charles M. Bryant did not know just where he stood. As far as having an open space he was very much in favor of it. He was however, opposed to having it as a playground. Beale street was the main thoroughfare and was much travelled and there would be danger to small children. He believed the opportunity to have the spot reserved had now come. He had in mind having the old building removed and a branch library established on lot. He believed land back of the present school could be taken and there would be enough for two playgrounds, one for the older and one for the younger children. Then they would be out of the way and off of the street. If used as a playground there would be a confusion of authority between the School committee and Park commissioners. Of the original amount received from the sale of the park lot he believed that it was something like $1,025 left. He believed that the city should retain the lot in shape. Then if desired the citizens could with their funds erect a small one story brick building as a branch library.

The Chairman then asked all in favor of the matter as outlined in the petition to rise and nine stood up. He then asked all in favor of retaining the lot as a beauty spot, a public place, to stand and the vote was a unanimous one. The next call was for all in favor of having the lot kept as a playground leaving the details to later consideration to rise and 68 stood up.

Mrs. Stephen P. Moorehouse said that in Germany they had many of these small parks. There was no reason why the children could not have gardens and trees. Ex-Mayor Bryant said that the sum received from the sale of the old building would be but little. Let the city reserve the land and appropriate the remainder of the money received for the sale of the Third Hill land for the grading. Then the fund contributed could be used in beautifying the spot and he would be willing to contribute.

Ex-Councilman Walter S. Pinkham believed that Wollaston was entitled to what little there was left of the money received from the sale of the land on Third Hill. If the land on the school lot should be sold the city could only use the income which at 4 percent would not amount to much. Ex-Mayor Bryant spoke of the hearing by the City Council committee to give Wollaston back part of the principal of what belonged to it. He however believed that the action that might be taken by the committee would be satisfactory to the citizens.

The hearing then closed and will be taken up by the committee later in executive session.

AMONG THE CLUBS.

Mrs. Philip Carpenter, one of the candidates for the presidency of the Federation of Women's clubs, at the biennial to be held in June at Los Angeles, Cal., is a most charming woman. She is not only an excellent housekeeper, but a successful professional woman. Her husband is a lawyer and she is associated with him in business.

Quincy people may enjoy the pleasure of a June breakfast for the month of Quincy, for the Philanthropy committee of the Quincy Women's club has arranged for one on Saturday June 1st at Alpha hall, the proceeds to be for the benefit of charitable work on Friday.

On Friday, May 31st the Hospital Aid Association is to meet at the home of Mrs. Frank A. Page of Wollaston. Note change of usual day because of Memorial day.

Although it was the annual and also the last meeting of the season there was not a large attendance Tuesday afternoon at the clubhouse. The president, Mrs. E. C. Reports were given by the treasurer Mrs. Herbert W. Pinkham, and by the corresponding secretary Mrs. Holman, the latter reading with much regret a letter from Mrs. Tirrell, who resigned from the office of recording secretary, because of her removal from Quincy.

Mrs. Sheppard spoke of the great loss Mrs. Tirrell would be to the club and the city generally, and how her help and help in the community. In appreciation of Mrs. Tirrell's club work and sang the club hymn, composed by her during the presidency of Mrs. George W. Morton.

Mrs. Sheppard spoke feelingly of the loss the club had sustained in the death of Mrs. Francis D. Delmore of Wollaston, and of the love and comradeship between mother and daughter. Mrs. Frederick H. Bishop, a club member to whom the club extended deep sympathy.

Mrs. Smith of the Philanthropy committee announced two June monthly meetings at Quincy at Alpha hall from 6.30 to 1.30; the other at Wollaston in the Unitarian vestry from 5.30 to 2, and hoped members would receive the tickets in a cordial spirit when they arrived. Mrs. Sheppard will be in charge at Quincy and Mrs. N. G. Nicholson at Wollaston.

The president asked for an informal vote on enlarging the club membership and those present favored enlarging.

Mrs. George L. Badger was elected recording secretary to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Mrs. Tirrell.

Mrs. G. B. Bates of the Woman's Exchange announced that her committee was selling plants and taking orders for the June Club works and hoped for the patronage of club members as the committee received a commission on the sales. A. P. QUINCY CHAPTER.

The annual meeting of Abigail Phillips Quincy Chapter, D. A. R. of Wollaston, was held at the residence of Mrs. Benjamin Sargent, Willow street, Monday afternoon. QUINCY WOMEN'S CLUB.

Although it was the annual and also the last meeting of the season there was not a large attendance Tuesday afternoon at the clubhouse. The president, Mrs. E. C. George Crothers, was in the chair and called for the report of the recording secretary. That was given by Mrs. Percy Holman in the absence of Mrs. Henry W. Tirrell in Vermont. Reports were given by the treasurer Mrs. Herbert W. Pinkham, and by the corresponding secretary Mrs. Holman, the latter reading with much regret a letter from Mrs. Tirrell, who resigned from the office of recording secretary, because of her removal from Quincy.

Mrs. Sheppard spoke of the great loss Mrs. Tirrell would be to the club and the city generally, and how her help and help in the community. In appreciation of Mrs. Tirrell's club work and sang the club hymn, composed by her during the presidency of Mrs. George W. Morton.

Mrs. Sheppard spoke feelingly of the loss the club had sustained in the death of Mrs. Francis D. Delmore of Wollaston, and of the love and comradeship between mother and daughter. Mrs. Frederick H. Bishop, a club member to whom the club extended deep sympathy.

Mrs. Worster of the music committee spoke of the success of the May morning musicales at the clubhouse and announced Miss Sheppard of Lynn as the soloist for the last one on May 29th.

Mrs. Smith of the Philanthropy committee announced two June monthly meetings at Quincy at Alpha hall from 6.30 to 1.30; the other at Wollaston in the Unitarian vestry from 5.30 to 2, and hoped members would receive the tickets in a cordial spirit when they arrived. Mrs. Sheppard will be in charge at Quincy and Mrs. N. G. Nicholson at Wollaston.

The president asked for an informal vote on enlarging the club membership and those present favored enlarging.

Mrs. George L. Badger was elected recording secretary to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Mrs. Tirrell.

Mrs. G. B. Bates of the Woman's Exchange announced that her committee was selling plants and taking orders for the June Club works and hoped for the patronage of club members as the committee received a commission on the sales. The plants were selected stock from the greenhouses of William Patterson.

A beautiful bouquet of daybreak gladioli adorned the president's desk, a gift to her from the Hospitality committee.

D. O. CLUB DAY.

D. O. club day was observed at the Park and Downs church Tuesday was distinct success both financially and from point of numbers. Starting in the early morning with a breakfast and concluding with an entertainment of unusual merit in the evening the many features were a source of congratulation to the club. As early as 5.15 the members were bussed among the pots and pans in the kitchen and at 6 o'clock a dainty breakfast was served from that time until 9 o'clock, and was enjoyed by a large number. During the meal fortune tellers were sold by Miss Marie Brown and many found what the day had in store for them.

Members of the breakfast committee were: Miss Clara Mansfield, Miss Ethel Turner, Miss Nellie Palmer, Miss Hazel Jones, Miss Ruth Page and Miss Geraldine Scott, and they were assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo Bisset and Mrs. Elizabeth Brown.

The announcement of "Sales from the silver sands," had aroused a lot of curiosity and a large amount of patronage, especially from the children. This was a novel form of grab consisting of a large level surface of sand treated in such a manner as to give it a silvery effect. The play of electric lights on this caused the entire surface to glisten and sparkle in the most fascinating manner.

In this, upon payment of a small sum, one was allowed to borrow until "silver" was discovered.

In addition were booths of candy and ice cream, the decorations of white being especially pleasing. In charge of the ice cream was Mrs. George H. Stebbins, while Miss Geraldine Scott was at the candy table.

The "crowning success" came with the evening's entertainment, which was of unusual merit, and was attended by audience of over 300. The entertainment took place in the church auditorium and opened with the rendition of "Layettes" by Hahn, a baritone solo by W. Allen Stoddard of Brockton, Mr. Stoddard was accompanied by Miss Emily O. Bjorkman.

A "Spanish Dance" by Popper was the selection of Miss Marion Moorehouse, Wollaston's well-known "celist." She was accompanied by her mother, Mrs. S. P. Moorehouse, an organist of long standing and a very capable soloist.

Miss Lois Annabelle Bell gave a reading of "The Witching Hour," by Augustus Thomas. Miss Bell is a post graduate of the Emerson college of oratory, and her readings always find favor with Wollaston audiences.

A group of "Bird Songs" by Liza Lehmann was the offering of Miss Rosetta Key of Winthrop, soprano of the new old South church of Boston. Miss Key is the daughter of a former minister of the Wollaston Unitarian and a large number of her friends and admirers were present.

Mr. Stoddard sang "The auld plaid shawl," by Haynes and Miss Moorehouse followed with two "cello solos," "Barcarole" by Goddard, and "Tarentella" by Cosman.

A group of songs by Miss Key was most charming. They were "Flower Rain" by Loud, "Birth of Morn" by Leone and "Th pipes of Pan" by Monahan.

In place of the "Littest Rebel" as announced Miss Bell gave a humorous reading entitled "Sam Stone's Funeral."

The closing number was a solo by Mr. Stoddard, "The Rosary," by Nevins. The audience was highly appreciative and much credit is due to Miss Ella R. Musau who under whose directions D. O. club day was observed.

MAY MORNING MUSICALS.

There was a much larger attendance Wednesday at the series of May morning musicales at the Wollaston church and it was an hour of musical enjoyment, a fine program being rendered. Those taking part in the concert were Miss Mary Louise McKeeff, soprano; Miss Marion L. McKeeff, cello; Miss Grace M. Farrington, piano; and Roscoe R. Ricker, violin. The last three are members of the March trio, one of the recent musical organizations which quickly won public appreciation by their fine playing.

Miss McKeeff is the new soprano in the Westland Ladies quartet and judging by the fine interpretation Wednesday morning must be a valuable addition to that favorite group of singers. Her voice is clear, faultless and flexible and she excels in execution. Her rendering of an aria and a group of songs was a delight to her audience and merited the warmth of the applause.

Miss Moorehouse is one of our own musicians, being a resident of Wollaston and recently returned from a year's study in Germany, has gained much in interpretation of that fine instrument the cello. Her rendering of the Spanish dance was in good tone, pleasingly interpreted and thoroughly enjoyed, the encores being most appreciative.

The Trio came in for much praise and frequent applause, their versatility, rhythm and melody rounding out a perfect musical program.

At the next and last musicale on May 29, Miss Sheppard of Lynn will sing her way into the hearts of her audience at the first musicale will give the soloist.

Senator Crane is evidently disgusted with the political situation.

Those seniors of the Woodward institute are some consistent athletes.

It is about time to get into line for a safe and sane Fourth of July celebration.

"All aboard," is the cry of the yachtmen, and the rocking chair fleet rolls the harder and echo, "Let her go."

Look out for your pocket book when in Boston, as pick-pockets are circulating around the Union and elevated stations.

The police are to be congratulated upon the speedy manner in which they run to earth that sensational story of the Monday night fire.

If the City Council gives the use of the old school-house to the citizens of Wollaston, that ward incidentally the city, will come into the possession of one of the most beautiful small parks in suburban Boston. With the aid of a landscape architect, assisted by a $1000 donation from the leading citizens of Wollaston, besides the unexpended balance of the ward's Third hill appropriation and what little is received from the sale of the old buildings, Safford Park will be one of the show places of the city.

The large advertising banner which was strung across Beale street, Wollaston, last week has been taken down, but the citizens of that ward are interested in the city officials who allowed it to be hung up. There is another private advertising sign on the grass plot at Presidents bridge which is wholly out of place and should be removed. If the city officials allow one concern to use the highways for advertising purposes it establishes a bad precedent. The next step would logically be to allow Merrymount park to be bill-boarded, to say nothing of the other playgrounds and school grounds. And there is another point of view: What right has a city official to grant any such permit?

The sudden decision of Senator W. Murray Crane not to be a candidate for re-election at the expiration of his present term, leaves the republican party of the state in a peculiar position in state affairs. One at Lynn and one at Fall River, but little in the way of criticism could be said. It is well adapted in every way for the use of the courts. The first presiding justice was Hon. Everett C. Bumpus who has had distinction for himself in many ways. His clerk was J. White Belcher, Judge James H. Humphrey succeeded Judge Bumpus. He had done valiant service in the state and in his native town of Weymouth. He was well grounded in the principles of law and all remember and honor him. His clerk was the late John S. Churchill.

The present clerk is Mr. Lyons, who has sacrificed his future to fulfill the duties of the office. In closing, Judge Avery said that he trusted in these new surroundings the justice would strive to do better service for the district and the people of the court.

The first case was then called, which was that of Amos Lovell of Weymouth.

Invitations were issued this week by the Justice of the District Court of Wollaston, which was the celebration of the fortieth anniversary of the establishment of a court in Quincy on the 17th of October, 1872.

Plans for the celebration are now well under way and from the fact that upwards of three hundred invitations have been issued, a large attendance is assured. A still further interest is the fact, perhaps not generally known, that the celebration was had by the Justices of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. The first of these was President John Adams, who was the first Chief Justice of the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts since the revolution, and who was their appearance and were particularly annoying Sunday night in places close to streams and marsh lands.

No regrets will be registered if the whole troublesome tribe is exterminated.

GIVEN A SURPRISE.

Mr. and Mrs. Simpson Jay of Beale street, Wollaston, were most agreeably surprised on Tuesday evening, by a large delegation from the Royal Daughters and Wiggins classes of the Wollaston Methodist church.

At 7.30 a jolly crowd of about seventy met in the vestry and proceeded to the house in a body. Mr. and Mrs. Jay have next week for the State of Washington and the affair took the form of a farewell party.

W. C. Saunders presented Mr. Jay with a fine umbrella in behalf of the Wiggins' class and Mrs. Jay was the recipient of a bouquet from Mrs. Wesley Wiggins, and a set of solid silver spoons from Mrs. J. A. Sedgwick in behalf of the Royal Daughters.

Ice cream, cake and fruit punch were served. Mr. and Mrs. Jay will visit in Canada on the way to their new home.

COURT HOUSE IN USE.

Quincy's newest public building, the court house, was occupied for business for the first time Thursday.

It lacked but a few minutes of 9.30 when the door of the judges office opened and from it appeared Judge Albert B. Avery, Hon. John F. Merrill, chairman of the Norfolk County Commissioners and Rev. Robert H. Corcoran, pastor of the Union Congregational church of Weymouth and Brainree, all of whom took seats on the bench.

Inside of the bar were the following members of the Norfolk Bar association, Hon. George F. Barnes, Senator Frank A. Tirrell, John O'Hara and Louis A. Cook, Jr., and Associate Judge E. Granville Pratt.

Among the public officials present were Chief Frank E. Barrett, of Quincy, Chief Maurice Pierce and Deputy Chief Timothy McDermott, of Milton, Chief Thomas Fitzgerald of Weymouth, Chief Amos Loring of Brainree, Inspector Patrick Butler of Weymouth, Charles H. Johnson, Trustee of the County Court Officer John Drummond.

On the judge's bench were two pretty bouquets of carnations. Clerk Lawrence W. Lyons, Court officer William M. Marden and Acting Probation Officer Arthur C. Hultman were also in their positions.

As the court was called, Officer Marden cried out "Court."

And while everybody remained standing the court officer made the following announcement: "Here ye! Here ye! Here ye! All persons having anything to do before the Honorable the Justices of the District Court of East Norfolk, now holden at Quincy, within and for the Judicial District of East Norfolk, draw near, give your attendance and you shall be heard. God save the Commonwealth of Massachusetts."

Judge Avery then said that Chairman Merrill had been very anxious to look after the construction of this building and that while the dedication would not take place until June 1, it was fitting that he should say a few words. He would therefore call upon him.

Chairman Merrill said that he was very pleased to be present on the opening of this new building. If the officers, and citizens of the district and the people of this city were pleased he was more than satisfied. He had been a resident of Quincy for upwards of 33 years and had seen the growth that had been made by the city. Long before he entered the city he could see that larger and better quarters were needed. When he first came to Quincy the court was located in poor and inconvenient quarters near the Hancock cemetery. From there it was moved to the Adams building and eight years ago to the present building known as the Hancock building.

Almost from the beginning of his term as County Commissioner it had been suggested that Quincy ought to have a new court building but he had hesitated, as he was an official from taking the initiative. This was finally done by the Board of Aldermen in 1910 a bill was introduced in the legislature for $100,000. The committee cut it to $80,000.

Judge Avery said this is one of the most beautiful buildings in the Commonwealth set apart for court purposes.

There were but few district court buildings. One at Lynn and one at Fall River, but little in the way of criticism could be said. It is well adapted in every way for the use of the courts. The first presiding justice was Hon. Everett C. Bumpus who has had distinction for himself in many ways. His clerk was J. White Belcher, Judge James H. Humphrey succeeded Judge Bumpus. V. and the Corps will attend services at the Soldiers' monument after which the corps will assemble at the Grand Army hall where services will be held in memory of the "unknown dead."

FIRST CHURCH MEN'S CLUB.

The success of the Men's club which formed in the First church is assured. At a meeting held this week it was found that up to the present time over 160 have signed the papers to become members of the club, and there are still others who have become affiliated.

At this meeting it was decided that in view of the limited quarters that the membership should be limited to 200. It is thought that no trouble will be experienced in reaching that membership. It has been decided to call a meeting of the signers early in June when the club will organize and officers will be elected.

As now planned the club will hold seven meetings during the season. These will probably be held on the second Tuesday evening of each month. A hot supper will be served at 6.30. By this arrangement members may come to the dinner directly from their business, as informal or business dress will be the rule. After dinner, and cigars lighted, the members will listen to an informal talk by some well known speaker. An air of informality will prevail at all of the meetings, the plans being along the same lines as the Unitarian club of Wollaston which is such a success.

CHOWDER LUNCHEON.

The ladies of the Quincy Women's Riverside club were kept busy Wednesday afternoon from 1 to 2 o'clock. As was advertised, the chowder was served promptly at one o'clock. The ladies were present in large numbers. One at Lynn and one at Fall River, but little in the way of criticism could be said. It is well adapted in every way for the use of the courts. ADDRESS THE L. O. O. F.

Supt. Charles L. Hammond of the Quincy post office gave an interesting talk Tuesday evening before the L. O. O. F. lodge of Odd Fellows on the detail work of handling Uncle Sam's mail. He told how mails were received, how made up for dispatch to the different points, and a vast amount of detail work that was necessary. He also spoke of what was trying to do for the business men of the city and of the deliveries of mail in the business sections of the city. Also of the fact that mail dispatched from the post office on the 17 o'clock P. M. train for Quincy directed to New York would be delivered in that city by the first delivery the next morning.

He also spoke of the growth of the post office business in Quincy and how the department had grown and increased its facilities as the city had grown and developed thus keeping pace with the advance of the city.

In addition to this he told of some of the things which the business men might do to facilitate in the handling of mails, and that any complaints to service would be gladly received and acted upon.

The dining room was very prettily light when the lights were thrown on, the color scheme being pink throughout. Carnations were on each place and the napkins and decorations were all suggestive of the occasion, large pink T's being in abundance.

The menu was unique in itself, the first letters of the lines spelling "Dianthus Club." For the first dinner party was served, this being a delicious omelette, salad, fruit, an expensive drink water, for a hard problem, rolls, etc., the whole menu being as follows:—

Dandy Start, Vegetable Salad, I. expensive Drink, Water, A hard problem, Rolls, N.ature's Grease, who comprise the committee, had planned a Pink Tea to be served at 12.30 o'clock. The ladies enjoyed the afternoon musicals, especially the "Pink and Blue" which will not be forgotten very soon. The committee certainly did well and the club members all agree that it was a great success.

The next meeting will be in charge of Mrs. William I. Hartley, Mrs. Brown and Mrs. Percy Rogers, who form the nucleus of the club. The next meeting will be in charge of Mrs. William I. Hartley, Mrs. Brown and Mrs. Percy Rogers, who form the nucleus of the club.

CHARLES HUSKINS BURIED.

Funeral services of a simple character for Charles Huskins of Cherry street, died last week, were held Saturday morning, while working on the Battleship Rivadavia, at the Fore River shipyards, were conducted at 5, by Rev. Charles P. Marshall, pastor of the Washington street Congregational church. The burial service was conducted at that hour to allow the fellow workmen of the deceased to be present.

The body was taken to Lisbon Falls, Maine, for burial.

Mr. Huskins was employed at the Fore River yard for the past six years and during that time had made the acquaintance of many friends. He is survived by a wife and two children.

MANY FIRE ALARMS.

Sunday was a busy day for the Fire department, for they were called out three times on bell alarms. The first alarm came in at 12.24 and was followed immediately by the recall. This was for a slight fire on the roof of McNelly's blacksmith shop at the corner of Willard and West streets and which was put out with a bucket of water before the alarm was sounded.

The second alarm came from Box 35 at 3.33 but before that had sounded the firemen were on their way to the fire which was in the building at 1581-1585-1587 Hancock street owned by Henry M. Faxon and occupied on the first floor by William Westland's hardware store and Haley's new stand and on the upper floor by the family of Edward Drysdale, as a tenant.

Hardly had the department had the fire under control, than an alarm was sounded from Box 62 for a fire on the plankings of Neponset bridge. Chief Litchfield ordered Hose 1 and the steamer to respond, as at this time the auto chemical had no hose on having laid three streams for the fire stand on the bridge. The Chief Engineer Faxon in charge and started for Box 62. As soon as he learned what this fire was and that the apparatus was not needed he turned the Central station apparatus back.

The alarm from Box 39 at 9.45 Monday night followed the same pattern as the first, for the same box served to send the entire department of the city, with the exception of the combination at Houghs Neck to a disastrous fire in the granite plant of Milne & Chalmers in Liberty Square South Quincy.

The fire in the Milne & Chalmers is filled with large blocks of granite some in their rough state and others, the finished product, making it hard for the firemen to get about but several lines of hose was carried through the yard.

The fire was under control shortly after 10 o'clock although it was nearly 11 before the recall sounded.

The alarm from Box 45 at 6.40 Monday evening was for a slight fire in the wet wash laundry of Harry Berne, on Common street. The damage was slight.

The alarm from Box 46 at 2.37 Tuesday afternoon called the department to a slight fire on the roof of Badger Bros' shop on Willard street. Time and again has this roof taken fire from sparks from a passing locomotive but it has always been in the middle of the day when there were plenty of people about to get at it. The fire of Tuesday did little more than burn a few shingles.

The alarm from box 53 Thursday was for a lively blaze in the house of Walter S. Pinkham at 111 Warren avenue. The fire started from some old stove racks that had been thrown into a fire near the stove boiler. Mr. Pinkham said that the racks had not been used since Wednesday morning to wipe a stove, and it is thought that they must have been smoldering since that time. The fire was a hard one to fight and it was sometime before the alarm was sounded. The loss was estimated at $1,000, covered by insurance.

WOLLASTON GLEE CLUB.

With its annual banquet and ladies night on Monday evening in the vestry of the Wollaston Unitarian church, the Wollaston Glee club closed its eleventh season, one filled with all kinds of success.

In half of the club, President Herbert J. Gurney welcomed those present. It said, it had been a most successful season and the club had given the two best concerts of its history—the best, both from an artistic and financial standpoint. The club is anxious to raise the artistic spirit and realizes the only way to do this is to elevate its own standard of skill and efficiency. The finances this year have allowed the expenditure of more money and better soloists have been secured. We are looking forward next year to even better concerts than we have been able to give this year.

Secretary Lanscott read his annual report. Following the reading of the financial report, Dr. E. R. Johnson, the treasurer, made a plea for higher artistic endeavor among the club members. He spoke of the spirit with which the principals of grand opera go into their work and urged the members to emulate them. A good deal depends upon the individual work of each member. He urged that they came together next fall they endeavor to make it more of an artistic success.

MEMORIAL DAY.

Amos R. Wells.

The Day of Memories!—Remembering what?
The cannon's roar, the hissing of the shot?
The weary hospital, the prison pen?
The widow's tears, the groans of stall-women?
The bitterness of fratricidal strife?
The pangs of death, the sharper pangs of life?
Nay, let us quit forget the whole of these.
Upon our sacred Day of Memories.

The Day of Memories!—Remembering what?
The honored dead in every hallowed grave?
The honored names of all our heroes dead?
The glorious land for which they fought and died?
Our nation's hopes; the kindly, common good?
The universal love of brotherhood? These we remember gladly, all of these.
Upon our sacred Day of Memories.

Notes and Comments.

At Cornell they took a vote to see if great inventions the students considered the most useful. This is the order in which they voted: Wireless telegraphy, synthetic chemistry, radium, anti-toxins, aviation, the Panama canal and the telephone. Some people would put the telephone second and aviation third.

Life insurance companies are said to have lost $1,881,111 by the tremendous loss of life in the Titanic disaster. This should make life insurance companies a party to the movement now on foot to enforce such laws as are on the statute books for the protection of life at sea, and make other laws necessary for that purpose.—Athol Chronicle.

The market reports agree that the weather is the commanding influence in business today all over the country and in every line. If the weather is right everything is right and business prospers. A few weeks of really reasonable weather will produce a healthy boom all over the lot, in agriculture and manufacturing. Such a period is longed for even by those who usually give meteorology little thought.—Framingham News.

Every careful householder will see that his home is properly screened. In spite of this precaution flies will invade houses. Should they do so no mercy should be shown them. They should be killed whenever found. There is no telling from whence they have come, but one thing is certain: they have come from a clean place. There is not one chance in a million that they have not come from a manure pile, a garbage can or a sick room.

In the Sunday of life the members of the Grand Army of the Republic should have more assistance from the public on Memorial Day. There should be no lack of funds, no speakers, no refreshments. The veterans march with a good deal of pride and would probably remonstrate against any change. But they are well worthy of riding in decorated automobiles. They could enable the route of the procession to cover the whole city—Haverhill Gazette.

The State board of health will spend a thousand dollars this year in teaching local boards to fight the mosquito. That sure will not get us over a hump, but it will place on the present limited instruction. The mosquito as well as the fly should be fought. As an insect it is quite as dangerous as a disease carrier and more obnoxious in other ways. Persons can aid in fighting the pest by destroying its breeding grounds, which are mostly in puddles of water and swampy places. A little kerosene oil, properly applied, will help to get rid of the plague and the remedy is well worth trying.—Framingham News.

PATRIOTIC EXERCISE.

The patriotic exercises of the Paul J. Revere Women's Relief Corps were held at the home of Mrs. Newman Savage, Saturday night, May 18th. The house was beautifully decorated with bunting and flags. The meeting was opened with reading of the order and the Lord's prayer. Selections on the piano were given by Miss Wright. There was an address by Commander Francis P. Loud of Post 88 and remarks by Commander Stoddard of Camp 58 Sons of Veterans on Peace and Arbitration, which are reading by Mrs. Savage and Mrs. Richardson. Patriotic selections were rendered by Miss Savage and Miss Wright. Mrs. Mabel Savage favored those present with a number of patriotic selections, including "The Star Spangled Banner." The flag salute was given by all the Patriotic order and children and the exercises closed by singing "Nearer My God to Thee."

FAREWELL PARTY.

A farewell party was tendered George S. Wilson, Tuesday evening at the home of John Davidson, 22 Newcomb Place, by members of Post 88, Ver Lodge 1, O. O. F. M. and Mr. Wilson departed today for his home in Scotland.

In behalf of the number present, Grand Master William McLean presented Mr. Wilson with a souvenir emblematic of the order, at the same time voicing the well wishes of the entire party.

Mr. Wilson responded very feelingly in accepting the gift and said that while across the water he would always entertain a deep affection in his heart for those whom he knew on this side.

The evening was pleasantly spent and refreshments were served.

Mr. Wilson who is at present Noble Grand, has held every office of Fore River Lodge.

CITY COUNCIL.

Although Monday night's meeting of the City Council was a short one, when compared with some of the meetings this year, a large amount of business was transacted and several orders involving large sums were passed. RECEIVED THE CHILDREN.

A reception was tendered Rev. and Mrs. Benjamin A. Willmot, Friday May 17 in the vestry of Bethany church, by the children connected with the Sunday school, under fourteen years of age. There were about two hundred present and their bright smiling faces radiated happiness.

The ushers, who performed their duties with great ability and much dignity, were: Guy Shaw, Warren Crane, Earl Carter and Theodore Rice.

This very pleasant affair was supervised by Mrs. Everett Crane, president of Bethany sewing circle, assisted in arranging details by the following ladies: Mrs. A. H. Gilson, Mrs. Bromley, Mrs. C. W. Gay, Mrs. E. J. Smith, Mrs. B. J. Badger, Miss Addie L. Park, Mrs. Charles Grange, Miss Fannie French, Mrs. George McFarlane, and Mrs. Charles Sampson.

The vestry and ladies' parlor were very tastefully decorated with flowers, and refreshments were served, consisting of frappe, fancy cakes and dainty crackers, the ladies being assisted in serving by the ushers.

After all of the guests had been beautifully helped, the children were seated and Mr. Willmot talked to them very pleasantly. He said: "In the first place, children, we ought to thank these ladies who have so graciously entertained us this afternoon. Those in favor clap their hands. (Needless to say the response was hearty and vociferous.)"

The children, I don't think, are happy faces, when you meet me on the street, I want you to speak to me and look upon me as your friend. We want to make our Sunday school just the best one, and each one must do his part. If you see a boy or girl who does not attend Sunday school invite him or her to come to your Sunday school. I want you all to come to church Sunday mornings, you know I have a little sermon prepared especially for you children. I want you to listen to them, and the boy or girl who writes the best report of them will be presented with a prize.

Then in September we want to form a choir. I want enough of you to fill the gallery in the end of the church. You will have a teacher to train you and I want you to sing the opening hymn."

At the close of Mr. Willmot's talk, games were indulged in until 10 o'clock, all entering into the spirit of the occasion with zest and hearty good will.

The youngest member present was Beatrice Pitts one year and a half old.

ANNUAL SHORE DINNER.

In accordance with a custom long established by William Norton, the genial president of the Quincey Yacht Club, the annual opening for the season was fittingly observed Saturday evening, when he entertained a large number of city officials and others prominent in the affairs of the city and state at dinner.

From 6 to 7 o'clock there was an informal reception during which the present renewed their acquaintance with William, as well as affording the members of the City Council a chance to view the public landing, made possible by the City Council of last year and which is now nearing completion and to view some of the other city work in progress at this point.

During this time an orchestra enlivened the occasion with popular music.

Henry W. French, the present president of the Quincey Yacht Club, and one of the Board of Registrars of Voters, was the master of ceremonies and at a little after 7 o'clock gave the welcome signal, to be seated at the long tables that had been arranged on one side of the dining room. It is unnecessary to add that no second invitation was needed, and the onslaught on the many good things was soon in progress.

At the head table, besides the master of ceremonies, was mine host William Norton, his face wreathed smiles. At his right was Mayor Eugene R. Stone and ex

OUR FLAG.

William T. Lander.

You all well know the story, as told of Betsey Ross.

Who made our stars banner to supplant St. George's cross.

Which our grandfathers proudly planted in the face of British foe.

And carried it to victory—one hundred years ago.

You have known our nation's heroes, and the glorious work they've done.

When the "Boys in Blue" fought for that flag—way back in '61.

They bore it forth on many a field of carnage, death or strife.

And with its folds, and battle roar, gave up their strength and life.

They bore it through Virginia's mud and Carolina's sands.

On Mississippi's winding stream and on the southern lands.

They brought it back triumphant, nor lost a single bar.

While on its azure field of blue there glittered every star.

It proudly floats o'er Philadelphia and the Emblema of a country free—The Emblem of a country free—The Emblem of a country free—

From every schoolhouse in our land, "Old Glory" flies with pride.

Teaching the nation's growing youth for what their fathers did.

Each year upon Memorial day—o'er mounds and silent graves.

"Old Glory" flutters in the breeze above our country's graves.

We'll honor them, our starry flag so old yet ever new.

Pride of our heart, our soul's delight, the red, the white, the blue.

The flag that stands for liberty, to men of every race.

No raves, none wear the shackles, no beams in every face.

On every land, o'er every sea, it proudly waves on high.

Our blood-bought flag, our country's flag, no nation dares defy.

THE GUIDE.

The boy came out of the bushes and waited for the man to approach. He was a boy of 10, a tired boy whose face was gray through lack of rest, and whose eyes were heavy through lack of sleep. His clothes were dusty and torn and his fine shoes were coated with dried mud.

The man coming down the quiet highway was a tramp, a tattered, whiskered, slouching vagabond. He was singing in a maudlin voice, and the song was a sentimental ballad of the variety stage. His battered soft hat was pushed back on his tangled hair and his dirty face was upturned to the palling sky. And he did not see the waiting boy.

His voice trailed off in a long drawn note as he caught sight of the boy. "Hullo," said the latter, a little timidly.

"Howsy, boy," said the tramp as he looked the lad over in an odd appraising way. He fell to whistling as he stared at him. "Lost, strayed or merely gallivanting?"

"The boy's lip quivered. He answered, "Anyways, I'm sure I'm lost."

"The tramp came a little nearer. He was very dirty and there was a stale smell about him. His white teeth glistened in the midst of his whiskered face. But the boy was not afraid.

"Lost, eh?"

"He put out a grimy hand and laid it on the boy's shoulder.

"Yes, sir," said the lad and his voice broke a little. "I couldn't find my way and I was very tired and nobody came by, and then I heard you singing down the road—singing that beautiful song—and so I came out."

"The tramp had been softly whistling while the boy explained.

"Lays limp, eh?"

"Yes, sir."

"Hungry?"

"Yes, sir."

"The tramp stooped down.

"Get up on my back," he said. "I'll tote you a piece."

The boy obeyed, holding the vagabond tightly around the neck, while the man clasped his legs.

"Ain't I heavy?" he presently asked as the tramp strode along.

"Not a bit heavy, son," replied the vagabond cheerily.

"I'd like to see something of a ways to go. There ain't a farm-house within two miles of here."

"All right," murmured the boy. His head drooped against the tramp's shoulder. "Couldn't you sing a little as you walk? I like that song, and maybe it would rest you some."

The vagabond chuckled.

"Maybe it would," he agreed. "Maybe, too, it would put some folks to sleep. He chuckled again and when he sang his voice had taken on an unaccustomed softness.

"The evening shadows fell. The growing haze faded from the sky, a gray mist filled the air.

The tramp presently passed up a lane and finding a low place in the fence managed to get into a field without awakening the tired child. He carried him to a haystack and sinking on his knees contrived to lay the boy on the loose hay at the foot of the stack.

The lad did not unclose his heavy eyes.

The man stood up, an ugly figure outlined against the gray sky, and stared down at the small white face.

"Somebody's kid," he muttered, and his voice had a queer sound. He slowly pulled off his ragged coat and laid it across the sleeping child. "Now I do a little foraging," he hesitated a moment. "If the liddle wakes up, and then he'll find my coat over him, and then he'll know I'm coming back." He turned and stalked across the field and presently disappeared behind the bushes by the roadside.

He was gone 20 minutes, perhaps, and when he returned he had a bottle of milk and an old tin cup and half a loaf of bread.

He stooped and touched the boy on the shoulder. The tired eyes opened.

"Here, son," he said. "It's better to eat a little something. You'll sleep the easier. Sit up and make yourself comfortable. Here's some milk. Dip the bread in the cup. That's right."

The boy ate almost ravenously. He was nearly starved. But presently he stopped with a little start.

"I beg your pardon, sir," he hastily said, "but you are letting me eat it all. I—I didn't notice that you was not eating. If you haven't had your supper, please take this." And he offered the vagabond the last bit of bread.

The tramp slowly smiled and gently pushed the morsel away.

"You're a gentleman, son," he said. "That's your supper. But don't you be eating. I've had my feed. Make it a cleanup, kid."

The boy finished the bread and drained the cup.

"I'm feeling much better, thank you, sir."

The tramp nodded.

"That's good. And now, maybe, you'll feel like telling me a little something about who you are and where you want to go and why you're lost?"

"Of course I'll tell you," said the boy promptly. "I'll tell you 'cause I'm sure you'll help me. You're really a tramp, ain't you?"

"Yes, son."

"And tramps know so much, don't they? They know how to live without money, and they ain't never sick, and they can tell when storms are coming and they know all the places on the map, and lots of things, don't they?"

The vagabond, lounging on the hay a little ways from the boy, laughed.

"No doubt you're a much envied lot," he said. "Go on."

"I've run away from a boy's school," said the lad. "They locked me in a room and they beat me with a cane, and I pushed open the window in the night and climbed down the tin water pipe and ran away."

He paused a moment. "My name is Spencer Pond," he said, "and we live at Roxbury and my mother was taken sick that the doctor said she must go to Chelsea Springs, and my father thought it was best for me to go to the boys' school, because it wouldn't be convenient for me at the Springs, and so I went to the school, and I had never been away from home before, and after my father went away I guess maybe I cried. You see my mother was sick and I didn't know anybody there, and there was lumps in my throat and I'm pretty sure I cried. And some of the boys saw me and they said I was a cry baby and they pushed me around and then one of them said I'd better run right home to my mamma. And I was thinking of my mamma and how sick she was, and what he said hurt me, and I struck him hard in the face and made him scream, and then some more of them came at me and I fought them all. And they got me down on the ground, and I got up again and shook them off and ran through the night—'cause I wanted to get to Chelsea Springs as soon as I could. I was afraid to ask the way, 'cause when I did, a man took my money—it wasn't much—and said he'd cut my head off if I told anybody. But I ain't afraid to tell you. I know you can help me. I know you can help me. I know you can help me."

"I'd like to test it," said the tramp with fervor. He wrinkled his forehead. "You've come quite a piece out of your way, kiddie. Chelsea Springs must be all of 40 miles, cross-country, from here. Want me to take you there?"

"Sure I do," cried the child. "My father will be so much obliged to you."

He suddenly yawned. "Excuse me, but it's funny how sleepy I am. Do you know any prayer you want to say?"

"No," replied the vagabond.

"Cause if you do you might like to say your first."

"Go ahead," said the tramp.

A single yellow star gleamed fitfully through the light mist above them. The boy looked up at it.

"Thou who dost all things command, bless our home, our friends, our land. We are children in thy hand."

The child looked around at the vagabond.

"And bless the tramp, too," he gravely added.

"That sounds good to me," murmured the vagabond.

The star faded, the light mist fluttered the looser hair. The boy was asleep.

The sun had climbed high when he awoke. He rubbed his eyes and looked around. The tramp was snoring down at him.

"Breakfast is ready," said the vagabond. "Bread and milk again, and a piece of fresh johnnycake, and a chunk of cold beef."

"If you please," said the boy. "I think I'd like to wait before I eat."

His cheeks grew red as he looked at the tramp's grimy face. "I always do, you know," he added, with an apologetic air.

"Of course," laughed the vagabond. "There's a washroom right across the field. Come."

He led the way over the field to a shady ravine, with a brisk little stream gurgling through it. And he drew from his inner coat pocket, a flat leather case and opening it, showed a piece of soap, a narrow bar of brush, tooth brush, a day mirror and a comb and a wash cloth.

"My mother gave me this," he said. "See, there's my initials on it."

He knelt down on a flat stone at the edge of the stream and made his toilet—and came up rosy and smiling.

"You're next," he cried.

The vagabond gave a queer little laugh.

"I'll do it," he said and took the proffered soap. When he finally looked around, his face cleaned, his hair smoothed down, his eyes clear and shining and his white teeth glittering, the boy gave a quick laugh.

"That's great," he cried. "I wonder how you'd look without whiskers?"

"I'll show you," said the tramp.

"Look at yourself in my glass," said the boy and gave him the little mirror.

The vagabond smilingly took it and looked at his reflection—and the smile faded.

"It looks," he softly muttered, "as if there might be some remnant of a beard there yet."

He gave back the glass and they made their frugal meal.

"Now for the road," said the vagabond, "and Chelsea Springs."

They might have been a pair of careless strollers as they tramped down the highway that sunny morning. The vagabond developed a wonderful fund of merry conversation, and the boy was as happy as a bird.

They stopped to rest occasionally, and once they were given a ride by a farmer's boy on a hay wagon, and when it was near noon, they came in sight of a low farm house some distance from the road.

"Now to forage," said the tramp. "You wait for me here."

He went up the lane and was hidden by the bushes. Presently he returned.

"Nothing doing," he cheerfully announced. "The old man said I was too clean for a tramp and too dirty to be respectable."

But at the next farmhouse the vagabond found an elderly woman who was waiting in the highway, and with an ax. He whistled for the boy, who was waiting in the highway, and the lad pulled the wood and filled the woman's woodbox.

She looked at him a little suspiciously.

"Your boy?" she said to the tramp.

"Boy of a friend of mine. Been away and I'm taking him home."

"Does he treat you well?" she asked the lad.

"Yes, ma'am," the boy promptly replied. "He treats me very well."

And he laid his hand trustingly on the vagabond's arm.

They had an excellent dinner in the clean old kitchen and then the kind woman put a bag of cookies in the boy's hands.

"Madam," said the tramp with a little flourish, "could you loan me a razor?"

The good woman laughed.

"I'm afraid," she said, "that you'll have a harder job of cutting than you had at the woodpile. But I'll let you take a razor—it is an old one my son left behind when he went to the Philippines. If you do a good job I'll give it to you."

He did so good a job that the boy stared at him in wonder and the woman promptly told him to keep both the razor and the stop.

"Lady," said the boy as he gravely shook his head with her. "he's taking fine care of me and I like him very much."

CHURCH PROSPERING.

At the always helpful prayer meeting of the Park and Downs church on May 21st, the pastor, Rev. William B. Ayers publicly thanked his people for their unwavering faith and loyalty to him through the past trying two years of his ministry under circumstances that would make a less courageous man fail. The great work he started so enthusiastically, the building of the new church, the plans of which he himself designed, has been successfully completed and the auditorium already tested to its full capacity at both morning and evening services on Sunday. The wonderful growth of the church from a membership of fifty to over two hundred in so short a time testifies strongly to the able leadership of Mr. Ayers who has given three years of his life in his untiring efforts and zeal for his church. As is always the case where men are before the public eye and accomplish great things, when reforms are instituted and changes made in the methods of procedure, criticism is aroused in a few who object to changes but in spite of these he has risen above it all and the pretty stone structure, the large congregation, the love and esteem of his people stand, for a memorial.

By vote of the church a special communion with admission of new members will be held on Sunday. There is no district in the city that is showing such a growth as Wollaston Park.

A splendid class of citizens comes every day, and increasing the population of this beautiful section of our city. A pretty church with good facility for worship, an able pastor, all help to make the Park and Downs church a power in the community and presents a wonderful opportunity for good.

A JUNE MORNING.
 Anna Frances Rice.

The birds awake!
 The shadows break!
 The morning dawns o'er vale and hill
 The sunshine bright,
 The earth in light!
 How sweet the air, and fresh and still!

The blossoms fair
 With perfume rare,
 Lift up their heads the day to greet!
 The crystal streams
 With silvery gleams,
 Flow gently, murmuring at our feet.

All nature sings,
 The glories of the morning hour
 Glad hearts we raise
 In grateful praise,
 To Him, the all-wise loving Power,

—California is known as the Golden State on account of its generous production of the precious metal. Its annual output of gold amounts to about $20,000,000, while its fruit products have reached the grand total of more than $50,000,000 a year, and it is confidently predicted that this output will be doubled or even tripled within the next ten years.—Milford Gazette.

—At a food convention in London some of the scientists decided that a child was enough of an animal to know what it ought to eat, and the best thing to do was to give the youngster what he wanted and let him go. That instead of trying to force down such a diet as it manifestly does not enjoy, what do parents think of that rule during green-apple time, asks the Salem News.

—Rhode Island is one of the few states that have abolished capital punishment and recently pardoned a person who had been sentenced to imprisonment for life for the crime of murder. It is such instances that give the prudent pause when the extreme penalty comes up in the states that now have it on their statute books.—Boston Transcript.

—Setting bonfires is not allowed now in Massachusetts until October without a permit. The new law says that between April 1 and Oct. 1, no fire may be set in any city or town of the nature of a rubbish fire or bonfire except by special authority or license. In the towns this license is to be obtained from the firewarden or other officials.

—A year from next July will see a remarkable reunion on the field of Gettysburg, when the blue and gray will peacefully sit and eat together. There was no disgrace at Gettysburg. They fought for what they honestly believed was right. Their sincerity has long been fully recognized by the victors. We believe this reunion will mark a new era in bridging over what sectional feeling still lingers in the hearts of the survivors of the two armies.—Milford, N. H. Cabinet.

—Motion pictures were put to a new use when Gloucester men exhibited before a congressional committee pictures showing the methods employed in "beam trawling," which it is asserted will destroy the fishing industry, if not prohibited. The pictures conveyed a much more vivid impression than could possibly be produced by words. This instance suggests many possibilities in the use of motion pictures in the future. As yet they have been employed but little, if any, in court trials, but it is easy to conceive how useful they might prove in many cases.—Milford Gazette.

CITY COUNCIL.

Nearly two hours of Monday night's session of the City Council was taken up with public hearings on the acceptance of new streets. There was a large attendance of citizens and few objections to the acceptance of any of the streets. Wollaston park had a delegation of fifty residents who came to urge acceptance of streets in that section. Besides there was considerable other business of importance. Councilman Sandberg was the only absent member.

The special Committee on Financial Investigation submitted the following report relative to the method of computing sewer assessments. Their report was as follows:

The special Committee appointed under Order No. 33 beg leave to make the following partial report.

In the course of our investigations we found that the present method of computing sewer assessments as established by the vote of the City Council, September 11, 1899, under authority of section 8 of Chapter 279 of the Acts of 1895, is no longer adequate.

Under this act the city has authority to assess the estates benefited by the laying of the sewer through the street on which they abut to the amount of the benefit they receive. The vote provided that the city should pay one-half the cost and that the remaining one-half should be assessed upon the abutting estates at the rate of twelve cents per running foot frontage, and six mills upon each square foot of area to the depth of one hundred feet. Largely on account of the increase in the cost of material and labor we find that our assessments have fallen short something over $50,000 of what they should have been.

The Commissioner of Public Works at our request has investigated the subject and advises your committee that by increasing the charge per square foot of area from six mills to eight mills we find that our assessments have fallen short something over $50,000 of what they should have been.

We also found that the area upon which the six mills per square foot has been charged has in some cases been as small as one-half of the area above the level of the sewer grating.

The result has been that building lots of equal area on opposite sides of the same street if the street happens to be on the slope of a hill, would pay the same amount. Although the lot on the uphill side being entirely above the level of the sewer has been assessed for its entire area, the lot on the downhill side has been assessed only for the area above the level of the sewer, which area is often only a small fraction of the lot's entire area, yet in both cases buildings erected on these lots derive equal benefits from the sewer and should therefore pay an equal assessment.

We herewith submit an amendment to the vote of the council embodying the changes which we have recommended and strongly urge its adoption.

The order which accompanied the report is as follows:—

Ordered that the vote of the City Council under date of September 11, 1899 passed under authority of Section 8 Chapter 279, of Acts of 1895 establishing a method for computation of sewer assessments be amended as follows:

By striking out after the words "according to the number of square feet of area of such estate within a depth of one hundred feet from such street or way," and inserting in place thereof the following:—

"And if by reason of its grade or level or for any other cause a building erected upon said estate cannot be drained into such sewer no assessment in respect to any such estate shall be made, certified or notified until such incapacity is removed provided, however, that no area shall be assessed more than once and it is further—"

And to amend the fourth section thereof so as to read as follows:—

Ordered that the said fixed uniform rate to be assessed upon estates is hereby established to be twelve cents upon each foot of frontage on each street or way within a depth of one hundred feet from such street or way, and eight mills upon each square foot of area within said fixed depth of one hundred feet from said street or way the same having been so found and determined by said City Council; and it is further—

COURT HOUSE DEDICATED.

The new court building on Coddington street was formally dedicated as a temple of justice Saturday afternoon, in the presence of a distinguished assemblage of members of the bar and men in other walks of public life to the number of 200. It was a dual celebration, for the anniversary of the marked the twentieth anniversary of the establishment of the district court in Quincy.

The exercises opened at 2 o'clock in the main court room on the first floor which had been made unusually attractive with many potted plants and beautiful flowers. The room was decorated with the colors of the district court. Inside of the hall were seated members of the bar as well as visiting judges while in the immediate vicinity of the bench were other officials prominent in Norfolk County.

Judge Avery as master of ceremonies presided over the exercises. He was assisted by Judge Pratt as the only speaker and Judge Pratt as the only speaker.

He referred to Nahum L. White of Braintree, G. A. Langley, Charles Q. Tirrell, John Quincy Adams and others of the Bar of forty years ago. Looking back on these things it seems that it was a most audacious act in his being appointed a judge. He said he would like to see the end of his life and this was the end of his relations with the court.

Among the other speakers were Judge John A. Hardy of the Superior Court; Judge Frank A. Milliken of the New Bedford Court; Senator Barnes of Weymouth; Judge Frederick D. B. Brown, of Boston; Judge Charles C. Hearn, president of the Quincy Board of Trade; Ex-Mayor Shea of Quincy; Edwin Mulready of the Probate Court; John F. Merrill of Quincy of the Norfolk County Commissioners, and John F. McAnaney Quincy City Solicitor and well known attorney.

At the close of the exercises, there is an association known as the Instructive District Nursing Association which trains graduate nurses in this work and many nurses take it up and find it most interesting. Any one who visited the hospital in the Anti-Tuberculosis Society a few years ago in Boston and saw some of the rooms in which patients were found before the nurse's visits and after these visits, will appreciate the amount of good done in this work.

The advantages to the hospital of the change in condition, following her visits, are that she has no night work and has her Sundays free, and receives a good salary.

Again there is no nurse who is trained for special work in the operating rooms of the hospital. In the branch a very special knowledge of the dangers to the patient from bacteria during operation must be acquired and lived up to with the utmost exactness in every detail, and requires intelligence of the highest order to give proper assistance to the surgeon, and to protect the patient from infection during operation.

Another branch of the professional nurse's work is the executive work in hospitals.

The Superintendent of a hospital must know something of the history of the profession of nursing, so that she may guide those working under her intelligently, establishing such system as shall result in the proper care of the patients entrusted to her, giving them the benefit of her scientific knowledge and experience, and instructing the pupils in the little amenities and niceties of nursing which give pleasure or annoyance, as they are observed or neglected. A dinner on a breakfast tray may change one's entire view of life for the day.

The Superintendent of a hospital must also have some knowledge of book-keeping—of buying and giving out supplies—of the amount necessary to feed a given number of people—of the correct method of making reports—estimating costs and making averages—and she must be a good house-keeper. She must be a good manager, requires a special post-graduate course known as an administration course, given in some large hospitals, or may be acquired by taking the position of Assistant Superintendent in some well established hospital.

The future of the nursing profession in the home of her parents, Col. and Mrs. Albion C. Drinkwater, on Elm street, Braintree. The services were conducted by the Rev. Daniel Roy Freeman, pastor of the All Souls' church.

Only relatives and intimate friends were present. Services were conducted at the grave in Pond street cemetery by Rev. B. F. Broderick of New York. The bearers were William C. Harrison, Albion Woodward, Joseph S. Drinkwater and Barton J. Woodward. The burial was private.

There was a wealth of beautiful floral tributes.

STRAWBERRY FESTIVAL.

Quincy Chapter, No. 88, Order of Eastern Star held a strawberry festival at Electric Hall last evening. There was a large attendance at a meeting of the chapter presided the festival. After the supper there was an entertainment consisting of piano duets by Miss Clara Call and Miss Mildred Crowley, a reading by Mrs. Katherine McDonald and a solo, "The Harbor of Love" by Miss Charlotte Barncott.

The financial charge of Mrs. Margaret Gammons, Mrs. Mary Wardell, Mrs. Edith Crocker, Mrs. Mary Hart, Mrs. Rosella Carter, Mrs. Elizabeth Russell, Mrs. Beatrice Patterson, Mrs. Susie Farnall, Mrs. Josephine Schools and Mrs. Ada Johnson.

QUINCY BAR ASSOCIATION.

A meeting of the Quincy Bar association was held Tuesday evening at the new court house at which time the following were made permanent members of the association:

President—John W. McAnaney. Vice President—Paul R. Blackmur. Secretary—Maurice P. Spillane. Treasurer—George E. Adams.

A committee was appointed to bring a list of names for members of the Council. By-laws were adopted and the association is now ready for business.

THE PASTEUR TREATMENT.

Florence Irwin, the 12 year old daughter of George Irwin of Hancock street, who was bitten in the arm during the career of a runaway dog a few weeks ago, is being treated with the Pasteur method.

Dr. W. J. Middleton, who is attending the little girl applies the treatment daily and no ill effects of the bite are noticeable to date.

In opening his remarks Judge Bumpus said that his rhetoric was shop worn. It had been put aside with the belief that the younger generation might pick it up, something better. He had a job on his hands fifty years ago and I was in it. When we came back I felt that the world owed me a living. I started at the age of 23 years in the office of Edmund Avery. A kindly man never drew breath. After being in the office for a few days I went to Weymouth to practice. The jurisdiction of the trial justices was limited but he who could satisfy the three state constables got the patronage.

He then spoke of those prominent in law at that time, mentioning Jacob Lord of South Weymouth, J. White Belcher, W. S. Morton, before whom he tried one of his first cases, Squire Lewis of Hingham, where as a rule, no money was let go out of that town.

THE FLAG GOES BY.

H. H. BENNETT.

Hats off!
Along the street there comes
A band of bugles, a rattle of drums,
A flash of color beneath the sky;
Hats off!
The flag is passing by.

Blue and crimson and white it shines,
Over the steep tipped ordered lines.
Hats off!
The colors before us fly;
More than the flag is passing by Sea fights and land fights, grim and great,
Fought to make and save the state;
Weary marches, and sinking ships;
Cheers of victory on dying lips.

Days of plenty and days of peace;
March of a strong land's swift increase;
Fought to make and save the state;
Weary marches, and sinking ships;
Cheers of victory on dying lips.

Sign of a nation, great and strong,
To ward her people from foreign wrong;
Pride and glory and honor, all
Live in the colors to stand or fall.
Hats off!

THE CURE.

The little white, green room was intensely, beautifully quiet, but the Tired Mother nestled restlessly on her couch. The dull throbbing of her head seemed playing a dirge; she could not get away from the dreary time of it. The very restlessness of quiet color-scheme and stillness
irritated her to her fingers' ends.
The walls were too softly, dully green;
they shut out the world too effectually.
She lay, and gently fumed in the secret soul of her.

Steps went past her door, along the padded hall, and faintly as if from a distance she caught words; the ears of the Tired Mother had been sharpened by little voices and baby-stirrings
at night.

"It isn't working yet," one of the voices said patiently. "I don't know as it ever will, doctor. She's a peculiar case."

"O, give her time; give her time."
Suddenly the woman on the soft couch sat upright, and said things that were not satisfied to be thought merely.
"I am a case—just a case!" she scooped weakly. "The peculiar case in Number Twenty! They shut me in here in this lovely little cell, with all the windows wide open and quieting things to look at; and they bring me cool things to drink just so often, and rub me just so often, and make me rest—O, I'm getting tired and tired!"

"I don't want to hear John take off
his boots up-stairs, over my head, bump! bang! I want to hear the twins quarrel—O, I want to hear the baby cry!"

He might be crying now, this moment. She strained her ears to listen;
the utter silence answered her. She would never remember to rub him at the time to undress him, and to smooth and soothe his tired little round, sweet body. She ought to be rushing him instead of here, being rubbed herself. What would the twins do if they scraped the sky with their noses or knees? No one would think to put alcohol on the places to kill awful germs. Olivia would forget her rubbers, and have croup; she might die a dozen times while her mother "rested." The boys would get low marks at school; John, dear John,

would be lonely. "I'm lonely!" the Tired Mother cried, stretching out arms to John.
"And I'm so tired resting I think I shall die!"

She got up, a frail and slender thing
in her loose robe, and walked feebly into the room, then down the hall to the sun-parlor. She must talk to some one, and there was at least the Chronic Case. She would be there sunning herself, with the healing light, which refused to heat her, on her sweet warm face. The Tired Mother found her out, and sat down beside her with a sigh of momentary relief.

"I guess you've saved my life, being here," she breathed.

"I'm always here; you can be saved
any time, sunned gently the Chronic Case. "What is it now, my dear? The same thing?"

"Yes, the same—thing," nodded the other. "The little thing, and the twin things, and the girl one, and boy ones,
and the dearest thing of all."

She spoke in a whisper, with the usual sense of difficulty for this place of rest confidence that stirred the carefully discouraged pools of peace were not only destroyed, but gently for-bidden. The Tired Mother felt herself a naughty child, breaking rules.

low marks at school; John, dear John,

Did you ever go home—I mean from a place where they sent you to rest and you nearly died? Back there—that place. It's a beautiful, clean, sweet place, and they rub you beautifully, and bring you little cool vin-cettes every so often; but it's not the place for mothers of little children, and—wives of Johns." The plain quivering little face appealed to the woman beside her; she edged back,
and even smiled.

"I see," she nodded. "I think I do.
You were homesick."

"Why, yes," laughed the Tired Mother; "so I was. You've hit me right on the head. So—I've run away. In an hour and three quarters I shall be there! First I shall see pink spots making mud pies; and that will be the beginning, unless themselves up-suddenly then John, I was homesick."

The baby—when I see the baby—
The car would take her within a short walking-distance of the Junction and the train for home. She remembered suddenly with a sigh of relief that there was a neat little babys' room in the house. But she
—she would buy them. She was hungry. "What would they say to their peculiar case now?" she thought.

"Hungry! Why, I could eat the side of a horse if there was plenty of fresh pastry spread on it! When I get home, I'm going into the pantry and browns."

She was thin with fasting. Her peaked face looked oddly small under the black scopped hat, as if it had shrunk with the wear of the last weeks. Yet with every stride of the car it seemed, as if by some magic, to grow round and healthy. She felt no longer weak and listless.

At the bakery she bought buns, and hurried on, munching them enjoying-ly.

A train was steaming out of the station, but she saw with a throb of relief that it was not her train; it had come from home, and she was going home.

In the waiting room she sat down to wait, idly watching the few other travellers. She had missed at the first sweeping glance the babies she longed to see. No, wait! There was one coming in at the door now, in the arms of a lady—in the arms of John!
Her baby! Her twins, her boys, her girl child, trooping after! They were all there, coming in at the door. She sat transfixed with the wonder of it.
Of course it could not be—she was not seeing right. It was her heart that saw them trooping in; her eyes were conspiring with that to deceive her.

Then they were upon her. The little lot of them; John could not hold them back. The place was a babel of their pleased, excited voices and the baby's shouts.

John, she cried. "If it's your ghost and their ghosts, say so right. If each will keep me in suspense."
"It's us! It's us! We're all here!"
chimed the twins. "We're a-going to look at where you was, to cure
our mother-sickness. Father said
'praps it might a teny bit."

"Yes," John explained, eagerly,
"when we all got so we couldn't stay
it another minute, I told 'em we'd look at the house mother was in, and see if it wouldn't ease us a little
bit. We wouldn't go in of course;
but it would be getting pretty close."
And we promised each other we'd hear it better after that, Sylvie, Sylvie,
when we all got so we couldn't stay
it another minute, I told 'em we'd
look at the house mother was in, and
see if it wouldn't ease us a little
bit. We wouldn't go in of course;
but it would be getting pretty close."

"You are thin!" she cried. "But wait—all of you! Wait, no, here are buns to wait on. When we get home
—O, when they get home! The starved soul of her fed on all their little faces, and on the dearest face of all."

"But, Sylvie, I'm frightened, dear.
You ought not to have come; we ought not to. You were going to stay and be cured."

"I stayed; I am cured," she answered solemnly. "I feel entirely well. Don't worry, John. It did it well, that place back there. I tell you, all I am well."

And so, all together, all radiant, all
"cured," they went home. The Tired
Mother sat among her own, rested.
In her arms the baby sucked his little thumb, and even in her joy of soul she made room for gentle pity for the other mother she had left back there with empty arms. She was a little afraid of her own wealth.

"John," she moved instinctively a little nearer him. "O John!" and she could say no more; it seemed all said. He turned his head, big face to her. John understood—Annie Hamilton Donnell in The Christian Endeavor World.

SWEDISH COSTUME PARTY.

An entertainment, which took the form of a Swedish National costume party, was held in Paxton hall Saturday evening by members of the Dorcas society of the Swedish Lutheran church. The program included Swedish numbers, arranged in such a way that all the districts of Sweden were represented and the different dialects spoken.

The affair opened with an address of welcome by Miss Anna Lund. Miss Katherine Holteon impersonated the "Mother of Sweden." A feature of the event was the singing by a chorus of girls dressed in national costume.
Sole were rendered by Misses Olive Lundquist, Anna Carlson and Sadie Belson. Dialogues were given by Misses Anna Peterson, Alma Johnson,
Nellie Lodengard and Esther Thoren.

Miss Ida Hilquist and Miss Esther Viden gave recitations which were very favorably received and a quartet

lian Carlson. A Swedish supper brought a most successful time to a close.

FOR FLETCHER'S
CASTORIA

Members of the Massachusetts Mayors' club who held an outing in Quincy
June 7 wound up the day on the plaza of the Quincy Yacht club house in social intercourse. When they found arrived at Houghs Neck they party Miner Host Norteman all ready to receive them and their automobiles,
ride had sharpened their appetites.

The dinner was served in his large dining room and was most excellent. The only criticism heard of the dinner was that although hungry he gave them more than they could eat. At the head table were Mayor and Mrs. Stone
ex-Mayor William F. Davis of Woburn, and Mrs. Davis, president Hearn of the Board of Trade and Mrs. Hearn. Mrs.
J. R. Richards, Representative Piper and Leslie, and City Solicitor McAn-arney.

There was but little speaking after dinner. All were too full for utterance.
Mayor Stone briefly welcomed the guests saying that this was the first opportunity that he had had to meet with them, but that he should try and attend future meetings. He then introduced President Davis of the club who expressed the thanks of the members for the most hospitable manner in which they had been entertained.

An adjournment was then made to the yacht club where the party sported on the piazza overlooking the deep blue sea until time to go home.

FIRST PARISH CLUB.

Meeting of the First Parish club for the purpose of completing its organization was held Monday evening in the chapel of the first church and was attended by upwards of one hundred men. Henry M. Faxon, president and the first business was to hear the report of the committee appointed to draft a constitution. This was read after which it was adopted.

The primary object of the club as stated in the constitution is the promotion of good fellowship. It provides for monthly meetings, the third Tuesday in each month from October to April inclusive. The yearly dues to be $5 which shall include seven dinners to be served at each meeting and to be the following were proposed as officers of the club:

President—Rev. Adelbert L. Hudson.
Vice President—George E. Pfaff-mann.
Secretary—Henry W. Porter.
Treasurer—C. Eaton Pierce.

The executive committee the above with Edward R. Marsh, H. Everett Crane,
Henry M. Faxon, Henry R. Holden,
William R. Nichols, Russell A. Sears.
They were unanimously elected.

The constitution also provides for membership and other committees which will be appointed later.

Rev. Mr. Hudson on taking the office of President said this was to be a layman's club and that he should therefore be considered in the light of a layman. The club has a great work to do and he asked the earnest cooperation of all members. He had found in his short stay in Quincy that there was a great need of men getting together for the building up of the life of this beautiful city, commercially, morally and civically. The most important thing is the development of good fellowship and mutual co-operation.

He did not want the members to divide themselves into groups but to circulate and get acquainted with each member of the club and see that they also became acquainted with each other. In this way one would find many good fellows. Adopt the rule of mixing. This is a most important thing. It is not every man who has the disposition to push himself into the company of men he would like to become acquainted with. It is these men we want to make acquainted with each other.

With the help of the members he believed there was a splendid work to be done. That we will have a club of men who are to know each other and splendid success of the club could be made by starting right.

There are many problems that threaten this beautiful city. They are difficult to overcome and he believed that the club could do much in this line. He wanted the club to be right. If each will keep in mind that they were to have a good time and get acquainted success is assured.

At a recent meeting of the junior laymen's club they voted unanimously to offer their services as waiters. They are a fine set of young fellows and they are to be good for them to get acquainted with you and a good thing for you to see the splendid co-operation these young fellows have shown.

There was no honor that he esteemed more than having been elected as the first president of this club and he would do his best to make it a success. All he asked was for the co-operation of the members.

As outlined now the members would come right from business to the meetings. They would enter by the door on Temple street to the room below
where there would be an opportunity to lay aside garments and meet socially, while waiting for the announcement that dinner was ready.

The dinner would be served in the vestry and the usual door leading to the chapel from the church yard would be closed. It was planned to serve a good hot dinner. Everything was to be carefully informed. Any member appearing in evening dress was likely to be thrown out of the window. Following the dinner, would be speaking.
It was planned to have a variety of speakers. That is, there would be no special theme for the speakers but they would be on topics of general interest. Any suggestions as to speakers would be gladly received.

Before the meeting adjourned it was announced that the membership of the club was now over 170 and as the limit was 200 there is but little doubt but that at the first meeting next October the limit will have been reached.

ENTERTAIN MAYORS CLUB.

Members of the Massachusetts Mayors' club who held an outing in Quincy
June 7 wound up the day on the plaza of the Quincy Yacht club house in

EXHIBIT AT Q. H. S.

More than a thousand visitors witnessed the exhibition of the industrial work of the Quincy High pupils during the past year, June 7th in the school gymnasium. The display opened in the afternoon at 3:30 o'clock and continued for two hours. It opened again for a period of two hours in the evening beginning at 7:30 and was acknowledged by all to have been the best and most successful in the history of the school.

The work of the pupils in all departments was of a character that gave every evidence of application and careful and persistent effort. A feature of the exhibition was a wireless station which was set up on one side of the gymnasium and which proved the centre of attraction for all who attended. William G. Pratt '13 and Arthur Brown '15 manipulated the device and gave demonstrations on it, showing how messages were sent and received and explaining to all interested the various parts and their workings. A costly indiotometer and detector which had been loaned through the courtesy of the Long Distance Instrument company added greatly to the wireless display.

The work in chemistry also took up considerable space and the specimens exhibited showed that there is much talent in this line among students at Quincy High school. It was at first planned to have experiments, but none were given owing to the fact that it was deemed advisable to have nothing to do with heat and thus avert any possible danger of fire. The greatest progress of all departments was noticeable among the work of students whose curriculum includes penmanship.

A sample of the handwriting of each pupil was taken at the first of the year and this was exhibited with the sample written at the close of the scholastic term. In each case marked improvement was discernible and it was clearly proven by the specimens of handwriting that much diligence and practice were exercised by those whose work was on exhibition. In addition the work in bookkeeping was especially conspicuous and was in general of such a high order that it would have reflected credit upon a bookkeeper of long experience. Various designs artistic in every detail, the result of movement exercises, commanded much attention.

The success attained by the class in penmanship was attested to by the diplomas that hung on the wall of the gymnasium. From a class of 60 applicants, diplomas for handwriting were awarded to 35 by a Philadelphia company which gives merit for efficient work and which only grants a diploma to one who writes very legibly. The neatness and accuracy of both penmanship and bookkeeping work were the subjects of favorable comment on the part of those who viewed the exhibition.</

OBJECT TO SUNDAY FLYING.

The Ministerial Association which represents every Protestant church in Quincy as well as the Y. M. C. A. is putting in a protest to the Mayor against the Sunday flying bill which is now before the city council.

They have no intimation that Mayor Stone would for a moment consider the granting of a permit for Sunday flying as Quincy is especially good in Sabbath observance. Yet the ministers will interview him to assure him that they can depend on them for moral support in standing up for the best traditions of Quincy.

Rev. T. W. Davidson of Atlantic, secretary of the Ministerial Association, was interviewed Thursday and said the committee appointed to interview Mayor Stone was Rev. C. P. Marston of Christ Church and Rev. Carl Horst of the Wollaston Unitarian. Mr. Davidson thought almost every citizen of any standing in Atlantic would protest against the meeting being held on Sunday. He did not think there would be any Sunday flying, but that on good authority the permit had been asked for as well as on the other days.

FAREWELL PARTY.

A very pleasant evening was spent Thursday when a party of neighbors and friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Kane on Jackson lane, to bid bon voyage to James S. Dunstan, who sails today on the Leyland liner for England.

Mr. Dunstan in a few well chosen words presented Mr. Dunstan in return thanked those present for their kindness in thus remembering him.

The evening was spent in telling stories and recalling old familiar scenes in the homeland and in singing William Warrington rendered several songs and Allan Dorr sang and also played on his mandolin. Ice cream, cake and tonic were served.

At a late hour the company joined hands and sang Auld Lang Syne after which they bid goodbye to one who has been a faithful friend and neighbor for many years.

FLAG DAY.

Friday marked the annual flag day when every citizen again protected the flag to the Star Spangled Banner which only about 100 years old, floats over a free and sovereign population of 110,000,000 of people.

The flag itself is an inspiration. It has been borne in triumph on many a blood stained battlefield. Its mere presence has time and again protected the lives and property of many when riot and bloodshed have crossed its path.

The song has immortalized it. The few who have termed it as a mere particle of textile fabric have had cause to regret their disrespectful allusion.

Everywhere it is honored and when seen by an American after years of absence from his native land in some remote part of the world his heart thrills with pride and admiration and his soul is stirred by the thought that he is one of the many millions embracing it in its protecting folds.

Quincy people animated by this patriotic fervor which burns like a sanctuary lamp were prompt in paying their tribute or respect.

Every one who had a flag displayed it and hundreds of people appeared on the streets with their flags fastened in their hats or the lapels of their coats.

Paul Revere Woman's Relief Corps held patriotic exercises at the home of the president, Mrs. Mary E. Powers of Bigelow street.

Quincy Lodge No. 418 held patriotic exercises in their club house on Foster street.

Hodensans Tribe of Improved Order of Red Men of Wollaston displayed from the front of Old Fellows hall, Wollaston, the flags representing the development of the American flag. There were ten flags in the display, dating from 1606 to 1912 and each flag had the date on it so all who see them will know what day they represent.

There are only three sets of these flags in the State.

Notes and Comments.

—We shouldn't be at all surprised to hear that the man in Portland, Ore., who has been fined $100 and sent to jail for six months for swearing over the telephone is swearing softly to himself.

—Five hundred million goat skins have been imported into the United States during the last decade, and the money sent out of the country in payment therefor amounts to $250,000,000. Why not go into the goat business at home?—Medford Mercury.

—Those in charge of the arrangements for the gathering of the Republican factions at Chicago show a wise provision for the comfort of the delegates. The convention is to be equipped with a hospital, an emergency ward and a surgical ward.—Tampa Herald.

—Can't eat, can't sleep, can't work, can't sit still—symptoms of a malady beginning to infect the great part of the male population of the country. It is curable only by sitting two hours each day on the hard benches of a baseball park.

—The Indians are rapidly being civilized. One of the best signs of this is the fact that they are no longer afraid of the white man. In the old days it would have been a shot from ambush or a tomahawk snuff in the other fellow's skull.

—This talk about jills being the equal of palaces may be all right in some places, but not in Newark, O. A walking tourist from Wisconsin was put in jail there, and had to spend a week before anybody brought him food. The people had forgotten all about him.

—We are told that the Democratic convention at Baltimore will open June 25, no matter what happens at Chicago. The chances are, however, that the Democratic nominations will not be made until the Democratic caucus, just who the Republican candidate will be.—Somerville Journal.

—The school children of Germany are taught to swim without the use of water. It is claimed that the proper stroke and motion of the arms and legs are more readily acquired in this manner than in the water, as is the more general way of teaching swimmers. The student is suspended by a wide belt from an overhead rail, while the feet are attached to a pair of ropes running over pulleys and adjustable to various requirements. The pupils thus suspended are then taught how to perform the movements of the breast stroke until the action becomes almost instinctive. The advantage in teaching these movements in this way is that the pupil is not distracted by the fear of a ducking.—Natick Bulletin.

HONOR PUPILS.

Headmaster James D. Howlett of Quincy High school announced June 7 that the honor pupils, who are to be the speakers at the graduation exercises, are Miss Olive Barlow, Miss Elizabeth Howard, Donald Reiter and Chester K. Allen. To be a speaker at the closing exercises has always been a most enviable position and the announcement of the above speakers was received with great favor among the student body.

Miss Olive Barlow is a sophomore in "Practical American Girls" graduated from the Adams school in 1908, and has always been very proficient in her studies. She has won a number of prizes during her four years' career at Quincy High school and is considered one of the brightest girls the school ever turned out.

The subject of Miss Elizabeth Howard will be "Glimpses at Girls over the Seas." Miss Howard has attended Quincy High school for four years and has distinguished herself in various branches both there and at the Everett Grammar school, Boston, from which she was graduated in 1908. Miss Barlow, who is very athletic and is very popular among the students.

Oswald Reinhardt, who is to speak on "The Future of Quincy," is a member of a family of scholars, all of whom have acquired themselves of great advantage while students at Quincy High. He is a graduate of the Grady Bryant school, class of 1908, and has frequently captured prizes for high marks in studies. He is well liked by the students at the school and is very favorably known throughout the city.

Chester K. Allen, a graduate of the Cranich school, class of 1908, will talk on "The Parables of Jesus" and the fact that he has taken such a subject for his theme is sufficient proof of his ability as a scholar. He has frequently carried off honors in studies and has always taken an active part in all movements at the school. All of the speakers are talented, and have gained wide experience in the theatricals that have been held from time to time.

BIRTHDAY PARTY.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Schultz entertained thirty-five friends of their daughter Evelyn, Saturday afternoon, from half past two until half past five at their residence on Park street in observance of her eighth birthday. The occasion was one of great merriment as Mr. and Mrs. Schultz are delightful entertainers, and games of all descriptions were enjoyed in a large field which adjoins the house.

The tables spread out of doors were abundantly laden with dainties and delicious confections, including ice cream. Miss Evelyn was made the recipient of many beautiful gifts and many reminders all of her guests wishing her "Many happy Returns of the Day" and pronouncing her birthday party a decided success.

QUINCY'S FOURTH.

The meeting of the Fourth of July celebration Association at the Board of Trade rooms Saturday evening was the largest attended of any this year and was most enthusiastic. Mayor Stone, president of the association, presided and stated that everything was going along smoothly and that there seemed to be more interest than in other years and he had no question but that funds would come in better. He also believed that the City council would give the committee the amount asked for.

On motion of James H. Elcock the following appropriations were made: Fireworks, $550; bands, $300; parade, $150. These sums it was stated was only a starter and that if collections came in well that additional sums would be appropriated.

The President announced that Col. H. L. Kincadee had consented to assume the chairmanship of the automobile parade and this feature was an assured success.

Capt. George A. Wardwell chairman of the parade committee, announced the plan of securing the Roxbury Horse guards for the parade and should they come they would probably camp on Merrymount park the night before and that the rough rider squad would give an exhibition in the afternoon.

He also announced that the Spanish War Veterans would give out the uniforms of fifty men in uniform. The Red Men would probably be represented in the parade by a feature float.

It was voted that the committee meet every Saturday evening from now on until the celebration. The committee will be in Quincy waters for the Fourth of July celebration. Which of the dogs of war of Uncle Sam will drop anchor hereabouts is unknown as that will depend wholly upon the vessels which are on service in the present demonstration.

The Fourth of July association through the president, Mayor Eugene R. Stone, wrote to Senator Lodge requesting that he exert his influence to have a ship come here for the Fourth. Senator Lodge replied that he had written the matter to the Secretary of the Navy and felt assured that a naval vessel would be ordered here for the day, but could not say which one, as that depended entirely upon the vessels available at that time.

Now comes the assurance direct from Washington, estimated to come by the navy department, that Quincy would have its war vessel on the Fourth but with the same element of uncertainty as to just which vessel would be dispatched here.

At any rate there is no doubt now but that the vessel will come and Quincy people will be grateful to this prompt response to their request.

ACCIDENT AT FORD RIVER.

Death claimed another victim of the terrible accident at the Ford River Company shipyard Tuesday morning, when Andrew Brynildsen succumbed in the afternoon.

The correct name was not given of the Italian who was killed outright when the bulkhead fell to the bottom of the hold of the molasses steamer Nelson. At first it was reported that his name was Vichita Pascolina.

It is learned that the man's correct name is Giovanni Decilio. The other two men who were injured are still in the hospital are expected to recover from their injuries but that they are still in a serious condition is conceded.

The men were preparing to put the bulkhead in position. A crane made fast to the great sheet of metal and it was swung over the opening of the vessel. Just as the word was about to be given to lower, three bolts on the fall snapped and down went the heavy mass.

The men below were looking up at the time but so quickly did the accident happen that before they had time to get out of harm's way the steel sheet fell upon them crushing them to the floor.

Workmen hearing their cries rushed to their assistance but it was sometime before they were able to remove the mass. In the meantime the groans of the injured men were heartrending.

The injured men were Andrew Brynildsen, a Norwegian, 27 years old of the Richmond house, Quincy. John C. McDonald, 30 years old, of 42 Chestnut street, Quincy.

Joseph Yori, a Syrian of 123 South Walnut street, Quincy.

They were hurried to the Red Cross hospital at the yard where they were attended by Dr. Blanchard who was in charge, who was assisted by Medical Examiner Frederick Jones, Dr. George M. Sheahan and Dr. John P. Reynolds.

Here the physicians found that Yori had a fractured hip, fractured ribs and numerous contusions about the face and head. He was taken to the depot in the police ambulance and thence to the Grace hospital Boston, being accompanied by Dr. Reynolds.

He was badly cut and bruised and appeared to be suffering great agony. Andrew Brynildsen, was badly bruised and his left arm so badly crushed that it was necessary to amputate it. This was done but he did not survive the shock. He resided at the Richmond house at Quincy Point where but little is known of him.

The fourth man was John C. McDonald, married of 42 Chestnut street. He was the least injured of the four but he also is in bad shape. He suffered the fracture of several ribs, and numerous contusions about the body. He was removed to the City Hospital in the police ambulance.

The funeral of Giovanni Decilio the Italian who was killed outright was held Wednesday afternoon at his late home 60 Brackett street. He left a widow and several children.

The services were attended with the gathering of relatives and friends.

Solo songs were sung during the mass by Mrs. Mary Burns King, who sang "Pie Jesu" at the offertory, Miss Josephine McCarthy, who rendered the "Domine" after the consecration and Dr. Daniel B. Reardon, who sang the "Agnus Dei." The choir consisted of members from the different fraternal organizations of which the late Mr. Kelly was a member. Members of the Clan McGregors O. S. C. escorted the funeral procession from the house to the church and thence to St. Mary's Cemetery at West Quincy, where the remains were interred. The pall bearers were for the Foresters of America were William Norris, George Clark and Fred Steinbrunner, for the Clan McGregors, Alexander McKee and Joseph Houston and for the family of Mr. Kelly, Mr. and Mrs. Scott Wright and Measures James M. Cantill.

FIRE AT WOLLASTON.

The alarm from Box 56 at 5:15 Sunday morning was for a fire on the roof of A. L. Baker's house on Winthrop avenue. Fire had been started in an open grate and sparks set fire to the roof. The Wollaston apparatus responded on a still alarm and some one rang in the alarm. While responding the alarm combination No. 2 of Atlantic house near being smashed up. As the apparatus with its three horse hitch approached the corner of Beale street and Winthrop avenue they were going at a good clip and in turning the corner the rear wheel of the apparatus came in contact with the building and the front wheel ran over the apparatus.

Seeing the smash coming jumped off and saved themselves. The fire loss was $50.

WEST POINT GRADUATES.

Among the graduates of the 1912 class at West Point are six Massachusetts boys, all of whom stand well in their studies and are popular with their classmates. They are Frank Joseph Riley of Dorchester, Charles Chisholm Drive of Brockton, Lewis Andrews Nickerson of Gloucester, Robert Theodore Snow of Chelsea, Sidney Parker Spaulding of Boston and William Hale Wilbur of Springfield.

MRS. E. T. GRAGG.

The funeral services for the late Mrs. E. T. Gragg were held from her late home on the Parkway Sunday morning at 2:30 o'clock. Rev. Benjamin A. Willmott of the Congregational church officiating, assisted by Rev. C. Martin of the Hall Place M. E. church. Miss E. C. Page and Miss Ella R. Bates sang "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere" and "Lead Kindly Light."

The body was escorted by a host of neighbors and friends to the Hall Cemetery for interment.

There were many beautiful flowers, a silent tribute to the love and esteem in which Mrs. Gragg has been held.

Mrs. Gragg was ill during the winter of 1911, and in her death she left a family of ten children. His wife, who was Elizabeth Fowles Dodge, bore her marriage, was born May 20, 1832. Her husband, Rev. E. T. Gragg, was a hale and hearty at the ages of 84 and 85 respectively, and gave promise of rounding out a number of years. They received a large number of callers who showered their congratulations upon them and they were ready to extend their hands to all visitors. In the same manner that has characterized their hospitality during their many years of wedlock.

Few men can boast of such a record as Mr. Funnell has attained. Forced to leave school at the age of 12, he worked at various occupations until 1854, when he engaged in repairing furniture. He worked at this occupation for a number of years and on July 5, 1872, was appointed by the Governor to the state constabulary force.

For a long time afterwards he did considerable detective work. It was in this capacity that he gained a widespread and most enviable reputation. As a detective he had charge of many notable cases. One of the most important of these was the Langmaid case, in which he discovered and arrested the murderer and assassin of John W. Burleigh, who was killed by finding the knife with which the miscreant had severed his victim's body from his head, secured the evidence to convict him. He was the leader in the capture and conviction of James Hawley, the murderer of Judge Devens to have been one of the most interesting murder cases in the history of the country.

It was entirely through his efforts that James MacKenney was convicted and sentenced for life for the death of William McCormick, of Braintree. State officers and detectives had given up the case, the medical examiner had given alcoholism as the cause of death and the body of the victim had been buried a week when Detective Funnell began the mystery.

In 1881 he made a famous capture of George Green, a notorious robber and burglar, who had looted no less than 100 houses between Quincy and Brockton. Hearing that Green was in the Braintree woods, Mr. Funnell set out with a posse of men in the morning and after a gruelling struggle succeeded in placing him under arrest. It was learned at the trial that Green was an escaped convict and had the worst record in the history of the police at that time.

Green was sentenced to 42 years for his burglary. Mr. Funnell was given a reward by the Town of Braintree and was presented a handsome sum by numerous citizens for the capture of Green.

Mr. Funnell is a member of Mt. Wollaston Lodge and Master Encampment, I. O. O. F., Amnna Lodge, Daughters of Rebecca, Mahanah Tribe, I. O. R. M., Knights and Ladies of Honor. Both Mr. and Mrs. Funnell are prominent members of the First Unitarian church. Three children have been born to them, Thomas E. May, L. and Henry Plummer, all of whom are well known in Quincy.

Mr. Funnell is still a justice of the peace and finds time to perform marriages and other duties incumbent upon that office.

L. O. O. F. MEMORIAL SERVICES.

There was a large attendance at the memorial services held Sunday evening at the Washington Street Congregational church under the auspices of John Hancock Lodge No. 224, United Order of Odd Fellows. Members of the lodge, under leadership of Noble Thomas, marched to the church in a body.

The services opened up with a professional, the music being rendered by the John Hancock Lodge Orchestra. This was followed by an invocation, recitation of the Lord's Prayer, a reading and an anthem by William E. Broder, assisted by a choir. The scripture reading was followed by a prayer.

A solo, "Abide With Me," was rendered by J. W. Hendry. Then came the proclamation and in the memorial service for the following deceased Odd Fellows:—Brother William Quincy; C. J. Hazleton, of Saccapara Lodge, No. 11, Westford, Maine; Charles Needham, of Cambridge Lodge No. 12, of Cambridge, John L. Rand, of Pleasant Lodge, No. 16, of Dover, New Hampshire; Edward A. Polson of Pleasant Lodge, No. 31, of Roxbury and George H. Way of Lignia Lodge, No. 5, of Portland, Maine.

An anthem was next sung by the choir. The orchestra rendered the offertory, which was followed by a hymn. The memorial address, rendered by the pastor, Rev. Charles P. Marshall. After another hymn the service closed with benediction, the recessional by the orchestra and the singing in union of "Onward Christian Soldiers."

Referring to the memorial service for the deceased, Mr. Marshall took for his subject "Brotherhood and the future of the world." Text—"For he loved him as he loved his own soul." I Sam. 20-17.

REV. FR. MCINTYRE.

Rev. Fr. Archibald McIntyre, who is performing his priestly duties at St. John's Church while the guest of his sister, Mrs. Daniel Chisholm, of 131 Quincy street, is connected with the diocese of Vancouver, British Columbia. Fr. McIntyre will remain in Quincy for a number of days.

Rev. Fr. McIntyre was educated in Denver, Colorado, and pursued his theological studies in that city. He was ordained there for the priesthood less than a week ago.

He has received many honors during his course of study and is a linguist of more than average ability, speaking several languages.

62d ANNIVERSARY.

A distinction that is enjoyed by very few people was the happy lot of Mr. and Mrs. Napoleon B. Funnell, of 90 Washington street, Sunday, when they observed their 62d anniversary of married life. A feature of their long wedded career is that both were born in Quincy, and have always resided here, having lived in their present homestead for half a century. The knot which bound them together for such a long lapse of years was tied in the First Unitarian church, June 3, 1850, by Rev. W. W. Dean, who is now located at Washington.

Napoleon Bonaparte Funnell was born August 24, 1828, and was the last of a family of ten children. His wife, who was Elizabeth Fowles Dodge, bore her marriage, was born May 20, 1832. Her husband, Rev. E. T. Gragg, was a hale and hearty at the ages of 84 and 85 respectively, and gave promise of rounding out a number of years. They received a large number of callers who showered their congratulations upon them and they were ready to extend their hands to all visitors. Mr. Funnell is still a justice of the peace and finds time to perform marriages and other duties incumbent upon that office.

The bride looked very girlish and sweet in a gown of white satin, veiled in lace and chiffon, hand embroidered in crystal. The veil was caught with orange blossoms and the shower bouquet was of white sweet peas and moss roses. All the bridesmaids wore long, lingerie gowns and the matron wore a gown of white, with a long veil of white satin, veiled with white chiffon embroidered in pearls. The only color was the gown of the flower girl which was of pink silk veiled in white chiffon and lace. She carried a bouquet of pink roses and the bridesmaids large bunches of pink roses.

A reception followed the ceremony the parents of the bride and groom assisting them in receiving their friends. Mrs. Shelley wore a black silk gown with rose silk bolero and a long veil of white satin. Mr. Funnell wore a tuxedo with a black bow tie and a white pocket square.

A wedding supper was served after which Mr. and Mrs. Funnell left for a few days' trip to the Thousand Islands, Montreal, Quebec. The white and gold shower bouquet was given to be in Quincy about the eighteenth for a visit to Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Burchsted, after which they go to Belle Isle, Conn., for the summer.

The bride was graduated from Barnard college of Thursday and the groom is a graduate of Adams Academy, Quincy, and of Lehigh college, Penn.

THE DAY IN JUNE.

James Russell Lowell.

And what is so rare as a day in June
Then, if ever come perfect days;
Then Heaven tries earth if it be in tune,
And over it softly the warm ear lays.
Whether we look or whether we listen
We hear life murmur, we see it glisten,
Every clod feels a stir of might,
Every leaf feels a touch of spring,
An instinct within it that reaches
and towers,
And groping blindly above it for light
Climbs to a soul in grass and flowers.
The flush of life may well be seen
Thrilling back over hills and valleys.
The cowslip starts in meadows green,
The hyacinth catches the sun in its chalice,
And there's never a leaf nor a blade
Too mean
To be some happy creature's palace.
The little bird sits at his door in the sun,
A little like a blossom among the leaves,
And lets his illumined being o'errun
With the delight of summer that receives
His mate feels the eggs beneath her wings,
And the heart in her dumb breast
flutters and sings:
He sings to the wide world and she to her nest—
In the nice ear of nature which soon
is the best?

AN INCOMPETENT CONDUCTOR.

"Fares, please! Fares, please! Fares, madame, please!" With a questioning accent at the end, and a foreign pronunciation of the word "madame"
very unlike the usual business-like demand for five cents with which the average West End conductor gives notice of his approach. The lady particularly addressed looked up in surprise.
"Why, I paid you my fare when I got in at Hereford street," she said, politely.
I beg your pardon, madame, the mistake is mine. I fear I mistook you for a lady who has just entered.
The mistake was entirely unintentional,
I assure you, madame."
The voice was somewhat quavering
but the apology, albeit rather eager and profuse, was in tone and manner
just what a well-bred gentleman would offer to a lady whom he had inadvertently annoyed.
The thin, gray-haired conductor walked up and down the aisle of the car twice, holding out his hand in an uncertain way, and scanning faces anxiously as he passed. A lady at the end put five cents into his hand, and a look of relief came over his face as he said, "Thank you, madame," in a truly grateful tone.
Then a working-man at the other end of the car spoke: "Say, old fellow, what's the matter with you? Be you trying to beat me out of three cents?
Where's my Forest Hills check?"
The man's manner was coarse and rude, and the old conductor flushed as he hastened toward him. "Have I not given you your check, sir?" he asked. "I thought I gave it to you when you paid me."
"No, you didn't," the man asserted, loudly, "and what's more, I don't believe you thought it; this is three times this week you've forgotten, and I'm going to let the Company know."
The miserable, uneasy, helpless look on the conductor's face showed that the scene was agony to him. He handed a Forest Hills check to the man, saying humbly: "I am sorry I have annoyed you so, sir. I—I will try not to let it happen again."

The man made a sly rejoinder as he got out at Columbus avenue, and the old conductor jumped off the car to streety at woman and her three children. He handed them down as though from a carriage, waited for a gentleman to board the car and sprang on again.
"Fare, please!" he said again, with a nervous catch in his voice which made every passenger look up at him curiously. The newcomer put his finger mechanically toward his pocket for change, and stopped short,
looking in amazement at the conduc-tor's face above him.
"That gentleman is Dr. Francis," whispered a lady to her neighbor, naming a famous specialist for diseases of the eye, whose name is a household word in Boston.
The conductor pulled himself together in an embarrassed way, and said once more, "Fare if you please."
The specialist put out his hand as though he were meeting an old and valued acquaintance. "How do you do, Mr. Norfolk? How very fortunate I am to meet you! Here is Miss Norfolk's note."
"Very much as usual," Dr. Francis,
thank you," the old man answered,
shaking the doctor's hand, when a voice interrupted him.
"Shure, I don't wonder the gentleman as just got off says ye wouldn't mind yer business. Wasn't I after telling ye to let me off at Trimont avenue? Here we be at Shawmut avenue!"
The conductor grasped the bell-rope and brought the car to a standstill. "I am so sorry, madam; I beg you will excuse me. I don't know what makes me so remiss today. This is your basket, I think. Allow me—" and he passed the heavy basket to her as she stood on the pavement, and made a motion toward his hat as if to remove it, and then stopped hurriedly in sudden remembrance of time and place.
He did not go inside again, but as the car approached Washington street
he opened the door and said, "Washington street, Washington street, stop change for Dorchester. This is the end of the route," not in a rapid, perfunctory way, but with painstaking precision, as though he were resolved
there should be no mistake this time.
Every one got up to leave but the doctor. The driver unhooked his horses and drove them around to the other end of the car. "We're late again, old man," he said to the conductor. "You'll get bounced as sure as shootin'. If in thunder don't you make the folks hustle more? You're too blamed perille. I s'pose you want the job or you wouldn't be here, but you'll never keep it if you don't get a move on."
The old man winced as if some one had struck him. "I do want the work very much, James," he answered, "I—I need it. I shall be in despair if I lose it; it's very kind of you to tell me my faults. I will try to hustle them and—get a move on."
The driver stopped down to look at the old man and Dr. Francis came out to the platform.
"I didn't give you my fare, after all,
Mr. Norfolk," he said, easily and naturally, holding out five cents. "You will give me your address, will you not?" he continued; "I want to call on my patient and see what I can do for her. There was a case very much packed in between the backs of houses
in the extreme poverty he would find without seeming to apologize. The doctor, taking no notice of his hesitation, wrote down the address in his note-book, lifted his hat, and hurried away.
The car started on its return-trip to the Union Station, and the old conductor resumed his patient, painstaking task. Every street he called out plainly and loudly; every public building on or near the route he named most conscientiously; every question which was put to him he answered with as much care as though the questioner were a personal friend.
In short, he tried to bring every faculty of a mind trained to study and research to his aid in taking charge of that car, and yet, in spite of his great effort, he was miserably conscious all the time that any street boy of eighteen would have performed the task better.
The long weary day drew to a close.
At seven he free to go home, and he hurried anxiously toward Book court, carrying a few oranges and a loaf of bread which he had bought while his car was waiting for the scheduled time on Washington street.
Book court, which is known to its residents by another name, by the way, is a little, close-smelling place,
packed in between the backs of houses
as though it were ashamed of itself, as well it may be. On that hot May night the inhabitants were all out of doors, sitting on the steps and sidewalks cooling themselves.
The old man murmured, "Excuse me
—I beg your pardon—may I trouble you?" and so on, as he worked his way up his own steps through the crowd of women sitting on them.
"The likes of us ain't good enough for the likes of him," a woman said coarsely, before he was out of hearing; "not but what the landlord knocks at his door more often than he does at ours."

And the old grandpa back again?
Tired of waiting, eh, little one? Why don't you have a light?"
"I like the dark better when I'm alone," a sweet voice answered, "but well have one now, so you can see to talk." The sound of a match was heard, and in a minute the light of a common kerosene lamp showed a scene not at all common. A handsome easy-chair, more in keeping with a mansion than a tenement, stood at one side of the room, and beside it, holding some knitting in her hand, a girl of eighteen waited with upturned face for the old man to approach. He came over and kissed her, and she caught his hand and felt of the packages he was holding.
"Oranges. Oh, what an extravagant old man! Supposing the landlord should come in, and find us eating oranges? He was here again tonight," and said he should call again tonight.
"Well, but my darling, I am afraid
you will be ill if you don't have fruit.
You have always been used to it, you know."
"I must learn not to be used to it,
that's all; at least, until we have paid
our rent," the girl answered, as she gave him the oranges, and he hardly began to move about to prepare the supper. She was tall and slight,
and she moved quickly and certainly,
but her hand was always in front of her and she carried her head as only the blind do. A stranger, unused to blindness, seeing her in her own room, where every inch of the space was familiar to her, would hardly have believed that the great blue eyes were sightless; but her grandfather, watching her as she hurried about her homely tasks, realized her blindness in every movement that she made. When her misfortune came upon her, three years before, he had meant to give her everything on earth
she could in any way make up to her for her sight—and here she was making a fire and getting his supper in a tenement house.

"Let me do that for you, darling,
it's not fit work for you," he said hurriedly, approaching the little cylinder stove. But Leslie waved him away.
"It wouldn't burn for an hour if you had the management of it. Grandpa, just sit down, and let me take care of
it."
They never mentioned her blindness. Long ago it had been agreed between them that she was to be treated exactly as though she could see, and only on rare occasions was the agreement broken.
"Tell me about the day, grandpa," Leslie said; "did you remember to give me my Forest Hills check?"
No answer. "Oh, you naughty grandpa, you didn't! Own up now, what were you thinking about,—the Elizabethan age?"
"No, dear, I was thinking how very stupid I am about remembering whether people have paid or not,"
he said, and turned toward his wife and son, and with his face, the self-grating motion which she made seem almost like the beginning of the caress she gave him.
"You poor, dear grandpa, it's a shame for a man with a mind and an education like yours to be doing such work! Can't you get anything else, grandpa?"
"My dear, you know I've tried and tried—tried until our last cent was gone, and the last of our clothes gone,
I am too old for a clerk, not practical enough for a place of trust, and not strong enough to do hard work," he said it humbly, sincerely; rough contact with the world, which sees in a man only utility or the lack of it, had made him very distrustful of himself.

"Supper is ready," Leslie announced, "and you are going to sit in the chair. I've had it all day, and it will rest me to sit in a chair for a little while and see you take comfort."
She always spoke as though she could see, as, indeed, most blind people do.
They sat down at the bare pine
table, the old man in the arm-chair, which was all they had kept from their Back Bay mansion, and the girl
on a common wooden kitchen chair.
A year before, a man who was universally trusted, a man who was trustee and guardian for women and children all over the State, the man who had managed Mr. Norfolk's property unquestioned for years while its owner led a student's life,—this man disappeared suddenly one night, went to Mexico, and an astonished city looked in vain for him. He had been had been embezzling for years, that the estates entrusted to him had been frittered away in speculation, and that many a victim, accustomed to a life of ease, must thereafter choose between work and starvation.
Mr. Norfolk lost everything. He had been a student and a dreamer all his life, with no friends except struggling young men whom he had helped to an education. When the crash came, he had absolutely no resources. The house he lived in was hired—it had been less trouble to hire than to own,
and the furniture and books only brought enough to pay outstanding debts, for the absconding embezzler had kept him short of cash for six months preceding his flight, and six months' bills in a household without a head are no slight matter. They went into a South End boarding-house for a little while, but the money which they raised by selling watches and jewelry went so fast that the old man had hunted up this place in Book court (he remembered it because a former servant had once lived there), bought the few pieces of cheap furniture that were absolutely necessary, and moved in.
Meantime he had tried in vain for a position. As he said himself, he was too old. One day, when things were looking very black indeed, he stood on the corner of Washington and Northampton streets, watching the people in the street-car and thinking enviously that they all had work, when all at once the thought of trying to get a place as a conductor came to him. He went up to the conductor of one of the green horse-cars and asked him politely, "Where should one go to get employment on the West End road?" The conductor looked at him curiously, and the old man explained:

"I am looking for employment on the West End road, and I have been trying to find something for a long period, and as I looked at you it occurred to me that possibly—"
The man's look changed to one of pity. "You can try, but I'm afraid they won't take you," he said, and gave him the proper address.
He did try, and got a place. Whether the man who hired him took pity on his evident anxiety, or whether the West End was in great need of more hands, is uncertain, but he was assigned to one of the Back Bay and Union station cars, and was allowed to go to work the next morning with a coach to "show him the ropes."
It was up-hill work. On an electric car or crowded route he would have failed utterly, but on the old-fashioned horse-car and the quiet route he managed to hold his own, although mistakes like the ones he has made today were frequent, and he lived in constant dread of dismissal.

"Oh, Leslie, pet, I was forgetting all about something that will interest
you. Whom do you think I had for a passenger today? Guess? Someone you used to like very much? Someone who always tried to make you say you liked him best?"
"Grandpa! not Dr. Francis? It couldn't have been Dr. Francis?"
"Ah, but it was, and he is coming to see me today, he said so."
"Coming to see us here?" There was a tone in the blind girl's voice which her grandfather had never heard before, a tone which made her grandfather look at her almost fearfully.
"Would you rather he did not come,
little one?" he questioned kindly.
"You need not mind the poverty of the place with him, you know, dear," grandpa, we will talk about the Elizabethan age. I know you are longing to begin. If I only had a typewriter I could take it all down
for you, but now I can only listen."

How the old man brightened up at the words! How the wrinkles and the lines seemed to smooth themselves away as he answered: "Yes, yes;
let me go on with our work, dear; how far did you get last night?"
"You were just ready to begin about the Minor Poets," replied the girl, promptly; "this would be chapter seventy-two, if we were writing it; but go on, grandpa, how will you begin?"
The term minor, as used in the beginning of this chapter, began the grandfather, "must be accepted in a relative sense; where giants are the rule, a man of great stature may be deemed but little beyond the ordinary
—he got no farther, for a knock sounded at the door and he broke off abruptly to answer it, saying with a sigh: "The landlady, I suppose. I wish we had his money for him."

But it was not the landlady who stood at the door with his finger on his lip and an imperative command to silence in his intent eyes; it was not the landlady who stepped lightly across the room to the blind girl's side and took her hand very gently; and it was not certainly was not the landlady about whose neck she flung her arms with a cry of delight, any more than it was the landlady who held her close for a minute and then put her tenderly into the chair and then stood beside her, holding her hand and looking about the room from a doorway with a mist of tears.
John Francis was known in his profession as a man of iron nerve, but he was very near to breaking down as he stood in that little room in Book court facing the man who had given him his start in life. As long as he lived that room in its poverty contained all his life. He had never before that time in his memory. He took it all in—the bare floor and the bare windows, the rusty stove, the kitchen table with its coarse cloth, common dishes, and poor showing of bread and Bologna sausage and oranges, the dollar cot bed in one corner, and the open door revealing a box of a room with another cot. He saw them all as he stood there trying to think of something to say.
"I waited until late enough to be sure of finding your grandfather with you, Leslie," he said at last. "I was afraid of startling you if I came upon you when you were alone."
Leslie did not answer except with a little shake of the head, and Mr.
Norfolk placed a chair for the doctor, saying, "You have not been at home
very long, I suppose, John?"
"About a month," he replied absently, and then all at once he burst out as though he could contain himself no longer:
"I know all about the business
trouble, and that fellow's rascality.
Mr. Norfolk, but what I want to know is where were your friends? You who have helped so many, who you sent so many boys to Harvard that we used to talk about the Norfolk Scholarship; you who gave me my education and my years of study abroad,—what are you doing collecting fares on a Back Bay horse-car?"
His voice was excited and indignant when he began, but it trembled and broke as he finished.
The old man made a deprecating gesture, and answered in a hesitating way:
"I—I dare say any one of them would have given me help had I asked it, but they all have their own cares

and responsibilities, and, as you know, except to do what little good I could I had no friends but my books;
so when the crash came, every one took it for granted that enough was left for a living, and as I, from my bookish ways, and Leslie from her her health, had had little active part in the lives of others, no one missed us, and no one asks now what has become of us."
"Ah, there you misjudge them, sir;
they do ask what has become of you,
and wonder as to your whereabouts.
Hitchcock, the historian, whose first book you helped to bring out, has been looking for you for weeks, and Jim Fairfield, one of the boys you put through Tech, told me that if he dared he would put detectives on to hunt you up."

"Why do you want to find him?"
Leslie asked.
"They want to do just what I am going to do," the doctor answered quickly; "they want to take you both away from this place and give you a home that is suitable to you, and make up to you for what you have suffered; but they will be too late, because before they can offer you anything, you will have promised me."
"Promised you what, John?" the old man asked.
"Promise to let me be a son to you,
as you were a father to me, when you took me from the poorhouse and made me what I am. You gave me a son's privilege, and I claim a son's rights
as well."

The old man was silent; the year
had brought him so much of hardship,
so much of suffering, that the thought of ceasing from struggling was very welcome to him. He did not hesitate so much as a less generous nature might have done. He had given so freely all his life that his pride did not revolt from accepting a gift. It was Leslie's pride, of course, that it had been for Leslie that poverty had seemed bitter to him, and it was for Leslie that the change made him glad.
"For Leslie's sake, John," he began,
"I am going to say yes to you," but the doctor interrupted him.
"Leslie must say 'yes' for herself," he said, "but the question will not be the same. Darling, and he leaned over the chair, and put his arm carefully about her shoulders. "I am going to cure you. I have cured two such cases since I have been away, and I know that before three months have passed you will see sunshine again.
Darling, you have always said that you would marry me when you grew up, and I have been waiting for you.
Is it my wife I am going to cure? Say yes, dear!"

And she said it—Mabel Elfray

TEMPERANCE COLUMN.

By Q. W. C. T. U.

OUR PLEDGE.
I hereby promise, God helping me,
to abstain from all distilled, fermented, and malt liquors, including wine, beer, and cider as a beverage and to employ all proper means to discourage the use of and traffic of the same.

THE PLAIN TRUTH.
The responsibility for whisky-wrecked lives, and all the attending evils of intemperance, rests primarily upon those who vote for licensed holes of temptation and sure destruction.—The Temperance Annual.

IT NEVER PAYS
The saloon may bring a large revenue to a town or community, but in the end it costs more in money alone,
to say nothing of the sorrow, suffering and wrecked lives, than it pays into the town or community treasury.

FAILURE IN BUSINESS.
The first and most seductive peril,
and the destroyer of many young men,
is the drinking of liquor. I am a temperance lecturer in disguise, but a man who knows and tells you what observation has proved to him; and I say to you that you are more likely to fail in your career from acquiring the habit of drinking liquor than from any or all other temptations likely to assail you.

You may yield to almost any other temptations and any reform—may brave up, and, if not recover lost ground, at least remain in the race and secure and maintain respectable position.
But from failure caused by the drink
habit recovery is almost impossible.
I have known but few exceptions to the rule.—Andrew Carnegie.

large in the new membership and in all the services. We have settled an assistant pastor and organized a new Congregational church which he will serve. This church gives promise of rapid growth and large influence.
When we came here the church was ruined by heavy indebtedness. The interest in the work has grown till the church wished to cancel the debt. At a public meeting a week ago the debt of fifteen thousand dollars was pledged and the momentum was sufficient to carry the pledges nearly two thousand dollars more. In all the pledges will amount to about seventeen thousand. Our regular budget for this year is twelve thousand aside from many extras, consequently the receipts for 1912 will much exceed twenty thousand dollars.

LETTER FROM DR. HARDY.
Editor of the Patriot:
Again will I redeem my promise to write for you a word concerning the life in the Middle West. We have had something more than a year of it and like it. We like the place, the people, the church and the work. A more actractive place for a home cannot be found near Chicago. In fact a New Englander who has just made his residence here declares it is the most beautiful place he ever saw. La Grange has the best health record of the state and one of the best in the west. There has been little sickness here this winter even though the weather has been intensely cold. There are so many New Englanders here that it would be difficult to be lonely and there is so much doing all the while that there is no time for anything of the kind.

The spring has been late but now the crops are coming forward very rapidly. I confess that the fertility of the soil constantly amazes me. Gardens which have been planted for a decade produce abundantly with no enrichment. There are no stones to trouble. It is not surprising that the early settlers considered this the very garden of the gods. To one bred in the hill country it seems at first strange that these dwellers on the plains come to love them with an interest equal to that of the New Englander for the highlands. As we live in a district of rolling prairie and really within the confines of Chicago
we have not missed the hills.
Of course everything now is at white heat over the Republican convention. Conditions are terribly mixed and there seems to be a growing hope that a "dark horse" may win.
So intense has become the animosity that it hardly seems possible that either of the great candidates can win the election even if nominated. The charges and evidences of fraud seem about equally divided between Taft and Roosevelt and the number of men who are thoroughly disgusted with both men is steadily growing. So many of the real conditions are withheld from the public that the more intelligent men no longer attempt to predict what will happen in the convention.

Naturally friends will wish to know how the work has progressed here in four years. It has been a good year for us in every way. Attendance at all our services has steadily increased and there seems to be a good degree of interest throughout the church. During the first year sixty-two new members were added to the church, forty on confession of faith and about fifty adults. The proportion of men is very

DRAMATIC CLUB OUTING.
Members of St. John's Dramatic club took a joy ride to Nantasket Saturday, where they spent the evening in a most pleasant and enjoyable manner. On arriving at the beach, a dinner was partaken of at the Surfside.

The different parts of Nantasket were visited and dancing furnished an attraction until shortly before midnight when the return to Quincy was made in automobiles.

CALL RATIFIED.
At a meeting of the Wollaston Congregational society on Friday June 14 the action of the supply committee in calling Dr. Sneath was ratified and his letter of acceptance was read.
It was voted to continue the supply committee, of which Charles F. West is chairman, in office to arrange with Dr. Sneath for his reception and installation in the fall.

There will also be portraits of well known business men, doctors, lawyers, public buildings and residences, besides much reading matter. The publication will be the most valuable ever issued by the Patriot and will not only observe the 75th anniversary of the Patriot but the 25th anniversary of Quincy as a city and of the Quincy Daily Ledger.

WOLLASTON UNITARIAN CHURCH

Sunday will be observed at Children's Sunday in the Wollaston Unitarian church and promises to be of unusual interest. The church will be beautifully decorated. In addition to the singing and scripture reading by the pupils, a number of children will be baptized. The children baptized in June 1902 will receive from the church, through its president Charles S. Adams, D.D., a copy of the Bible in recognition of the tenth anniversary of their baptism. Superintendent Frank A. Page will present gold pins to pupils for faithful attendance upon the sessions of the Sunday school. Fred M. Rollins, chairman of the charity committee, will tell of the work of the Sunday school in behalf of the Fresh Air children and have four young ladies receive the annual contribution for the annual Junior Land-a-hand club, through its president Priscilla White, will present a beautiful picture to the Sunday school and Mrs. Herbert J. Schools having closed for the season the pupils must now find other fields of activity.

As a trying out place for ambitious base ball players, Quincy is far ahead of any of its sister cities.

The enthusiasm for the Fourth of July celebration is like a snow ball that started at the top of the hill gains in size and strength as it rolls along.

It is now up to the City Council to do their part to help the thing along.

A unity of organizations such as manifested at the Spanish War Veterans' gathering Tuesday night is a great help for international peace.

The foliage throughout the city is assuming an autumnal frosty appearance from the spraying it receives to kill off the gypsy moths and brown tails.

Pedestrians using the western sidewalk on Hancock street between Saville and School streets are complaining about the lowness of some of the store awnings. In some places the awnings are so low that one is liable to lose a hat in passing beneath them. While parties making the complaint have not taken the trouble to measure the height of the awnings there is no question but that they are considerably lower, than is some of them, than allowed by the City Ordinances.

Ordinance No. 14, section 4 says: "No person shall place or maintain over any street or sidewalk any sign, awning, shade or other obstruction, unless permission shall have first been obtained in writing from the Commissioner of Public Works. All such signs, awnings, shades or other obstructions shall be safely and securely supported. No awning shall be less than seven feet from the ground at its lowest point. All signs, awnings, shades and other obstructions shall be of such width as shall be determined by the Commissioner of Public Works."

The Commissioner should take his yard stick and measure some of the awnings in the section mentioned.

The wedding march from Lohengrin was played by Miss Minnie L. Shaw, sister of the bride. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Florence R. Shaw, and the best man was Frederick Leighton of Philadelphia, Pa. brother-in-law of the groom. The double ring service was used. The bride looked charming in a gown of white messaline, en train, trimmed with duchess lace. Her veil was caught up with lilies of the valley and she carried a bouquet of the same flowers. The maid of honor wore pink messaline and carried a bouquet of pink sweet peas.

Q. H. S. GRADUATION.

The ninety-six graduates, boys and girls of the Quincy high school, who received their diplomas at the high school hall, Wednesday evening, had the good fortune to hear two short but very good addresses, both on widely divergent subjects.

Prof. Marshall Livingston Perrin of the Boston University, addressed the pupils on "American Ideals," and John L. Miller, chairman of the school committee in performing the duty of presenting the diplomas to the graduates took occasion to touch upon the more realistic subject of the cost, the care, and duty which the city performed towards the young people that they might enjoy a higher education. It was a common sense practical talk, which could not fail to impress both the graduates and the audience.

The graduation exercises were successfully conducted in every detail. There was no jarring note, no delay, no hesitation to mark the perfect harmony of action which makes such occasions both successful and delightful. The parents and friends of the happy graduates gathered in large numbers to encourage them by their presence, and the schoolmates were on hand to raise their genuine voices in useful numbers echoing in measure the welcome which the world gave to those young people soon to enter upon new duties and take up fresh responsibilities.

The foliage throughout the city is assuming an autumnal frosty appearance from the spraying it receives to kill off the gypsy moths and brown tails.

Pedestrians using the western sidewalk on Hancock street between Saville and School streets are complaining about the lowness of some of the store awnings. In some places the awnings are so low that one is liable to lose a hat in passing beneath them. While parties making the complaint have not taken the trouble to measure the height of the awnings there is no question but that they are considerably lower, than is some of them, than allowed by the City Ordinances.

Ordinance No. 14, section 4 says: "No person shall place or maintain over any street or sidewalk any sign, awning, shade or other obstruction, unless permission shall have first been obtained in writing from the Commissioner of Public Works. All such signs, awnings, shades or other obstructions shall be safely and securely supported. No awning shall be less than seven feet from the ground at its lowest point. All signs, awnings, shades and other obstructions shall be of such width as shall be determined by the Commissioner of Public Works."

The Commissioner should take his yard stick and measure some of the awnings in the section mentioned.

WEDDING ANNIVERSARY.

Dr. and Mrs. C. Wendell Garney, entertained a few friends informally Thursday evening at their new home on Hancock street. The gathering was in the nature of a house warming. In addition to this the date also happened to be the twenty-third anniversary of their marriage.

The evening was passed in a most enjoyable manner with vocal and instrumental music, not forgetting a lunch that was served during the latter part of the evening. Before the guests took their departure they presented the Dr. and Mrs. Garney with a slight remembrance of the occasion.

The first hop of the season at the Quincy Yacht club took place Tuesday evening and was largely attended. Dancing was enjoyed until midnight, the music being furnished by Monk's orchestra. Frappe was served during the evening.

The hall was prettily decorated for the occasion with streamers of red, white and blue being everywhere conspicuous. The charge in irregularity. The meeting will be held next week.

MAINE RELIC RECEIVED.

Past Commander Henry J. Matthews, sponsor for the Maine relic, the powder tank from that historic warship, turned over his charge to John A. Boyd Camp, No. 2, United Spanish War Veterans, at a session of that organization in Grand Army hall, Tuesday night. The trophy was accepted in behalf of the Camp by Past Commander George A. Wardwell.

The occasion was one of much enjoyment, bringing together as it did members of the Spanish War Veterans, Sons of Veterans, members of the Canadian Military, members of the British Military Naval Veterans associations, public officials, private citizens, and last but by no means least that grand old man of the Grand Army of the Republic, Commander Francis P. Loud of Paul J. Revere Post No. 88, Grand Army of the Republic.

The gathering was informal, without set speeches. Many were called upon and heartily responded, and it proved a most joyous and pleasant commingling of congenial spirits, every one willing and ready to contribute his share to the complete enjoyment of all.

It was a cosmopolitan gathering likewise as hands were "stretched" across the sea and border to greet the English cousins from England and Canada.

The keynote was happily struck by Capt. A. F. D. Woodbridge of the Canadian military when he suggested that while an imaginary line and the sea separated the two English speaking peoples they were united in a common bond for the uplift of humanity and good fellowship the world over.

Expressions of unstinted reverence and praise were accorded the members of the Grand Army and Spanish War Veterans and Sons of Veterans pledged themselves to keep green the memory of the men who fought for home and country and principles in the great struggle of fifty years ago.

Representative William J. Leslie struck a responsive chord in the hearts of all present when he urged all to work with enthusiasm will in the movement to provide a better home for the boys of '61 and '65 who were fast answering the last roll call. In Quincy he emphasized the view held by many that the citizens had been backward in providing suitable quarters for the local post of the Grand Army.

The speeches of all were brief but pointed and contained some sentiment or thought which could be well looked out and pondered over at leisure, with the possible result of good being produced.

The main feature of the evening's gathering however was the presentation and acceptance of the relic. The former duty devolving upon Past Commander Henry J. Matthews and the acceptance of the same falling to the lot of Past Commander George A. Wardwell.

As an evidence of the good feeling existing between the diversified elements present toasts were drunk to President William H. Taft, the commander of the army and navy, George V. of England, Commander Francis P. Loud of Paul Revere Post, and a silent toast and salute were accorded the heroic dead.

Past Commander George A. Wardwell presided and introduced the various speakers and entertainers. Captain William J. Matthews, of the Maine relic, was requested to read the "Queen" Lieut. Woodbridge acting as accompanist.

The speakers of the evening were Representative William J. Leslie, Department Adjutant Comrade Foye of the Brockton Camp, Commander Francis P. Loud of Paul J. Revere Post, No. 88, of Quincy, Commander Francis P. Loud of Paul Revere Post, and a silent toast and salute were accorded the heroic dead.

Q. H. S. RECEPTION.

Music hall was the scene of a brilliant and social event on Thursday night when fully 500 people including parents, teachers, students and friends, were present at the annual reception of the senior class of the Quincy High school.

The affair was most delightful for those who participated and the successful manner in which every detail was carried out caused it to be pronounced one of the best receptions ever held by a senior class.

The hall was handsomely decorated for the occasion. At the south-east corner, where the receiving party was stationed, was suspended a large American flag, while streamers of red and blue, the school colors added to the effectiveness of the scene. Potted plants, ferns

Notes and Comments.

—Good judges say the Somerville Journal seem to think that the chance that the little cannon captured at Bunker Hill and now in the city of Quincy will come back to Boston is about as small as the gun.

—No matter how poor you are, remember there is somebody just a little poorer," says the Charleston News and Courier, and perhaps there are some who can get comfort in that way. What is there, however, for those unfortunate who are troubled by the thought that, however rich they are, there are others who are richer?

It is startling to learn that two-thirds of the persons killed on street crossings in this state last year lost their lives while trying to cross while the gates were down. They paid the penalty of pure recklessness that was positively suicidal. It is foolish to argue against it for people will take chances. The only way this killing can be avoided is by the separation of the grades.

—Eleven designers of heavier-than-air flying machines have entered the competition for the Gould prize, $15,000 is offered for the "most perfect and practical machine" designed and demonstrated in this country. The prize is offered by Edwin Gould, through the Scientific American, and the try-outs will be held July 4 near New York. The conditions of the competition include that each machine shall have two sets of motors and propellers, which may be used together or separately.

—Westerly, Rhode Island, whose granite industry is its distinctive business, is to have a public building of white marble. This is on a par, says the Milford Gazette with the proposed use of other than Milford granite in our new post-office building. In neither case is it a very good advertisement for the town's important industry. A reasonable view of the fitness of things would suggest the appropriateness of the use of the local product in both cases, but local pride seems to have little weight with the powers that be in such matters.

—Now that the summer, so long delayed by rain and cold, is fairly here, let our sympathy go out to the small boy, or the boy not so very small, who wishes to play on Sunday. Let him be postponed till afternoon, if he then plays, leaving churches and church-going people together with a lot of his muscles get their due and his mouth open in laughter. Games for admittance fees or where they will disturb thickly-settled areas of population may perhaps be prohibited; but that a law, which has neither Old Testament nor New upon its side, should torment the children of today is unbearable. Besides, has any opponent of sports on Sunday afternoon considered what the boys would be doing if they were not at innocent play, or what things are done by men against law?—Christian Register.

WOLLASTON BAPTIST PICNIC.

The best and largest picnic in its history was held at Island Grove Park, Abington on the holiday by the Wollaston Baptist Sunday school.

Extra cars were attached to the train leaving Boston at 8:42 which made a special stop at Wollaston and the jolly crowd of 250 reached the grove shortly before 10 o'clock.

Here sports of all kinds were indulged in among the features being a quarter mile race for "Hassbans."

Elford L. Durjan, superintendent of the Sunday school was the winner of this event the time being something under half an hour. Although the distance was but a quarter of a mile it seemed about ten to some of the participants who had not recovered their breath when it came time to start home.

The quarter mile boat race proved quite exciting and was won by J. R. Reed in 1 minute 55 seconds. The double car race for the same distance was won in 2 minutes, 34 seconds by Fred Oxner and Ned Taylor.

The sports concluded with a six inning ball game between the Wollaston and Rand classes, won by the former 7 to 2.

The last inning proved exciting as the Rand class filled the bases and threatened to win after all. The Wollaston class was conspicuous by the number of substitutes put in.

Lemonade and popcorn were distributed with a liberal hand and the party continued for home at four-thirty, just in time to miss the heavy down pour.

The picnic was in charge of J. Arthur Sparrow, Eben Charles, Jr., Arthur Jewell, Mrs. Charles B. Hall and William Bullock.

The results of the races follow:

50 yard dash—Won by Earl Church, Leon Bigness second.

50 yard dash for boys—Won by Edward Smith, Lawrence Bailey second.

50 yard dash, boys 12 and under—Won by Russell Sears, Joseph Barber second.

Hurry up with your subscription to the Fourth of July celebration so that the committee may know where it is at.

The powers that be, in the future, when granting building permits should set the line of the building back from the street with a view to possible future improvements or widening.

Chairman Miller of the School board may not be in the gill-netted or spell-binding manner that she was a logical and forceful manner of saying things right out from the shoulder and making himself understood.

It has cost the city considerable to take care of, or rather for the support of the City and Brown tail moths for since work in this line was undertaken in 1905, the city has expended $47,806 and some of the City and Brown tail moths are still with us. This is a case however where the state stamps the expenditure of money.

"We are asked to say something about dust," says the Weymouth Gazette. "Some poet has said 'thou art and to dust thou returnest.' Legend says 'every man must eat a peck of dirt' and the only thing we can say about dust is you can discount the poet and the legend on Broad street and in many other places in Weymouth."

If the dust is any worse on the main streets in Weymouth than it is on Washington and Hancock streets and most every other street in Quincy we would like to know it. The black greasy dust that blows in clouds into stores and houses is exasperating. Who will sprinkle?

FOR SALE, WELLS!

Down at the end of Houghs Neck, there is a little three cornered bit of land, resembling the jib piece of a small yacht sail. It is surrounded on every side by buildings and the travelled highway on either of the sides of this triangle is not very wide.

The triangle is offered for sale. Its position, surroundings and location upon it furnish food for amusement.

The erection of another building on this land would eclipse any of the worst crowded tenement house districts in New York. As a little bit to give a touch of decoration to an otherwise unattractive surrounding. It should be permitted to stand in its present condition. It is the one striking oasis in an unattractive desert of polygyl structures which have neither beauty of architecture or surroundings to favor them. It should be preserved in its present state. To build on it would only add to the horrors of the scene.

The citizens of Houghs Neck should club together and buy this little piece of land and rescue it forever from the fate of the land on all sides of it.

WANT WATER ON TAP.

The removal by the city of the water facilities at the bathing beach, Wollaston, has been the cause of much complaint by bathers old and young.

For years there has been a faucet, located near the bath houses owned by Arthur E. Linnell, which has been used by hundreds daily.

This year the city has discontinued the service claiming that the bath houses were a private enterprise.

Mr. Linnell, owner of the bathhouse stand that it would be unjust for him to provide a metered service at the bath houses to the bathers besides the occupants of his bath houses.

The controversy has resulted in a petition, signed by hundreds asking the city to replace the faucet which has been regarded as one of the fixtures of the beach.

FRANCIS—HODGKINSON.

A very quiet wedding took place, on Wednesday evening, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John T. Next year Mr. Richards will limit the temperance medal to grammar school students as the High school has won it in the past.

CITY GENEROUS.

That the City of Quincy is a good employer of labor is shown by the City Auditor whose books show that from January 1 to date the city has paid $71,238.32 for labor. This does not include the amount paid for police, firemen, clerks or officials.

At the conclusion of the concert, Grand Knight Edward D. Barrett presented the lecture of the evening in William F. Kenney. The speaker started in by telling of his many experiences with the Knights of Columbus, especially among the pioneers of the order. He brought to mind the times when the local order was instituted, adding that it was a night about as hot as Wednesday night, and even hotter at certain times.

He then went on to tell of the great demonstration manifested when it became known that three distinguished American members of the Holyarchy would be visiting the Cardinals by Pope Pius X. Mr. Kenney took his auditors with him from Boston, until arrival was made at Rome, showing slides of many incidents that happened on the journey. The most interesting portion of the lecture concerned the magnificent ceremonies at Rome, when the thirteen archbishops were made cardinals.

Various buildings and historical places, together with a number of pictures of famous places, added to the interest of the lecture.

The great personality of Cardinal O'Connell occupied a considerable portion of Kenney's lecture. He spoke of his broad minded spirit and the manner in which he had appealed to all the passengers on the boat, talking and chatting with them and even playing the piano and singing to their pleasure.

He told of how the Bishop of Ghent had come to greet the American Cardinals when the ship passed through there. The speaker went on to a lengthy description of different places in Rome.

The American college and its surroundings were described at length and a resume of the Notification ceremonies, at which a messenger came from the Pope and announced the good tidings to the three American archbishops. He added that Archbishop Falconio answered the message.

A copy of the message was shown on the slide. The conferring of the Berretta at the Vatican, attended by the personal friends of the Cardinals-to-be, was also shown, as well as an enlarged picture of the red hat.

Mr. Kenney showed a number of pictures of different pilgrimages. The magnificent ceremonies which were witnessed by 10,000 people.

The hotel Quirinal, where Cardinal O'Connell and his staff stayed while at Rome, was described in detail and the wonderful paintings of Michael Angelo were shown and described to great advantage.

Mr. Kenney spoke of Cardinal O'Connell's eloquent speech on the "Irish Race" delivered at the ceremonies held when he took possession of this titular church at Rome.

Various other features attending the ceremonies were told of and the speaker was tendered a rising vote of thanks at the conclusion of his address. Dr. A. H. Gilson worked the slides.

Refreshments were served at the close of the lecture and the floor was then cleared for dancing, which was enjoyed till midnight. The affair was in charge of Grand Knight Edward D. Barrett and Lecturer Andrew Driscoll.

K. OF C. LADIES' NIGHT.

A large number were treated to a most interesting lecture on the "Papal Conclave" at Rome, illustrated by stereopticon, given in Colonial hall, Wednesday evening by William F. Kenney, who accompanied Cardinal O'Connell to Rome.

The occasion was the "Ladies' Night" held under the auspices of Quincy Council, No. 96, Knights of Columbus.

The guests of the evening included Rev. Fr. John J. Coan, pastor of St. John's church and assistant, Rev. Fr. John J. Casey, Rev. Fr. John P. Cuffe, pastor of the Church of the Sacred Heart, Atlantic and City Solicitor John W. McNamery.

Previous to the lecture an entertainment took place and all the contributors to this portion of the program rendered their respective numbers in a manner that caused them to merit prolonged applause.

Marcus Mahon, assisted by his brother John Mahon, organist at St. John's church, gave a violin solo which was most favorably received and appreciated.

This was followed by a reading by Miss Margaret Heaney, which was so impressive that she was forced to respond to an encore. Her impersonation was the subject of much favorable comment and her talent fully appreciated.

A soprano solo by Miss Mary McManus with Miss Margaret McManus as the accompanist proved a decided hit. The varied tones of her sweet voice captivated the audience and her work elicited loud applause.

Miss Margaret White and Miss Florence White rendered a violin duet and their playing evoked the greatest possible appreciation on the part of the audience.

The last contributor to the musical program was Master Edward Roddan, who made a decided hit with a corset solo. His sister Miss Helen Roddan played the accompaniment. The young star took the entire audience by complete surprise and was forced to respond to several encores. His calm manner of rendition immediately made him a favorite and his work was such as would reflect credit upon professional talent.

QUINCY'S FOURTH.

A well attended meeting of the July 4th celebration committee was held Wednesday evening. In the absence of President Stone, James H. Elcock presided. Partial reports were received from the collectors which showed that there had now been collected $600.

Nothing definite has as yet been decided by the Mayor's committee as to the $1,000 appropriated by the City Council shall be devoted to paying the bills of this association. Last year Mayor Shea gave the central association $800 and the Atlantic people $200, and it is fair to presume that some such division of the amount will be made this year.

Taking this as a basis the celebration committee have practically $1,400 at its disposal at the present time. As sums aggregating $1,600 have been appropriated it will be seen that between now and the Fourth it will be necessary for the collectors to raise at least $200 and even more should be collected to carry out what the committee desire and make this year's celebration eclipse anything of the kind ever held in this city.

President Elcock endeavored to impress upon the collectors the importance of the work they had ahead of them. It is known just what the committee can depend on some of the features desired are held in abeyance.

Col. Henry L. Kincaide chairman of the automobile parade said that the auto parade would go into every ward of the city.

The route has at this time been arranged the route as roughly drafted covered about 12 miles.

Ex-Councilman William H. Flynn spoke at length about the antique parade entering Ward Two. He said that a number had spoken to him who felt that the parade had been a night last year in this respect.

He knew for a fact that if it was entered that the parade was to enter Ward Two considerable more money would be contributed.

Capt. George A. Wardwell chairman of the parade committee said that it was his intention to have a parade on a hot day, and unfair to ask the men marching in the line, who were weighted down with uniforms and paraphernalia, to go over too long a march.

While the definite line of the parade had not as yet been given out the committee members felt that the parade would enter Ward Two. It was also proposed that it should take in a part of Wards 3 and 4.

The matter of athletic sports was then taken up. G. B. Bates, president and Charles G. Vize, vice-president of the City League and the president of the directors of the league action had been taken on the Fourth of July games. This was one of the best paying days of the league, and it had scheduled two games for that day.

If the committee would guarantee them $200 worth of beer they would be glad to have a game in the afternoon. They believed this would be a big drawing card and while even at that price the league would be losing money it was willing to co-operate with the committee.

They fully realized the financial condition of the city and said that they could almost guarantee that $100 could easily be raised by selling score cards. Mr. Gancel said that he would guarantee two or three ads on the score card at $5 each, which would more than pay for the printing.

From money raised in this way the $100 could be easily raised in this way.

While it was most desirable that these games should be played on the park as outlined the committee did not feel warranted at this time in closing this event. Mr. Gancel said that he would be glad to have the matter open until Saturday night.

At the suggestion of James E. Neary, chairman of the athletic sports it was voted to have amateur ball games in Wards 2, 3 and 4, and a running race close to the park.

It was stated that at the present time he had but four amateur teams and their games had been arranged as follows.

The Starling Outing club and the Orioles would play on the Ward Three grounds at 3:30 o'clock.

The Y. M. C. A. and Colonials would play on the Ward Two grounds at 4 o'clock.

The Town River Yacht club had agreed to arrange their water sports about one o'clock so as not to interfere with this game and at the water sports it would be announced that the ball game would be played at four o'clock. The sum of $10 would be given for each of the ball games.

He also stated that he hoped to be able to arrange for a game in Ward 4.

The running race would be a feature of the day. This race will be open to all Quincy athletes.

Places will be given for the first six places in addition to a prize first.

Applications for entries for this race should be made to Mr. Neary or to A. F. LaRose, physical instructor at the Y. M. C. A.

The entries for this race will close July 3.

The route of the runners as outlined by Mr. Neary is as follows: Starting in City Square they will go up Hancock street, to Quincy avenue, to Newcomb square, to East Howard street, to South street, to Washington street, to City Square, to Hancock street to Merrymount.

If one of the professional games was played at the park he planned to have the runners end their race in the ball field, but so as not to interfere with the game.

The prizes selected for the running race are as follows: First prize, gold watch. Second prize, silver shaving set. Third prize, leather suit case. Fourth prize, Ebony military brushes. Fifth prize, "Lucky Grove" fountain pen. Sixth prize, Hull, detachable handle, umbrella.

The temporary chairman of the music committee made an appeal for more funds, that another band might be secured for the parade. He was also told that this was desired, but unless the money was collected it could not be had.

It was voted to appropriate $50 for incidental expenses of the general committee, such as postage, typing, etc.

It was announced for Charles H. Johnson that with an appropriation of $100 he could supply 1,000 children with ice cream cones and peanuts, and would secure permission to use the open space between the City Hall and the cemetery for the distribution. This matter will also be considered at the next meeting. The committee will do their best to provide for the children if some other feature is eliminated for that purpose.

For half an hour before the meeting the Quincy Fire and Drum Corps paraded through City Square with red lights. They also carried candles announcing the Fourth of July celebration. This served to call attention that the committee was in session and that if any one had not as yet dropped their mite in the box now was the accepted time.

The meeting adjourned at 10:30 to meet again Saturday night. At this adjourned meeting the amounts available for the celebration will be definitely settled upon.

NIGHT OF FIRES.

Thursday night was a busy one for the firemen. There were three bell and one still alarm during the night. Two of the bell alarms were for the same fire and served to act as a general alarm calling out all of the city apparatus with the exception of Combination 3 at Houghs Neck. Two of the three fires were in buildings occupied by the John Berman Furniture company.

The first alarm came from Box 23 at 8:06 and was immediately followed by Box 35. Both boxes were for the same fire. They are what is known as succession boxes so that as soon as one alarm sounding the other gave in its alarm.

This fire was in the Plumber building at 1601 Hancock street and owned by Mrs. Charles Jenness. The building is occupied on one half of street floor by the Berman Furniture company who also occupy the second floor. The second story of the building is occupied by Saltinatchie's fruit store. The fire however did not touch this store and his stock was not damaged.

Berman's place was packed full of furniture of all descriptions, so that it was not even on the top of the building and the flames shooting up through the rear one made a very spectacular effect.

The Berman Furniture Company carried about $11,000 worth of stock, but by good work of the fire department the loss was reduced to $1,200. This will be to the roof of the building and the damage to the furniture caused by water, as no fire came below the attic. Had the roof not been slatted it is probable that the fire would have been more disastrous.

Box 23 is but a small building but it was the danger box and the fire started in a blind attic and when discovered the flames were coming through the roof. There are no windows in the attic and the flames building and the flames shooting up through the rear one made a very spectacular effect.

Notes and Comments.

—They have a machine in the treasury at Washington now that washes dirty money, starches it, irons it, and turns it out almost as good as new. Still, we shall probably hear more or less about filthy lucre.—Somerville Journal.

—A contemporary suggests that if deaf mutes are permitted to roam about city streets accidents to them are bound to occur. We do not know if deaf mutes will continue to take chances and prefer the danger to being immured somewhere where they have to be deprived of liberty.—Brookline Enterprise.

—The corporation council has decided the matter of a night-hour law passed to control the work of municipal mechanics and laborers there can be no overtime and no overtime pay in New York. It is said that there is some objection by the workers to this decision, which practically amounts to a number of cases to a decrease in earnings.

—A former United States naval officer in a recent address in New York, offers another suggestion for the increased safety of ocean going ships. He would have the decks of passenger ships made double, with air tight metal compartments between the two sections, which would prevent the ships from sinking below a certain point when the water came in the hold. The proposition seems feasible, but its practicability is a matter for the experts to decide.—Milford Gazette.

—The success of the use of schools as social centers in Chicago has been so marked that a committee of the board has recommended the substitution of movable desks and tables for the permanent desks and seats which have been commonly used by pupils. Such a change would make a school room easily convertible into a hall for lectures, dances or games and various social entertainments. The recommendation is one which other cities could well follow.—Taunton Herald.

—Theodore M. Vail, president of the American Telephone and Telegraph company, just back from Europe, speaking of the appalling poverty which prevails in Europe says that "if it were not for the millions spent abroad by Americans every year there would be a social revolution and an upheaval throughout the continent." That is probably true, and there are persons who apparently would like the prevalence of similar conditions on this side of the water.—New Bedford Standard.

—The proprietor of a hotel at one of the English resorts is quoted as saying that he does not want Americans at his place because "they are excessively mean and want their money's worth every time." Evidently the American tourist who is so mean that he wants his money's worth is not worth catering to. The ideal guest is one who takes up his room for the use of service, pays the price however extortionate it may be, tips every employee from the head clerk to the scullery maid, and goes away singing "God save the King."—Springfield Union.

—Major Roche of the French army is responsible for the statement that 25 per cent of the accidents sustained by aviators are due to lack of natural aptitude, 25 per cent to poor construction in the aeroplanes, 13 per cent to insufficient training of the pilots, 13 per cent to a total misconception of the limits of the aeroplanes, from 10 to 12 per cent to atmospheric conditions, over which the aviator has no control, and 6 per cent to sheer recklessness of aviators who go up without testing their machines or land on unfamiliar ground.—Scientific American.

—The editor of the Survey strikes a true and needed note when he says that we have to deal with anarchy above as well as below in our country. "There is no cure for the lawlessness of the street and the shop which does not rest upon a respect for the legal guarantee of legal and constitutional rights." There is a strong suspicion among the lower classes in this country that the dice of law are loaded, and that, while the poor man is held strictly to obedience to the statutes that refer to him, the rich man or the man of power law is influenced in high places, go on undisturbed in his disobedience to the plain requirements of Congressional or State law. If this be an error, it is one which is wide-spread and which encourages the cynicism of the lower classes.—Christian Register.

AMERICAN INSTITUTE.

The 31st annual convention of the American Institute of Instruction will be held at North Conway, N. H., July 2 and 3 inclusive. The program is an interesting and varied one. Tuesday evening there will be a reception and address by President Charles T. C. Whitcomb and others, closing with a business meeting.

Morning, afternoon and evening sessions will be held the remaining days of the gathering with addresses, discussions interspersed with outings, golf, tennis, automobile trips and evening parties.

Fourth of July rates will be in force from all main points on the Boston & Maine Railroad for trip to North Conway and return during the week July 2-9 for a single fare. This is just one-half the regular rate. The New England Passenger Association has authorized for all the railroads of New England a rate of a fare and three-fifths for the Convention upon the certificate plan. This rate will prevail only provided 200 certificates are validated.

CITY COUNCIL.

The air was hot and sultry Monday night in the Council chamber, yet the large number of spectators remained until after the order calling for an appropriation of $1,000 for the proper celebration of the Fourth of July had been disposed of. As was anticipated there was considerable opposition to the passage of the order and the Finance committee to whom it was referred during a recess of ten minutes attempted to amend the order borrowing the money on a one year loan, which meant that the order could not possibly pass at this meeting. The councilman in favor of the order saw the move however and the report of the committee was rejected and the order referred during a recess of ten minutes to transfer the amount from the unexpended tax receipts of 1911 collected in 1912. The vote being 14 yes and 6 no.

President Hobbs presided although Mayor Stone was around the hall all the evening.

There was also considerable opposition on other orders for street improvements and while the report of the committee in these cases was first accepted the votes were reconsidered and the orders laid on the table. The amendment to the police ordinance was treated in the same manner for while the Finance committee reported adversely on the order their report was rejected and the order passed.

Councilman Sandberg and Mahoney were absent.

A communication was received from the Board of Trade asking for a public hearing on the sidewalk orders pending. Referred to the Committee on Streets, where it will probably die as the orders in question were passed later in the evening.

A communication was received from the Mayor appointing F. L. Merritt, Oscar C. Djerf and Daniel Butters as constables and Andrew Stewart as Superintendent of Gypsy Moths, all of which were confirmed.

Petitions from the Q. R. & P. Co., for a relocation of poles and from the Telephone Co., for permission to enlarge its underground conduit were granted. A second petition from the Electric Light Co., for a new location for poles was referred to the Committee on Streets.

The Citizens' Gas Co., petitioned for permission to lay gas mains. Referred to Committee on Streets.

A number of applications for minor licenses were received and referred to the Committee on Licenses.

An application of W. T. Donovan for an auctioneer's license was laid on the table until later when it was granted.

Councilman C. A. Ross presented a petition for the acceptance of Roberts street. To Street Committee.

Councilman Barker presented a petition for the acceptance of Chester street. To Committee on Streets.

Councilman Barker presented a petition for the continuation of the granite sidewalk on Elmwood avenue. To Street Committee.

The Finance Committee reported ought to pass on the order for $3,400 for furnishings for the Montclair school. Rules suspended and order passed.

The same committee reported ought not to pass on the order for $2,500 to complete the rebuilding of West street. Order rejected. Order ordered to a second reading and the rules suspended. The order was then laid on the table until later in the evening when Councilman Boyd offered an amendment to the order adding the borrowing clause. This was read and placed in the calendar.

The Finance Committee reported ought to pass on the order for $9,000 for paving Penn street. Report accepted, order read and rules suspended.

Councilman Richards spoke in favor of the order and Councilman Able against.

Councilman Bailey asked the Commissioner if he had made any count of the use of this and some of the other main streets. The Commissioner replied that he had. In an eight hour tour he had counted 127 cases of litter, 170 cases of garbage, 1,000 Adams street and 700 Washington street. The character of the traffic was fully as heavy on Washington street as on Penn street. In reply to further questions the Commissioner said that he could build a macadam street on Penn street for $2,000,000, he considered better for this street than paving as the street was flat and easily drained.

Councilman Richards said that he could not understand the present turn this matter had taken. It had always been argued that on heavily traveled streets that paving was the only proper method. Candidly he took his place in the stack in what the Commissioner had said.

Councilman Cunningham spoke in favor of the paving of the street as did Councilman C. A. Ross.

The vote stood 13 yes and 7 no, which killed the measure but on motion of Councilman Richards the order was reconsidered and the order laid on the table.

A public hearing was held on the granting of Electric Light Co., a location for poles. The petitions were then laid on the table until later when Councilman Studley offered an order granting the location. This was referred to the Committee on Streets.

The Finance Committee reported the following amendments to sidewalk orders, striking out the borrowing clause on each. Changing the sidewalk on the west side of Newbury avenue from a tar concrete to a granite sidewalk, changing the sidewalks on Grand avenue to granite and striking out the sidewalk on Marion street. Accepted.

On motion of Councilman Sodergren the Newbury avenue sidewalk order was amended by cutting out the sidewalk on the east side. The orders were then passed.

The Finance Committee reported a loan order for $12,200 to provide funds for the various sidewalks. Ordered to a second reading.

The Committee on Fire Department reported a substitute order for $60 for fire alarm boxes on Elm and York streets. Referred to Finance Committee.

The Committee on Police reported ought not to pass on the order for a police signal box on Edwin street. Accepted.

The Finance Committee reported reference to the order for the mosquito net for $500 for the mosquito net. Accepted.

The same committee reported reference to the Executive on the order for $25 for a culvert on Canal street also the same on the communication from the School Committee relative to covering the steam pipes in the High school.

BUTS DEPT. STORE.

W. H. F. Browne of Wollaston has embarked upon a business career which holds every opportunity for success. After a connection of 33 years, at late as foreign buyer, with the Jordan Marsh Company of Boston, Mr. Browne has become proprietor of Wyzanski's Department Store of East Boston.

The business is regarded as one of the most promising in suburban Boston, being long established and located in Central Square, the centre of a large population. It will be known in the future as Browne's Department Store.

Associated with Mr. Browne will be his son Leon D. Browne who since his graduation from the Quincy High school in 1910 has been with the shoe and dry goods house of Walker-Stetson Company, Boston.

The store which has closed this week for the purposes of reorganization opens today. Mr. Browne and his family have long been residents of Wollaston and reside on Elm avenue.

CANOE CAPSIZED.

Stanley Bates, James Fay and John Murray, three base ball players well known to Quincy fans, had a narrow escape from drowning at Frederickton, N. B. last Sunday. The three were out canoeing about noon when they were about a half a mile from shore, and when the water suddenly became very rough.

The waves went into the canoe and the occupants were thrown into the water, which was some thirty feet deep. The three players kept floating about for fully five minutes and were gradually becoming exhausted. Their cries for help failed to bring succor. A tug happened to be in the vicinity and sighted the three men in the water.

The three men were pulled into the tug. Fay seemed to be the worst of the three, for he had on heavy clothing and had great difficulty keeping above water. All three clung as long as they could to the capsized canoe and only the timely approach of the tug saved their lives.

SCHOOL COMMITTEE MEETING.

A special meeting of the School Committee was held Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock to take action on the plans for the new Adams school building. It was very much desired that the approval of the School Committee be forwarded to the City Council Monday night. The School Committee voted to approve the plans with some slight modifications. The plans are those of Albert H. Wright, and are practically the same plans used for the new Wollaston school building.

The appropriation for that building however, was $75,000 while $80,000 is asked for the Adams school building. It is claimed in the first place that the contractor on the Wollaston school got stuck on his bargain and that for this reason the bid for the Adams school would be higher. Then again it is claimed that the long haul of lumber and material to the site of the Adams school will cost more and that there will be an added expense on account of the additional work necessary on the foundations.

The order is now before the Finance Committee who will probably report next Monday evening. As there was no loan provision attached to this order this means that two readings will be necessary to pass the order, should the Finance committee report favorably.

An important meeting of the School Committee was held Tuesday evening at their rooms. Chairman John L. Miller presided and all members were present.

The Chairman appointed the following as advisory committee on the industrial schools: H. Gerrieh Smith, Alexander W. Russell, Frank Burroughs, Herbert S. Barker, and Henry A. Marr. Their duties as required by the statutes is to advise with the Superintendent as to the industrial schools.

Bids were received for supplying the school department with fuel for the year. But one bid was received. That of the City Fuel Company.

Their bid was as follows:—
Lehigh Furnace $6.50 per ton.
Lenox $6.50 per ton.
New River bituminous $4.65 per ton.

It was voted to submit the bids to an expert on coal and if he deemed it for the best interest of the city to award the City Fuel Company the contract for the year.

The resignation of Miss Mary Marden of the Washington school was also accepted.

The contract for stationery and supplies was awarded to Edward E. Babbs.

George F. Hamlin was appointed under the Civil Service rules as janitor of the new Montclair school. Mr. Hamlin was the highest on the Civil Service list for janitors.

On account of the crowded condition at the High school when it will open in the fall it was voted to authorize the Chairman to consult with the supervisors of the Adams Academy with a view of securing the Adams Academy for an overflow and if possible to utilize the fund of that Academy.

William E. Parkinson was elected as teacher in the commercial department at the High school.

The Chairman was authorized to notify the City Council that the School committee is not through with the old Wollaston building as yet as in view of the crowded condition of the Massachusetts Fields district it may be necessary to use the building for a temporary overflow in the fall.

It was voted to open evening schools for foreigners in October in the Adams, Willard and Lincoln school buildings. Also to open a commercial department for general drawing in the High school.

It was voted to introduce state aided industrial courses in cooking at the High and Willard schools, designing in drawing for mechanics, monumental designing, process for engraving, stencils, workers in wood work, plumbing and tin snips' trade.

These courses are to be open to people over 17 years of age who are actually engaged in the particular trade indicated.

The teaching corps for the industrial schools has not been appointed.

The financial statement of the department to date was reported as follows:—
Appropriation Expended Administration $36,000 $27,167
Instruction 139,815.00 76,462.04
